Tobacco Ranked Sixth Among Agricultural Export Commodities

Tobacco ranked sixth among the top 10 agricultural export commodities in fiscal 1979 and again in fiscal 1980.

Final figures showed 287,000 metric tons shipped in 1978/79 and 283,000 tons a drop of 1.4 percent in 1979/80.

Among the largest buyers of U.S. leaf during fiscal 1980, and the value of their purchases, were Japan and West Germany, about $206 million each; Netherlands, $92 million; Italy, $66 million; Spain, $56 million; South Korea, $45 million; Canada, $27 million.

The amount of foreign grown tobacco imported into the United States was 165,000 metric tons in fiscal 1979; 169,000 metric tons in fiscal 1980, and is forecast at 160,000 tons in fiscal 1981.

Total world production of all types of tobacco fell from 5.4 million metric tons in 1979 to 5.2 million in 1980.

Global burley production in 1980 was up 1 2 percent from the 1979 level. A 16 percent increase in the U.S. crop offset declines in South America and Asia. The U.S. share of world burley production increased to 45 percent in 1980 from 36 percent in 1979

Sales on the Virginia burley tobacco markets were down for the second consecutive year. Total 1980/81 gross sales on the Abingdon, Weber City, and Pennington Gap markets were 22,335,234 pounds at an average price of $1.6592 per pound. Gross baled tobacco sales totaled 1,920,663 pounds

Advice On Preplanning Funeral

As unpleasant as it is to think about, death is something everyone ultimately faces. Planning ahead assures that funeral and burial wishes are carried out and that your decisions are within your financial means.

Few persons realize how many different decisions must be faced regarding funeral and burial arrangements. This list, developed by the Los Angeles Funeral Society, shows the scope of possibilities.

Write down desired funeral plans and give a copy to someone you trust.

Preplanning a funeral does not mean prepaying. In fact, prepayment for funeral arrangements usually is not a very good idea because consumers in a mobile society often move from the area where prearranged funeral plans have been made.

Some individuals prefer a customary service with the body present. Others prefer a memorial service held at home or a place of worship. If a memorial service is the choice, it can be held at any appropriate time or place. A memorial service can be quite elaborate or very simple with close friends.

Individuals can select cremation, burial and embalming. Embalming is mostly for cosmetic purposes and it actually preserves the body for only a short time. It is rarely necessary for simple disposition, but if a body is held over 24 hours, most state laws require that it be embalmed or refrigerated.

If the deceased person had a contagious disease or if the body is being transported by plane, train or other common carrier, embalming is necessary.

A casket is not legally required for cremation. This is true in all 50 states

Funeral directors can provide an itemized list detailing the cost of caskets, embalming, hearses, limousines, newspaper notices, and other services for a conventional funeral

As in the case of paying for funerals in advance, buying family burial lots in advance also may create problems, especially when one plot has been used and the other family members choose not to be buried in the remaining plots If you decide to buy a plot for a whole family lot), it is wise to check to see if the cemetery is a member of the National Exchange Trust, Ltd., P.O. Box 501, Beckley, W. Va., 25801 Cemeteries that belong to the Trust permit consumers to transfer their equity in a plot from one area to another as long as both cemeteries belong to the trust.

Burial vaults are not required by law. This is true in all 50 states.

Certain death benefits are often provided by Social Security, the Veterans Administration, railroad retirement plans, labor unions and fraternal organizations. Some insurance policies and medical benefit plans provide specific death benefits. Now is the time to look into those policies.

Those who want to donate their body or organs for research or transplantation need to discuss this matter with the person who will probably be handling the funeral arrangements. Filling out a donor card doesn't mean your wishes automatically will be followed.

It is important to tell friends, lawyer, spiritual adviser, doctor and most emphatically relatives. Sometimes there are misgivings among survivors when it comes to actually giving someone's body or organs to a hospital or medical school

Many states, including Virginia, permit noting organ donations on driver's licenses. Otherwise it is necessary to fill out a Uniform Donor Card and carry it These cards are available from several organizations including Medic Alert, Turlock, Calif., 95380

In addition, the National Institutes of Health has a free brochure, "How To Donate the Body or Its Organs." Write to Department 577H, Pueblo, Colo 81009 Two Uniform Donor Cards are included in the brochure.

Those who decide that they do not want to be donors, in most cases, only have to tear up their donor cards

Nobody Seems To Care

Q. I have a problem in knowing how to accept the apathy of people toward world hunger. They are pro life yet don't give a dime to help the needy Don't we kill a life when we allow a child to die from starvation? In my small church circle they seem so indifferent. This bothers me so deeply I'm considering not attending the meetings, yet this is my home and these are the people I must live with. How can I help change the attitude?

A If you allow yourself to get disturbed by what other people do or don't do you will be pretty miserable

Just do what you think is right, and don't get annoyed with people because they don't do what you do

Don't talk a lot, don't criticize or condemn others Go on quietly helping the needy and maybe in time, as people are impressed with the happiness this brings you, they may try it for themselves

Senator Byrd Calls For Policy To Ensure U.S. Access To Strategic Minerals

Senator Harry F Byrd, Jr., Ind. Va., has called for creation of a national policy designed to ensure U S access to strategic minerals.

The United States is dangerously dependent on foreign sources some unstable, some actively hostile for critical minerals, Byrd declared in a Senate speech

Byrd noted that he had urged development two years ago of a "strategy to protect vital security interests of the industrialized nations," but that "little positive action was taken by the Congress or by the Carter Administration."

He said America imports at least 90 percent of such minerals as cobalt, bauxite, chromium, manganese and platinum, which are essential to U.S. defense and industry.

The nation needs an estimated 4.5 billion tons of new minerals about 41,000 tons per person each year to sustain its economy Yet the U.S lacks a "coherent strategy" for acquiring and stockpiling important minerals, Byrd said.

"Congress, in its wisdom, or lack thereof, has impeded mining, processing and manufacturing on private lands by the passage of several acts which delay, make more costly and in fact preclude mining, processing and manufacturing

"We must reverse those actions which are driving smelters and other facilities into closure We must balance our health and safety regulations so that we don't destroy our ability to produce," Byrd continued

He said he was not urging the repeal of any legislation but that we should begin immediately to determine the impact of legislation and subsequent regulations on mineral exploration, mining, development and manufacturing."

Exploration and mining are either partially or wholly banned on 70 percent of the 775 million acres of land in government ownership Byrd continued

The U S imports the bulk of its mineral needs from Africa, although the Soviet Union and some European and Caribbean countries also are important suppliers

Of those imports Byrd said, "better than 98 percent must come by water the sea lanes The potential for insuring this transport is questionable."

Russia already has brought Angola Ethiopia and Mazambique into its orbit and is working to extend its influence to neighboring nations said Byrd adding that South Africa is now the principal target of Soviet subversion

It is imperative that the U.S. blunt the Soviet thrust in southern Africa and develop a domestic minerals industry Byrd told his Senate colleagues

To those who say American ingenuity will prevail I say the time for American ingenuity is now, he declared

Early Detection Of Cancer Important

17,000 Virginians will be diagnosed as having cancer in 1981, but at least 5,460 will be saved from death by cancer. An estimated 46,800 Virginians already are considered cured of cancer, according to the Virginia Division of the American Cancer Society

In its annual publication, "Virginia Cancer Facts and Figures", the Society asserts that the figures reflect progress in early detection and diagnosis, treatments, and rehabilitation of cancer patients

Still, 8,700 state residents will die from cancer in 1981 "Half of those who will die", says the Society "could have been saved by early diagnosis and prompt treatment."

Lung cancer leads the number of new cases of cancer (2,700) discovered in Virginia and is also responsible for the greatest number of deaths by cancer (2,300). The Society points out that while the cure rate for lung cancer is extremely poor, most lung cancers are directly attributable to cigarette smoking and largely preventable

Breast cancer is second to lung cancer in new cases diagnosed here this year (2,300), but will account for only 08 percent of all cancer deaths. In spite of an increasing incidence of breast cancer, survival rates have risen to 85 percent in cases diagnosed in an early, localized stage

The 1981 nationwide version of the publication presents a comprehensive picture of cancer in the U.S. today and demonstrates why there is such an overwhelming concern about prevention, early diagnosis and treatment of cancer

In the ACS 1980 annual report, "The American Family and the American Cancer Society in Virginia", 70 percent of the American family members surveyed say that they are more concerned with health today than a few years ago although crisis care, not prevention, is still the dominant health approach

In addition, the Society said that inflation, in particular has taken a toll on family health with almost one in every two American families trying to economize with fewer visits to doctors and dentists for checkups While cancer is the major health fear of Americans, only 1 in 4 believe that a cancer related checkup has any value, yet more than a third of family members strongly agree that nearly all serious illnesses including cancer are curable if caught in time

The Society cited its PACE (Priority Activities in Cancer Education) programs as focusing on the four major cancer killers (lung, colorectal, breast, and uterine cancer) where prevention or early diagnosis provides the biggest payoff in lives saved. PACE emphasizes the value of periodic health checkups, specific cancer tests and prompt action when one of the seven danger signals of cancer occurs

One of the major barriers to better health noted in the report is the "strong tendancy of families to refuse to believe that illness and disease can happen to them. Fear also keeps people away from early diagnosis."

In Virginia, a total of 444,767 kindergarten to college age youth were the recipients of 8,158 ACS cancer education programs

In the workplace, the Division's Employee Education program reached 25,206 adults with 735 programs last year

To improve the quality of life for cancer patients, the organization has made support of service and rehabilitation programs for cancer patients and their families a major thrust Self help groups like Reach to Recovery", a world wide program for breast cancer patients which started in Virginia stress emotional and physical support as their chief objectives An estimated 96 percent of all cancer patients in Virginia or 8,234, received some ACS service or rehabilitation assistance last year

The Virginia Division ACS also provides continuing education programs on cancer for health professionals and supports more than $1,000,000 in cancer research and clinical investigation grants currently in effect statewide

Hogs No Longer Garbage Disposals

Not long ago, Virginia hogs were the handiest garbage disposals around Meat scraps and other unwanted refuse was collected for slopping the hogs

Then a hog cholera outbreak prompted passage of a law calling for an end to feeding garbage to hogs for sale The law was designed to prevent the possible spread of any disease or organism to hogs through feeding of unprocessed or uncooked pork tissues

New national laws have been passed stopping garbage feeding to prevent the spread of African swine fever from South America to the United States," said Charles R Cooper, Extension swine specialist at Virginia Tech

Virginia laws are even more strict than national laws on this subject

The laws prohibit the general use of refuse from restaurants, cafeterias, grocery stores or home kitchens as swine feed It even covers vegetable scraps because they have the potential for containing bones or meat scraps in the same store

Veterans Administration

Q -- I am a 55-year-old Korean War veteran. Two years ago I had both legs amputated as a result of an automobile accident. Can I receive a waiver of premium of my National Service Life Insurance even though I am gainfully employed.

A Yes. An insured who has suffered the permanent loss of both legs is considered totally disabled without regard to employment

Q -- I am receiving compensation for a 30 percent service connected disability, and I also receive an annual clothing allowance. I now find I could receive more money by electing to receive non-service connected pension benefits in lieu of compensation because I am eligible for both. If I elect to receive pension benefits in lieu of compensation, will I still get priority treatment at the Veterans Administration hospital and continue to get my clothing allowance

A Yes The election to receive greater monetary benefits does not affect any other benefits you are entitled to because of service connected disabilities

Gibson Station Shooting Leaves Man Critical

An 18-year-old Middlesboro, Ky., man remains in critical condition following a May 3rd shooting in the parking lot of Jay and Ann's Restaurant at Gibson Station.

Shot six times with a .38 caliber revolver at approximately 4:30 p.m. was Gilbert Leslie Miller, after an apparent altercation with Melvin Brock, 50, also of Middlesboro, who will be charged with malicious wounding and using a firearm in the commission of a felony.

According to investigating officer, Deputy Marvin Radcliff, Brock and young Miller were reported arguing over Brock's daughter who had allegedly been Miller's girlfriend.

Brock, seated in his car along with other occupants wife, Patricia Brock; daughter, Jo Anne Brock; son, Johnny Brock; and friend, Mike Mink; allegedly fired at Miller, who was standing in the parking lot. Miller was shot in the neck, chest, right thigh, left buttock, right jaw and in the groin. He was taken to the Middlesboro Hospital, where he underwent surgery for multiple gunshot wounds.

The shooting is also allegedly linked to the weekend burglarizing of Elydale School, according to Deputy Radcliff.

Police reports reveal that Elydale was broken into sometime after 5 p.m. on May 1 with the incident discovered and reported sometime Sunday morning. Stolen were a typewriter, a cassette player and a case of oil.

This merchandise was later found Sunday in a wrecked, abandoned 1977 blue Camaro by authorities near Montgomery's Grocery on U.S. 58. The vehicle with Kentucky dealer license plates had earlier been reported stolen, allegedly by Miller, who along with a 17-year-old juvenile, had driven to Jay and Ann's where the shooting would occur.

When the shooting was over, the juvenile apparently panicked, Radcliff said, and drove off, later to wreck the stolen vehicle when a tire blew. It was then that local authorities were able to recover the missing items and put together the incidents of the weekend and afternoon.

Both Miller and the juvenile will be charged at a later date both in Virginia and Kentucky, Deputy Radcliff said.

Large Crowd Turns Out For Short Taxpayer Meeting

It was a brief meeting for about 150 Lee County citizens who turned out April 26 for a meeting of the local taxpayers association.

Unfortunately, due to personal illness, Paul Jernigan, a Big Stone Gap attorney and the scheduled speaker, was unable to attend so the meeting was over in a matter of minutes following some brief remarks by Chairman Luther Collier.

Collier repeatedly stressed to members present that the Lee County Taxpayers Association is non-political, despite efforts by some "to bring politics into the group and divide us."

Once again Collier criticized the recent tax reassessment as unfair and reported that May 1 was the appointed day for Attorney Jernigan to seek an injunction from the local circuit court judge to strike the recent tax reassessment and declare it illegal.

Jernigan has filed suit on behalf of eight Lee County property owners who charge that the recent reassessment was conducted illegally and with disregard to certain minimum standards.

The major complaint among citizens of the taxpayers' group is that in very few cases did state certified appraiser, Carl Stallard, actually make an on-the site appraisal. Citizens maintain that buildings were assessed that are no longer standing having been long ago destroyed or torn down.

Collier, speaking for the group, said Lee County taxpayers are willing to pay their fair share providing everyone is assessed fairly and equally.

He announced that the next meeting of the group would not be held until sometime after the judge had heard Jernigan's case and made a decision, which could be several weeks as the circuit court is now in the middle of a rather lengthy murder trial.

Key Witness Outlines Hill Murder Plot

The key witness in the prosecution of Bernard Chester Webb, St. Charles, for the alleged contract killing of David Hill, a Georgia businessman, having completed his testimony will now receive a new identity from the government in another part of the country.

This is part of the bargain between Russell Cash of Stevenson, Alabama, in granting him immunity from prosecution for his testimony in the Webb

Hill was shot to death -- his body found just across the Lee-Wise County line near Keokee on December 23, 1977, by local miners out looking for a place to set their hunting traps.

Cash's testimony outlined the murder plot with the following sequence of events...

"R.L. Herring called me into his office and told me he wanted Hill to go on a vacation," Cash said. "He said he wanted him done away with and to go by and see the Webb boy," Cash continued.

Cash told Herring, who is also currently being held in the Lee County Jail on murder charges that he would arrange Hill's murder during a business trip to Pineville, Ky. On December 19, Cash said he met Webb at his trailer in Dryden and arranged the murder, with Webb insisting that Hill be brought to Virginia.

On December 20, Cash picked up the first $10,000 installment for Webb at Herring's Herco Co. in Albany, Ga.

Later that day, Cash met Webb at the Pennington Gap airport, and they stopped briefly at Shelborne's Motel there to make telephone calls. Cash said Webb called Hill, tell-

Carter Hall Rates High On East Coast Survey

Carter Hall Nursing Home, Dryden, prides itself on quality patient care - a trait that is further supported by the results of a recent survey of nursing homes on the East Coast of comparable size.

Of the 42 nursing home facilities participating in the survey in the states of Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New York, Vermont, North Carolina and West Virginia, Carter Hall in Lee County, Virginia, rated in the 96 percentile or top of all 42 on the list.

Carter Hall, built in 1976, is a 50-bed complex offering its residents a full-time staff of RN's, LPN's, a registered dietician, a food service supervisor, activities director, social worker, registered pharmacist on call, with Dr. H. A. Kinser serving as medical director. The administration of Carter Hall is in the process of developing a physical therapy program, utilizing such existing components as whirlpools.

According to Administrator Jim Daugherty, Carter Hall scored high in the survey particularly with respect to categories involving appearance of the facility, food, and staff response to suggestions and complaints.

Daugherty, who would like to see folks forget the image of nursing homes as a place to spend those final days, is working hard along with his staff, to offer a day-to-day routine that is meaningful to the patients of Carter Hall.

Trying to combine the services of a hospital with the comforts and conveniences of home is quite a challenge, Daugherty admitted, and also meet the many state and federal guidelines and financial restrictions at the same time.

Part of the secret of success apparently is a conscientious staff and the willingness of regular volunteers who assist with various activities at the center.

Volunteers are often present to help with craft activities, games, exercises, reading to patients or writing letters or perhaps giving of devotions. Some offer their services through an adopt-a-grandparent program, while local ministers rotate on a regular basis providing church services each Sunday.

Other volunteers enjoy and offer their talents at a monthly birthday party, while some find their greatest service in just being a good listener.

"And there's always the need for more volunteers," Daugherty hastened to add.

Carter Hall, Daugherty noted, is now a part of a major nursing home chain in the U.S., Beverly Enterprises, headquartered in Pasadena, Ca.

Formerly owned by a small chain in Virginia and North Carolina, Liberty Nursing Homes, Inc., the change of ownership became effective January 1, 1981.

According to Daugherty, both patients and staff have benefited from the change with Beverly deeply committed to providing the best quality of health care possible.

Carter Hall employees now benefit from group

23 Miners Arrested In Keokee

An alleged rock-throwing incident resulted in the May 1 arrest of 23 striking coal miners near Keokee, according to Virginia State Police reports.

The rock-throwing began as picketers awaited miners who were returning from their jobs in the coalfields, according to Lt. R. L. Baumgardner. "There was no damage or injuries. They just simply rocked the cars."

A miner was arrested in the same spot earlier last week and charged with carrying a concealed weapon after a State Police car was hit by a rock.

In other related strike violence, the windshields of two coal trucks and a rear view mirror of another were smashed near Dotson's Creek in Wise County. Four men were charged in the incident, Lt. Baumgardner said.

One was charged with three counts of propelling missiles at occupied vehicles (using a slingshot to shoot marbles at vehicles) while the other three were charged with conspiracy to commit a felony.

Unlawful assemblies were reported in Wise County, one at Stamack near the Ring Coal Company and in front of Virginia Iron and Coke near Tom's Creek.

So Who's Counting ???

Apparently someone at Thomas Walker High School is looking forward to summer vacation and has started that final countdown until school closes June 4th. Chances are summer vacation is one subject about which both students and teachers see eye-to-eye and it always seems to come at just the right time each year.

Ned Hartsock

Please?

Fourteen-year-old Ned Hartsock needs your help.

Ned is a victim of cerebral palsy, a disease which has left him unable to walk.

Presently Ned is a student in a special education class at St. Charles Elementary with future plans for attending Pennington High School this fall, where his environment will be less restrictive in a special education classroom with children about his own age.

Ned is looking forward to this. However, without an electric wheel chair to give him increased mobility around his new school environment, Ned's progress will be greatly limited.

Electric wheelchairs don't come cheap, but then things that are truly worthwhile require extra effort and hard work to achieve.

Ned and his family can't do it alone. They need around $3,000 to purchase the chair before school starts back in late summer.

Local businessmen, merchants and professionals of Lee County have once before demonstrated a true testimony of caring by donating a generous sum to the purchase of an electric wheelchair for young George Smith, who attends the Flatwoods Multi-Handicapped Center.

The staff, parents and friends of Ned Hartsock are making a similar plea for help.

Your generosity will richly be rewarded when you think of a beaming Ned, easily maneuvering his way about his new high school and taking his place alongside other students his own age.

Please contact St. Charles Elementary if you would like to be part of this worthwhile effort.

ing him of a mining operation and fourteen pieces of equipment. "We didn't use Bern's name," Cash said, explaining that Webb used the alias Eddie Lamar.

Webb was given his first installment for the murder that night, Cash testified. On December 21, Cash headed home for Stevenson, Alabama, and Webb set out to the airport to meet David Hill

On December 22, Cash called Webb to "find out if he got the papers signed."

Herring was called, Cash said, and told the "papers were signed."

Cash said he picked up the second $10,000 installment from Herring on December 27 at his Albany office, and had the money delivered by Webb's wife in early January.

Since December 1977, Cash saw Webb only once when the accused was with another man in Pennington Gap. Cash reported that Webb pointed to the other man and said, "if you have another job, he's the best in the business."

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Marion (Monk) Smith.

In loving memory of our Father and Grandfather who went home to be with God one year ago, May 2, 1980.

What I would give if I could say,
Hello Dad, in the same old way.
To hear your voice, see your smile
To sit with you and chat awhile.
So you who have a Father,
cherish him with care.
For you'll never know how the heartache,
Till you see his vacant chair.

A million times I've needed you.
A million times I've cried,
If love alone could have saved you,
You never would have died
In life I loved you dearly,
In death I love you still.
For in my heart you hold a place,
That no one else can fill.
It broke my heart to lose you,
But you didn't go alone.
For part of me went with you,
The day God took you home

Your Wife: Maxie

PIONEER OF OUR SALVATION

With people living in a state of alienation from God and indulging in sin, at a time which was determined by the Father, "God sent forth his Son . . . to redeem them that were under the law." Christ's supreme purpose in coming into this world was to make atonement for sin and provide salvation for sinners, and there is no salvation apart from Him.

Christ's Actions – Hebrews 2: 10 - 13

When our blessed Saviour took upon Himself the form of man, He took a place "a little lower than the angels," for they were deathless creatures. His entire earthly life was without the slightest taint of sin. Concerning His sinlessness the Bible says: "For he hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin, that we might be made the righteousness of God in him." "Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures." "Who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we being dead in sins, should live unto righteousness." Salvation from sin, which was purposed in the mind of God, and prompted by the love of God, was perfected by the Son of God. Since men could not save themselves, it was necessary for the Saviour to come into the world in human flesh, and to suffer and die in order that an atonement might be made for their sins and that they might be saved.

Christ's Accomplishments – Hebrews 2: 14 - 18

In compliance with the perfect will of God the Father, Christ the Son came into this world, lived without a sinful thought, motive, desire or deed, experienced every type of testing to which any human being will ever be subjected, and died an ignominious death on a cruel cross in order that every true believer in Him might receive forgiveness and salvation from the penalty of sin, the power of sin, and eventually the presence of sin. Through Christ's death on the cross, Satan's power was conquered and the victims who had been in subjection to him were delivered by Christ in a marvelous fashion. Through the saving power of Christ, multitudes have been brought into the family of God and wonderfully delivered from the cringing subjection to the terror of dying without hope. Through His death and resurrection Christ has guaranteed the same to those who believe on Him while sojourning on the earthly scene.

Through Jesus Christ, Who died on the cross and arose from the tomb, in order that penitent sinners might be saved, millions have become the children of God, have lived victorious, faithful, joyous, and useful Christian lives, have practiced self-denial, and have cheerfully rendered useful service for their Lord in helpfulness to their associates. It is amazing what one can accomplish for Christ and for the benefit of others as he yields himself to the glorious task of accomplishing His will. The blessed assurance of admission to heaven, of living with the Lord Jesus Who has saved us and sustained us while we sojourned on earth, and of enjoying the blessed reunion with our loved ones and friends whom we have missed since they left us is beyond our present ability to estimate. And all these and many other blessings have been made possible for us because of what Christ our Saviour and Lord accomplished for us while He was here.

Tobacco Coverage Valuable

In 1980 the Lee County burley tobacco crop was reduced approximately 20 percent by drought Federal Crop Insurance paid $82,530.00 in indemnities to approximately 100 policyholders who filed claims

While no one can control unfavorable weather conditions and unknown diseases, they can control how much income they receive from their crop by obtaining Federal Crop Insurance. Statistics have shown that every pound of tobacco sold costs a farmer 1 05 to produce before any additional leasing costs are added. No matter what amount a grower may set, he has a substantial investment which many times represents several years of profits. All risk tobacco insurance can give growers a margin of protection against huge debts brought about by a crop failure. Insurance protection is based on intended acreage and poundage and the cost is only $2.70 per each $100.00 worth of protection.

Applications are being accepted through May 20 at the ASCS office. All producers are encouraged to obtain more information before the deadline date

Q. I can't find information about vitamin B-15. Shouldn't it be with other vitamins?

A. What is known is that vitamin B-15 is not a vitamin. Responsible information about vitamin B 15, or calcium pangamate, is difficult to find. Manufacturers have developed different formulas and made claims about its being a wonder drug. None of these have been substantiated. At best, B-15 does nothing; and it can be harmful in some forms.

I frequently see riboflavin listed on many food containers in the store. What is riboflavin and could you tell me which foods are good source?

A. Riboflavin is a B vitamin that helps promote healthy skin, eyes and clear vision, among other things. Milk is an excellent source of riboflavin. But useful amounts of this B-vitamin are also provided by meats; eggs; dark green, leafy vegetables; and by whole and enriched grain products.

Q. Is it really true that many Americans do not eat a good diet?

A. Government surveys have revealed that while most individuals are obtaining most of their nutrient needs, some people are eating less than the desirable amounts of certain nutrients. Despite plentiful amounts in our food supply, the nutrients most frequently consumed in less than recommended amounts were calcium, iron, magnesium and vitamin B-6.

Counselors Honored With Luncheon

An "Appreciation Luncheon" for Lee County Guidance Counselors was hosted by Mr. C.B. Marcum, Principal, Lee County Vocational School, last Wednesday, April 22, 11:30 a.m. at the school.

A menu of steak and mushrooms, stuff baked potato, green beans, rolls, butter, salad, dessert, tea and coffee was prepared and served buffet style by the Food Services Class.

The colorful table decorations included green and pink felt flower napkin rings, place cards and iris center pieces. Each guest received a wormy chestnut paper weight made by the Carpentry Class.

Following lunch Mr. Marcum commended the group for their cooperation and services to students and to the vocational school. Mrs. Sue Rosenbalm re-emphasized his remarks and expressed gratitude to the members for their support. Mrs. Hazel Lyttle, President of the Lee County Guidance Personnel praised the students who participated in preparation for the occasion. She expressed appreciation to Mr. Marcum for his thoughtfulness in having an appreciation luncheon, and further, for providing space for monthly Counselor meetings. She also commended Mr. Dave Willis, Guidance Coordinator, for his work with the group.

Those attending the luncheon were Superintendent Robert G. McCoy, Alfred Langley, Cindy Tucker, Lawrence Scott, Judy Combs, Dave Willis, Jola Carico, Susie Middleton, Pat Sweet, Ruth Gilliam, Fay Strickland, Hazel Lyttle, Sue Rosenbalm, and C.B. Marcum.

VEC To Close 26 Offices

Faced with budget reductions of at least $7.5 million, the Virginia Employment Commission today announced plans to close 26 of its smallest offices and to eliminate 319 positions, 234 of which are now occupied, during the summer.

Arthur L. Lane, Jr., DPA, commissioner of the federally funded state agency, said that additional closings and layoffs will be required if proposed cuts in the U.S. Department of Labor's budget are enacted.

Offices scheduled to be closed between June 30th and September 30th are those in Gate City, Lawrenceville, Luray, Manasses, Orange, Pearisburg, Pennington Gap, Pulaski, Rocky Mount, Salem, Stuart, White Marsh, Williamsburg, Woodstock, Bath County, Washington County, the Monticello branch office in Norfolk, the Patterson Avenue and Southside branch offices in Richmond, the South Central Virginia Community College branch office in Lynchburg and the Roanoke Data Center.

The VEC will also stop providing services at offices provided by local governments in Franklin, Grafton, Leesburg, Surry and Warrenton.

Fifty-five positions will be eliminated by the closing of the 26 field offices and 264 other positions will be abolished in the VEC's 61 remaining offices.

Most of the jobs to be eliminated are professional and lower level management positions. The VEC's Central Office will lose more employees than will any of the agency's field offices.

The offices slated for closing offer only some of the services offered by the VEC's remaining larger offices and serve fewer job seekers and employers than do the larger offices.

Cities and counties served by the closed offices will be covered by nearby full service offices.

Employees whose positions are abolished will, under the State Department of Personnel and Training's new layoff policy, have the right to "bump" fellow workers in similar or lower positions who have less state service. Displaced workers will also receive preference for any vacancies that occur in the VEC.

VEC officials are working with officials of other state agencies to locate job openings for displaced workers.

A freeze in hiring, capital equipment purchases, office construction and renovation and nonessential travel and meetings which was instituted last month by Dr. Lane will remain in effect.

The VEC, unlike most state agencies, does not receive any operating funds from the State. All funds come from the United States Department of Labor.

Flatwoods Eagles Take Pair From Rye Cove

The Flatwoods Eagles played another bunch of Eagles on Monday of this week, in a doubleheader, and Flatwoods took both ends by scores of 3-0 and 5-4 to close out their season.

In the first game, Flatwoods scored three times in the first inning. The winners started Darrell Vanhuss on the mound and he responded by going the distance, pitching a two hit shutout.

Scott Bowen went all the way on the hill for Rye Cove, allowing only five hits, with his teammates playing errorless baseball.

Jeff Seabolt had two of Flatwoods five hits with both being two baggers.

In the second game, Jeff Seabolt took the mound went the route. He allowed four runs on five hits, while his teammates made three errors.

Rye Cove took a quick 3-0 lead in the first inning, but it didn't last long as Flatwoods came back in the bottom half and scored five times off of starting and losing pitcher Joe Hutchins. Hutchins allowed four hits, but walks, and the two errors by Rye Cove took their toll. Tony Lawson had a triple for Flatwoods, while nobody on either team had more than one hit.

Flatwoods will now have to wait for the outcome of the doubleheader between Rye Cove and Thomas Walker this Thursday, to determine if they will play their tournament opener at home. In order for Flatwoods to gain the home field for their opening game in the tournament, Thomas Walker will have to lose one of the two games against Rye Cove. Should the Pioneers win both, then there will be a coin flip as they would wind up in a tie with Flatwoods.

Rye Cove will be on the road no matter what the outcome of their remaining games.

Flatwoods Takes Twinbill From Twin Springs

The Flatwoods Eagles took two games from the Twin Springs Titans on Tuesday evening of last week.

In the first game Tony Lawson got his first start of the year. He gave way to Darrell Vanhuss late in the game, after the Titans had tied the score at 2-2. The game went eight innings before the Eagles scored twice to take the win at 4-2. Jeff Seabolt had two hits in two trips, and was alert on the base path as he swiped four bases.

Joe Salyer started for Twin Springs and took the loss. He struck out 14 Eagles and pitched a six hitter. Jeff Flanary garnered two hits in four trips to lead the Titans.

In the nightcap, the Eagles bats really came to life as they pounded Titan starter and loser Mike Penley, for twelve hits and eighteen runs. Penley went the distance despite being rocked hard by the Eagles bats.

Darrell Vanhuss, winner of the first game in relief, started and went the distance to win the second game also. He pitched a six hitter and allowed six runs.

The Eagles had two big scoring frames in the game. The first big inning was the third when the Eagles erupted for seven runs. The fourth was even bigger as the Eagles tallied nine times, with the big blow being homerun by Vanhuss with one man aboard. Vanhuss had a single and double to go along with the roundtripper.

Darrell was the only Titan to gather two hits, as he doubled twice. Johnny Gillespie had a three bagger for the Titans.

Twin Springs, winner of only one game so far this year, will be looking to score a few more runs as tournament time nears, as the Titans haven't been scoring much of late.

Flatwoods now 5-6 overall and in the district will be out to try to gain ground on some of the other teams as they prepare to get ready for the tournament. The Eagles are currently one of the top four clubs in the district, and if they can keep themselves in the top four, they will host their opponent in the opening round of the tournament.

Rye Cove used two pitchers in the game with Mike Bowen starting and Hutchins finishing up. Both combined to allow ten hits and nine runs.

Rye Cove committed six errors which helped in the game having a big score. But the Eagles were not the only error pronged team as the Bulldogs committed eight errors. Jonesville used three pitchers with Crumley starting, but giving way to Bill Lambert, who gave way to Gary Oaks. All three allowed the Eagles eleven runs on thirteen hits, plus the errors made by the team.

Hitting stars for the Eagles were senior Mike Bowen who had three hits in four trips. He drove in two runs. Terry Duncan was perfect with three safeties in as many tries, while also driving in a couple of runs. Mike Hutchins had the games lone homerun, a two run shot.

Keokee Takes Twinbill From Pennington

Keokee and Pennington met Monday evening of this week in a doubleheader at Keokee, and the Mountaineers took both games by scores of 1-0 and 15 7.

In the opening game, Pennington started Gary Pendergraft, the Bobcat ace, on the mound. He only surrendered one hit to Keokee. Kip Phillips went the distance for Keokee, and tossed a no hitter at Pennington. He fanned ten Bobcats in the game while walking only one.

Pendergraft in suffering his first loss on the mound this season, pitched well enough to win by only allowing one hit and striking out five, but the Bobcats let the games lone run score in the fourth with errors. In fact, the Bobcats who made three errors in the game made them all in the fourth. Chig Davis reached base on an error, then was lifted for a pinch runner. Triplett running for Davis stole second base and went to third when catcher Bobby Ledbetter threw the ball into centerfield. Triplett then scored on an error by the second baseman.

Keokee came back in the second game with their hitting shoes on, as they pounded four Bobcat pitchers for seventeen hits enroute to a 15-7 win.

The Bobcats tried to come back with Pendergraft on the mound in the second game, but he didn't last long as Keokee scored nine runs in the first inning.

The Mountaineers who led 15-0 before the Bobcats scored, didn't quit the onslaught when Pendergraft was pulled, as they pounded Gary Collier, Mike Jones and Mike Reynolds for the rest of the game. Pendergraft was again the loser in the second game, after being loser in the first game despite pitching a one hitter.

Mickey Hubbard started for Keokee and got the win, but not before he was roughed up a bit by Pennington. He needed relief help from Tim McElyea to get the win.

Keokee with the sweep will need a win in their last game this week to win the district crown. A win over Twin Springs in the Mountaineers last game would give Keokee the crown, a trip to the regionals, and the home site in the district tournament, plus their opponent in the opener of the district tournament would be Twin Springs, winners of only one game to date.

Roger Morris must be congratulated for a managerial job he has done at Keokee, as he put together a good hitting team, plus he can send a ace to the mound in just about every game Keokee plays.

Dryden And T. W. Pioneers Split

In a twinbill played Thursday evening of last week, Dryden and Thomas Walker split games with Dryden winning the first game 10-8, and the Pioneers coming back with a 4-3 win in the nightcap.

In the opener, Pat Jervis sent Dawn Long to the mound for Dryden. She was knocked out in the first inning when the Pioneers scored five runs. Ronnie Rhoten came on in relief and finished up, and was the winning pitcher as Dryden scored in every inning except the third to take the win.

Thomas Walker started Alden Payne who went the distance only to lose. The Pioneers outhit Dryden 6-5 but nine walks issued by Payne killed the Pioneers hopes. Payne's won loss record is 3-3.

Johnny Edds went 2 for 2 for Thomas Walker, with both hits doubles. Randy Anders had three singles to lead Dryden.

In the second game, the Pioneers gained a split when they broke a 3-3 tie in the fourth inning. Johnny Edds went the route for the Pioneers to get the win.

He is 4-2 on the year. He allowed Dryden 3 runs on 4 hits. Randy Anders had two of the four.

Greg Peters went the distance for the Crusaders, but suffered the loss. He was touched for four runs on five hits. Both teams committed one error. The win evens the Pioneers won-loss record at 7-7. They are 5-7 in the district.

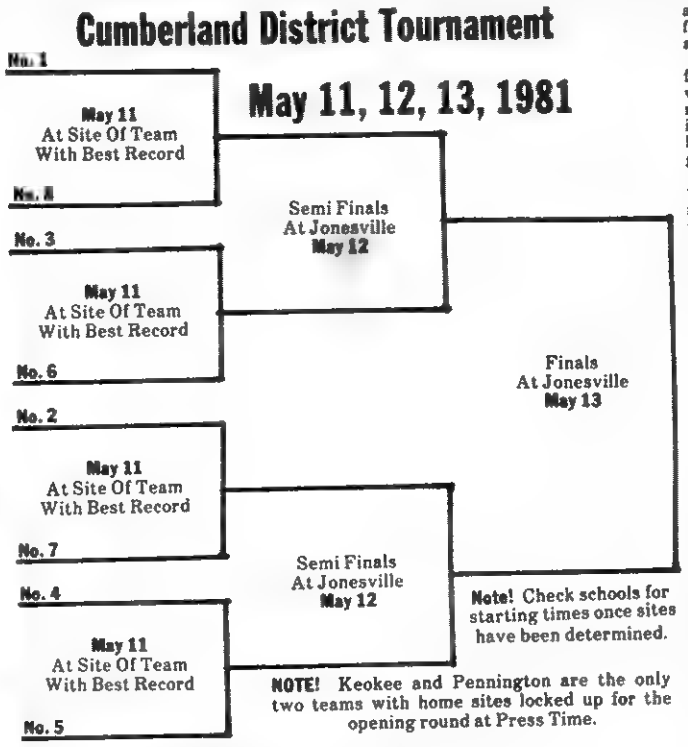
Cumberland District Tournament

May 11, 12, 13, 1981



Note! Check schools for starting times once sites have been determined.

Keokee 13, Flatwoods Eagles 3

The Mountaineers and Eagles got together this past Thursday at Flatwoods, and the Eagles probably wish the Mountaineers had stayed at Keokee, as the visitors pounded started Jeff Seabolt and relief man Darrell Vanhuss for eleven hits and thirteen runs enroute to a 13-3 win.

Kevin Pennington started for Keokee on the mound but did not complete the game. He gave way to Mickey Hubbard who finished on the hill. Pennington received credit for the win to up his record to 3-1.

The Mountaineer pitchers gave up single runs in second, fifth and seventh innings while only allowing five base hits.

The winners whose biggest scoring frame was the first, when they crossed the plate five times, had the games only homerun off the bat of Snodgrass.

Keokee who has lost two games on the year, but only one in the district will host Pennington this week in a doubleheader to decide the districts regular season champion. A sweep of the two games by Keokee, would give the Mountaineers the crown. While the Bobcats would win it if they win either game.

To the winner of the regular season crown goes a trip to the regionals. But both teams are already assured of home sites in their opening round games of the district tournament.

Pennington Wins Pair Over Twin Springs

The Bobcats have stretched their won loss record to 13-0, after taking a twinbill from the Twin Springs Titans on Thursday of last week.

In the first game, Gary Collier started on the mound and was tough as he pitched no hit ball until the Titans spoiled it with a single with one out to go in the game. The Bobcats were not having one of their best games of the year either as Joe Salyer, the Titan starting pitcher and loser limited Pennington to just four hits.

The game went into extra innings with Gary Pendergraft hitting a three bagger and coming home on a squeeze play by Bobby Ledbetter.

Twin Springs, winner of only one game so far this year, lost 1-0 but the Titans having been playing some teams on very close basis.

In the second game, Pennington put on their hitting and running shoes as they banged out 13 hits, enroute to a 11-1 win.

Mike Jones started for the Bobcats and was relieved by Rose who finished up. The two pitchers gave Twin Springs only four hits.

Bobby Ledbetter had three hits in three at bats, after knocking in the only run of the first game. He hit a long homerun with one man aboard. Jerome Dean, one of the Bobcats top hitters and RBI men had a double in the game that cleared the bases that were loaded.

Both teams played errorless ball in the game, after both only committed one miscue each in the first game.

Jonesville Sweeps Pair From Twin Springs

On Monday evening of this week, Jonesville took a pair of games from Twin Springs by scores of 10 1 and 7 6. The double victory keeps the Bulldogs hopes alive for the home site in the district tournament.

In the opener, Mike Crumley went all the way for the winners, tossing a two hitter and allowing only one run. He was supported by a big eight run second inning by Jonesville, with big hits coming from Joey Chadwell, Andy Rosenbaum and Lynn Livesay.

Mike Penley started for the Titans and was relieved by Joe Salyers. Penley took the loss. The Titans scored their only run in the second inning.

In the nightcap, Bill Lambert pitched the complete game with the Bulldogs scoring the game winning run in the seventh inning. Lambert had two homeruns in the game. Gary Oaks was two for three along with three runs batted in. Lynn Livesay also had two hits.

Mother's Day Staples

Flowers, candy and telephone calls are the staples of Mother's Day. The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia knows that from experience, and is prepared to handle hundreds of thousands of calls home to Mom on Sunday, May 10.

Telephone customers in the Old Dominion are expected to complete some 880,000 long distance calls on Mother's Day this year, according to R. R. Roberts, local C&P manager.

"Mother's Day is always one of C&P's busiest days because it means higher calling volumes and a change in normal calling patterns," Roberts said.

Because Moms live in all areas of the country, the normal number of calls to big cities are down, and more calls go to smaller towns on the holiday.

Horses were first tamed in Asia some 10,000 years ago, historians say.

National Hospital Week

"Looking Well into the Future" will be the theme of Lonsome Pine Hospital's celebration of National Hospital Week, May 10-16, 1981. "The 1981 National Hospital Week theme fittingly describes the commitment of our Hospital staff to improving the future health of our community," said Tom Rice, hospital administrator. "We devote our fullest resources to providing the best health care possible today. But we know that we have to look to the future to find even better ways to care as patients' and the community's need change," he said.

A few of the ways Lonesome Pine Hospital is caring for the community's future include presenting childbirth classes for expectant parents; sponsoring cancer screening clinics twice a year; and recently, distributing "Vial of Life" kits to interested citizens in the community; and administering a Respiratory Disease Program in Big Stone Gap and throughout seven counties in Southwest Virginia. During National Hospital Week, visitors may stop by exhibits in the Hospital main lobby and have their blood typed, blood pressure checked, try out incentive spirometry equipment, and pick up "Vial of Life" materials.

National Hospital Week is sponsored each year by the American Hospital Association and its approximately 6,000 member hospitals to foster better communication and understanding between hospitals and their patients, their employees, and the communities they serve.

Family Notes

By Betty Jean Moore

Virginia Tech Extension Service agents provide continuing education — programs, information, services — for everyone. Miss Moore is with the Lee County office at 346-1522.

Whether they are called frankfurters, wieners, or hot dogs, these sausages are familiar to almost everyone. Some say they originated in Frankfurt, Germany, while others claim it was in Vienna, Austria

Although the frankfurter may have been developed as early as the 13th century, it was not introduced into this country until the 1870's at Coney Island Amusement Park in New York City

The exact content and processing of frankfurters will differ from brand to brand, however, the United States Department of Agriculture has set certain limitations which distinguish each type of hot dog

The label "all meat" frankfurter means that it is made of all skeletal meats, usually a combination of beef and pork. "All beef" frankfurters obviously do not contain pork "All meat" and "all beef" frankfurters may have seasonings added but no fillers are permitted

If the product is labeled "Frankfurter," "Weiner," or "hot dog," it is made of a combination of meats and certain seasonings. Approved fillers such as milk powder and soy flour may be present in limited quantities

One other type of frankfurter is called "Kosher" These are all beef sausages that are produced under Rabbinical supervision Generally, these are seasoned with garlic

Hot dogs keep quite well In their original wrappers they may be kept for about two weeks in the refrigerator at 40° F or cooler Freezing is not generally recommended However, if necessary they may be frozen and kept for one to two months Longer freezer storage may cause flavor changes

Members of the Lee County delegation portray various types of Extension Homemaker Club members including "Miss Status-Seeker," "Miss Carry the Ball," "Miss Indecision" and "Miss Hide-Alot."

Ballard-Singer To Appear At Fox Festival

Dr. Kiell Napps

"The Appalachian Character at Home and Abroad" will be the theme of the fifth annual John Fox, Jr. festival to be held Wednesday, May 20, at Mountain Empire Community College in Big Stone Gap. No discussion of the Appalachian character would be complete without music and story-telling. So Dr. Kiell Napps, lecturer at Virginia Highlands Community College in Abingdon, will be on hand to present an entertaining program of ballads and tales for all ages

Dr. Napps, a native of Kentucky, has served as a minister of education at churches in Kentucky and North Carolina. Dean of Virginia Highlands Community College, and planner with the Mount Rogers Planning District.

Currently, Dr. Napps is supply pastor at Walnut Grove Presbyterian Church in Bristol and lecturer in human services, psychology, and sociology at Virginia Highlands. His involvement in Southern Appalachian culture studies includes teaching courses in Appalachian culture, oral folklore, and regional problems and institutions at Virginia Highlands, and also presentations to local civic and school groups.

Dr. Napp is well-known throughout the area for his programs of ballad-singing, in which he accompanies himself on the three-stringed dulcimer, and his story-telling.

There will also be more music on the program, as a bluegrass and old-time music and dancing show will be presented by Rounder Recording artist Jack Tottle, Kieth Sims, Rita Quillen, and the Rye Cove Cloggers. Their performance will begin the festival activities at 9:30.

Two other distinguished scholars in the field of Appalachian culture will be on hand for the festival. Dr. Robert Higgs, author of Voices from the Hills, will present a humorous program on "Sut Lovingood - Appalachian Trickster". Poet A. L. Mitchell, registrar at Emory and Henry, will read from his book Collected Poems.

A subscription luncheon will be held at the John Fox, Jr. home at 12:30. Reservations must be made with Debbie Kindle, 523-2400, ext. 231.

For more information, contact festival director, Dr. Carolyn Rogers, at 523-2400, ext. 242.

Veterans Administration

Q -- If a veteran with a Veterans Administration National Service Life Insurance policy selected monthly payments for settlement of his insurance proceeds to his beneficiary, can the beneficiary select a lump sum payment instead?

A No The law provides that a lump sum settlement will only be available to a beneficiary if specifically selected by the insured This is true even if the insured fails to make any selection of payment option

Q -- If a veteran dies before a home loan guaranteed by the Veterans Administration is repaid, will the VA pay off the balance?

A No The surviving spouse or other co borrower must continue making payments. However, mortgage life insurance is available from private companies.

Q -- My husband died while he was a patient in a Veterans Administration medical center. Will the VA help with the expenses of bringing him home for burial?

A Yes. If a veteran dies while a patient in a VA medical center, transportation expenses to the place of burial will be paid by VA.

Q -- What will happen to the monies I have contributed to the Veterans Educational Assistance Program if I die while on active duty?

A The law provides that unused contributions will be refunded to the beneficiary designated under the veteran's Servicemen's Group Life Insurance policy if he is so insured. Otherwise, the funds will go to the veteran's estate

Keokee News

By Eula Clarkston

Next Sunday, May 10th is Mother's Day, and everyone should remember their mother on this day.

The founder of Mother's Day was Anna M. Jarvis, a lonely spinster who was deeply sentimental. She started the Mother's Day observance on the second anniversary of her own mother's death, May 9, 1907 She invited a few friends to her home for a memorial service.

Miss Jarvis later wrote to legislative officers of nations and states urging the adoption of the day legally. Finally her sentimental letters won over President Woodrow Wilson. In 1914 he proclaimed the second Sunday in May as a "Flag holiday", honoring the nation's mothers.

Miss Jarvis fought in vain against the commercialization of the day.

She died at age 84, on November 24, 1948 in a quiet Sanatarium in West Chester, Pa., following a long illness. She was partially deaf and unhappy in her last years...

On this Mother's Day, 1981, don't forget to say, "I love you Mom," by act or deed and you will be glad you did.

Dear Editor:

In cooperating and re gard to R.O. Mosley's letter to the editor concerning county wheel taxes for automobiles. I'm 100% percent in agreement with him. We pay taxes on our cars when we buy them, and also pay taxes on every thing we buy for them. This thing should be voted on by the people and not just a few people, that is trying to make a name for themselves and get a pat on the back.

If I'm not mistaken that was the reason the others were voted out.

If I'm thinking right I don't believe that people will leave their car parked in the drive way to rust down, just because a couple of guys brought it up at a meeting.

Another thing, my car is a personal thing to me, just like a watch or a pocket knife. We are all licensed drivers with tags, state sticker, insurance, and we pay dearly for ever mile we drive. I ask the Lee County Supervisors to stick with their campaign rhetoric, and be honest with us taxpayers. Taxes have been raised about 58% percent and more. We went along with that but don't go too deep in it, people are barely making ends meet as it is, for there could be a tax revolt, and I pray, don't let this happen, with more taxes until this County recovers a little from inflation and jobless workers.

You as the board may have to cut down your staff at the courthouse and spend more wisely. So get your heads together.

Thanks.

Ponderin' And Putterin'

Today has certainly been a beautiful day to work in the garden, warm with a hint of rain in the air. I'm sure everyone has noticed there seems to be more gardens this year, I don't know if this means people are becoming more industrious or being starved to it. Nothing brings more enjoyment than planting a small seed in the ground and then reaping the eventual windfall of nature's bounty. Of course, during that time you'll undoubtedly pray for it to either rain or stop raining, battle insects and last but not least try to outwit some of nature's finest thieves. Mr Groundhog and Mr. Rabbit. I'm sure each of us has a tried and true method. A few I've heard are as follows. 1. That both hate mothballs in a garden. Scatter a few over your garden to discourage them. Add more when it rains. 2. Place jars filled with water in your garden. They're not supposed to like the reflections when the sun shines. 3. Talcum powder works to keep the rabbits off your plants when lightly dusted on and around. Flea beetles don't like it either.

It's also time to begin setting your tomato plants out to get an early start. If you have a fireplace, mix the ashes into the soil around your plants. Since they still need some protection from Jack Frost a good idea is to remove the top and bottom from a coffee can. (the 2 lb. ones with the plastic lids). Place the can over your plant — step firmly on the can to set it into the ground. At night, pop the lid on to protect it. Be sure to plant some basil (rhymes with dazzle) with your tomato plants. The herb is helpful in repelling worms and flies, remember when you sow it that early Greek and Roman physicians believed it would thrive only if it were sown while shouting and cursing. I believe yelling loudly would be alright. But the eastern opinion of the herb is quite different, it is believed that a home built where basil flourishes will be safe from all harm, thus giving us a plant with a split personality.

The tomatoes are supposed to improve in taste, texture and growth.

Remember in planting your garden that onions like carrots but don't put cabbage near your strawberries. They just don't like each other. According to the Farmers Almanac "A misty May means a hot June and a good harvest". So lets keep our fingers crossed.

Letter

Dear Editor:

On Thursday, I introduced legislation in the Senate that would effec tively repeal federal regu lations for "adverse effect wage rates" requiring American farmers to pay higher wages to temporary foreign agricultural work ers than they do to domes tic farm labor.

Similar legislation has been submitted in the House by the farmer's watchdog in Congress, Rep. Dan Daniel (5th, Va.).

In years past, many American farmers, including those in Virginia, have hired foreign nationals at existing minimum wage rates to harvest crops. They have taken this action because many domestic farm workers do not desire to work in certain jobs.

The Labor Department established the adverse effect wage rates for foreign farm labor through regula tion rather than through legislation, which I find most disconcerting.

The 1981 adverse effect wage rate, set on March 27 of this year, is $3.81 an hour a hefty 30 cents more than the rate for last year, and 46 cents more than the minimum wage, which Congress set at $3.35 an hour, effective January 1.

Virginia's entire con gressional delegation and a broad cross-section of Vir ginia's farmers have vigorously opposed these regulations. It is clear that, should they remain intact, legal foreign agricultural labor in the United States would have a higher minimum wage than many domestic workers.

The intent of the regulations evidently is to induce the American farmer to hire domestic agricultural labor at the standard mini mum wage rather than to "import" farm workers. The inducement is the requirement under the federal regulations that the farmer must pay the alien workers more

In other words, the farmer must pay a "penalty" in higher wages for hiring foreign workers.

That puts the farmer in a "no win" situation. Be cause he cannot get enough domestic farm laborers to harvest his crops, he is forced to use foreign agricultural workers at the higher pay rate, creating a serious economic hardship in his efforts to produce the highest quality and quantity of commodities at reasonable prices to the consumer.

These regulations are a problem not only for the American farmer. They also artificially drive up the cost of food at the supermarket for every American household, and they create some disadvantage for the United States, because of higher food prices, in international markets.

The irony is that temporary foreign farm workers are the only class of imported labor for any job that must, under federal regulations, be paid higher wages than domestic workers.

The regulations establishing these adverse effect wage rates are unconscionable and must be abolished. The Warner-Daniel legislation, if approved by Congress and signed by the President, would pro hibit setting wage rates for foreign farm workers through regulation. That authority belongs with Congress.

The American farmer can feed the world, but only if the federal government gets out of his way.

Yours sincerely,
John W. Warner

Getting Down To Business About Government Paperwork

Giant corporations often make headlines with their complaints about government regulation – how required paperwork and red tape increase business costs, prices, and headaches.

To this, the small business owners in our community, with millions of others across the country, can add a loud and vigorous "Amen!"

The fact is, government regulations fall just as hard on small businesses as on big firms. Researchers for the U.S. Small Business Administration found that 103 Federal agencies require small businesses to fill out at least one form. Add to that the paperwork for state, county, and local governments. In all, SBA estimates that it costs small businesses $12.7 billion annually to answer more than 7.3 billion questions on 850 million pages of forms.

May 10-16 is Small Business Week, a perfect time for the small business owners in our community to take stock of all the regulations and forms that make it harder to do business.

Special Scholarship Program Offered

A special scholarship program for high school juniors is being offered again this year by Lynchburg College in Lynchburg, Va. The program is based upon participation in a one week summer college short course to be given July 26-31.

On the basis of the student's work in the Summer course and high school records, Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test scores and recommendations, he or she may be awarded a four year Hopwood Scholarship in the amount of $1750 a year toward tuition at Lynchburg College, effective upon completion of the student's senior year in high school. Up to 20 per cent of the participants will be chosen for the Hopwood Scholarships by a special committee appointed by Dr. Carey Brewer, president of Lynchburg College.

High school students who will be seniors in 1981-82 and are currently in the upper 20 percent of their classes are eligible to apply for the summer short course.

If a student is selected, he or she will be given free tuition for the course chosen by the student from the 18 courses offered, and upon successful completion of the course, will receive one semester hour of college credit.

The high school student's only fee is $40, an amount which covers the cost of registration and a portion of the cost of room and board. Tuition and the remainder of the room and board costs will be paid for through the T. Brady Saunders Scholarship Fund.

Students live in the College dormitories and eat in the Student Center cafeteria.

The deadline for application for the summer college short course is May 29, and students will be notified of acceptance or non-acceptance by June 15.

Requests for further information about the program or applications to the program should be addressed to Dean of Lynchburg College, Lynchburg, Va. 24501.

Is Sex Discrimination Wrong? Case

Albert, a thirty-five year old man, had stood before the judge and been convicted. The law he was found guilty of violating was the state law making desertion and non-support of a wife a criminal act. Albert had been married to Rosemary for seven years when he just "walked out." He simply left. There were no children of the marriage.

Albert appealed his conviction. There was no question as to the facts, and even Albert admitted that under this law he was guilty, but his contention was that the law was old and discriminatory since it applied only to men and not to women. "This law is sex discriminatory," Albert argued to the appellate court, "and my conviction should be overturned. It violates the State's Equal Rights Amendment." Should Albert win his appeal?

Decision

Yes. The statute under which Albert was convicted was passed in 1896 and, as the court pointed out, "accurately reflected the cultural state of the nineteenth century." At common law, a husband had long had a duty to support his wife and furnish necessaries to her and his children. Most often, a woman, if deserted by her husband, would be a ward of the State. She would be a charge or burden on the community at large. The criminal sanction was enacted to place the burden of support on the lawful breadwinner and not on the neighbors and fellow villagers. A man, on the other hand, deserted by his wife, was not contemplated as one who would become a financial burden upon the community.

"However," the court concluded, "over the more than eight decades following the promulgation of this law, that view has been subjected to a series of violent cultural shocks. The adoption of the Equal Rights Amendment by this State was intended to, and did, drastically alter traditional views of the validity of sex based classifications."

Based on a decision of the Maryland Court of Special Appeals.

May 21 Public Hearing To Focus On Upgrading Part Of U.S. 58

A public hearing to discuss the location corridor of a proposed project to upgrade a four-mile section of US Route 58 in Lee County will be held at 7:30 p.m., May 21, in Jonesville High School.

At 7:00 p.m., May 20, the night before the hearing, representatives of the Virginia Department of Highways and Transportation will be at the school for an informal review of available information. The school is located on Route 58 near the west corporate limits of Jonesville.

The proposed project would continue a long range plan for upgrading Route 58 in Lee County. It will begin on the western end of the intersection with Secondary 621 near Smiley, about 11 miles west of Jonesville, and proceed easterly to tie into a recently upgraded section of Route 58 near the intersection with Secondary 658.

On the west, the project also would tie-in with an improved segment of Route 58. It would close a gap in a series of improvements already made on Route 58.

At the public hearing, engineers of the Department of Highways and Transportation will present two possible location corridors for consideration.

Line I, which more closely follows the location of existing Route 58, would begin near the intersection with Route 621 and would immediately be relocated to improve a sharp curve in the existing roadway. It would be placed north of and parallel to Hardy Creek, running behind Hardy Creek Church before tying back into the existing road 600 feet east of the church.

Near the intersection with Secondary 660, Line I again would be placed on new location north of the existing road. This would eliminate a sharp curve just west of the intersection with Route 660. Line I would overlap the existing road northeasterly except for some realignment at the intersection with Secondary 790. After this intersection it would follow the existing road easterly until just before intersecting with existing Route 58. There, Line I would be relocated to the west to replace part of the existing road that consists of several sharp curves and has other safety hazards.

Line II would be entirely on new location. It would leave the improved section of US 58 and immediately take a northeasterly course north of the exist

Lee Symbolism

Better Late, Than Never

By Diane Herndon

Ann Rosenbaum is a good sport and even though she's only 11, has displayed a remarkable maturity.

For two consecutive years, Ann has been a participant in the Lee County 4-H beef project showing heifers both years.

Despite careful attempts by this reporter to avoid omitting any youngsters names or pictures from newspaper publicity, for two years straight Ann Rosenbaum's name and/or picture have been left out.

Once is understandable since we're all human and subject to error.

But twice is something else – almost inexcusable and certainly deserving of some explanation ... which was made to Ann and her parents, Jim and Barbara Rosenbaum.

And being the good and sensible people they are — all three understood, especially Ann.

So Ann, thanks for acting mature about it all and next year, we'll try to do better.

Head Start Acquires Unit For Woodway

The Lee County Head Start program will increase its number of permanent centers with the recent acquisition of a surplus mobile unit which will house the Elk Knob Head Start Center.

Prior to being given this mobile unit through the National Forestry Service, Coeburn area, Woodway area youngsters were part of three home based centers in the county with designated teachers visiting house-to-house on a routine basis.

The 12 foot by 60 foot mobile unit will have to undergo extensive renovation before it can meet Head Start regulations, according to Project Director Sam Cecil, which will hopefully be completed for use in the coming school term.

Located near Elk Knob School, the unit must be leveled, anchored and underpinning installed as well as water, sewer and power hook ups. The interior, likewise, will need a complete overhaul, he said, most of which will be done on a voluntary basis by local parents and citizens.

Head Start will be providing the materials, Cecil said, but most of the labor will have to be from volunteers.

And according to Mrs. Sandy Willis, Woodway Head Start teacher, and Mrs. Frances Ricketts, Head Start Policy Council, it won't be difficult finding willing volunteers as the Woodway folks have been working hard all along to try and get a permanent center. Many have already volunteered their services to help so that their children can benefit from a modern, safe and convenient facility this fall.

Cecil said there are currently about 15 youngsters enrolled in the Elk Knob home based program and that figure should increase to as many as 25 once the permanent center is in operation.

Board Hires Local Attorney To Collect Back Taxes

In a fairly routine session, the Lee County Board of Supervisors, with the exception of absent Supervisor Frank Freeman, voted unanimously to retain Attorney Birg Sergent to collect delinquent real estate taxes on a three-year basis - 25 percent of the amount he collects for a first-year fee; 20 percent collected as a second year fee; and 20 percent collected for a third-year-fee.

It is understood that Sergent will be collecting those taxes that are delinquent more than 3½ years, on those records in the Circuit Court Clerk's office. Those delinquencies remaining in the Treasurer's Office, will continue to be collected by the Treasurer.

Sergent was also appointed to a three year term on the LENOWISCO Board, effective July 1, replacing Ralph Miner.

In other action:

Board members passed two resolutions, the first requesting provision of funds for the recreational area of Cumberland Bowl Park and the second, to enter the Thomas Walker Fire Department road into the secondary road system.

Wednesday, June 3, 9 a.m. was set for the annual road hearing.

Supervisors voted to have drafted a county fire code for review and later consideration for adoption of a county fire code ordinance.

The Board agreed to transfer $300,000 from the general fund to the school operating fund by June 1.

Elk Knob Elementary Burgularized

According to Deputy Marvin Radcliff of the Lee County Sheriff's Department, Elk Knob Elementary was burglarized on Wednesday, May 6, some time after 4 p.m.

Forced entry was gained through breaking some cafeteria windows. Listed as stolen were assorted food items, primarily meat and hotdogs, about half of which was later found by authorities in a trash receptable about 100 yards from the school.

The incident was reported by the school's cook upon discovery the next day. No suspects have been located at this time, Radcliff said.

HELP Presents Consolidation Plan

Members of the local HELP committee discussed and adopted a 12-page proposal at their regular May 11 meeting which calls for the consolidation of Jonesville and Flatwoods schools.

The proposal, which was to be presented at the May 12 regular meeting of the Lee County School Board, seeks to "utilize resources more efficiently, eliminate a serious hazard to our children, promote better educational opportunities for our children and save Lee County more than $100,000," the report states.

A summary of the proposal urges that Jonesville High seventh graders be moved to Flatwoods Combined School; Jonesville Elementary grades four, five and six to Flatwoods; and move Flatwoods High School students to Jonesville High School.

Among the benefits listed in the proposal are a distributive education program for Flatwoods High students, football for Flatwoods High students, a band program for elementary and secondary students, music and art classes for all students could be made available, eliminate overcrowding at Jonesville Elementary. Jonesville Elementary students would enjoy the play

Fish Story With New Slant

By Diane Herndon

Most fish stories get bigger the more frequently they're told. This fish story just gets more complicated.

As Tyler Rasnic, local game warden, explains it, Lee County has three trout streams (the North Fork of Powell River, Hardy's Creek and Martin's Creek) that have been regularly stocked in all his years of working with the Division of Game and Inland Fisheries. Now on sick leave and planning to retire June 30 from his post, Rasnic says he has been helping stock these streams since 1949.

A master trout stocking plan devised by experts on the Commission of Game Inland Fisheries in Richmond is passed down to local personnel who in turn carry out the stocking orders. Apparently, as with most state offices, there is a fairly long chain of command.

Normal trout stocking times are pre season (trout season opens April 11, the first week in May and then usually several times more in the summer months.

As usual, local wardens closed trout fishing last week, May 4-8, to restock and then re-opened on Saturday, May 9.

This year Rasnic encountered a snag, however. While restocking in the North Fork of Powell River, Rasnic and a fellow worker were advised by an irate local citizen to stop restocking as the Governor of Virginia, John Dalton, had promised local Republican Ronnie Montgomery that no streams in Lee County would be stocked as long as the coal strike continues. Montgomery is part owner of several tipples on State Route 606 along the North Fork.

Rasnic said that he had received no orders from his supervisors not to restock and this also was the response from Capt. Ernest Yeatts, district supervisor in Abingdon.

Richard Cross, acting executive director of the Commission, said from his Richmond office that at one point it had been discussed within the Dept. of Commerce and Resources not to restock the North Fork of the Powell because of the strike, but a final decision had been made to follow the master plan as scheduled.

Cross said that the only deviation from restocking as set forth in the master plan was that Hardy's Creek had received 2,500 more fish during April than scheduled due to the low level of water in many of Virginia's streams and the over supply of fish at the hatcheries.

He said he knew of no other order from the Governor's office concerning omitting Lee County from the restocking and that Lee County's restocking schedule left out of the Commission's April 30 newsletter was an inadvertent error.

V.V. Stevens, foreman at the Marion Fish Cultural Station from where the fish are shipped, said that he did understand there was a no stock order for the North Fork of the Powell, but he believed it due to the low level of water in the stream.

Rasnic is angry because Lee County seems to have been singled out and many people who have already bought fishing licenses would be greatly disappointed if such a "no stock" order had been given in

Lee County Community Hospital Observes National Hospital Week

Lee County Community Hospital will be involved in the observance of National Hospital Week, May 10-May 16. Various activities have been planned for this purpose. On Wednesday, May 13, the hospital will honor all employees with refreshments being offered from 2:30 p.m.-3:30 p.m. This is an opportunity for the hospital to acknowledge the excellent day to day care and services provided by the employees.

Visitors and the public are cordially invited to come to the hospital on Thursday, May 14, to view some of the latest equipment, including an isolette, respirator, and heart monitor. Two tables will be set up in the hospital waiting room from 10:00 a.m.-12:30 p.m., and from 1:00 p.m.-2:30 p.m. when the student nurses from the one who is interested in having this done. Various health informational pamphlets will also be available for the public.

On Friday, May 15, the Lee County Community Hospital Auxiliary members will be honored with a tea to be held in the hospital dining area from 2-3 p.m. Also in recognition of the many hours and many jobs well done in the past year, every auxiliary member on duty during this week will receive a corsage from the hospital.

During the past year, the hospital has added several additional services. These include the capabilities of brain wave tracings known as EEG's; Holter monitor, which is a portable ongoing tracing of the heart during normal activities; a new Physical Therapy department which offers a variety of treatments such as walker training, hot packs for aching muscles, whirlpool and diathermy.

All of the personnel assigned to the unit have received advanced training in the latest coronary care techniques. Dr. Art VanZee is the Medical Director of the Unit.

The hospital has a full time Social Worker, Mr. Mark Calhoun, who is available to assist in the planning and placement of patients in nearby nursing homes. He also advises patients of the availability of various types of financial assistance programs in our community, as well as assists in planning for follow up home health care through our local health department.

The hospital has been very fortunate in adding to the Medical Staff several highly qualified physicians. Dr. Shafi Sultan, a general surgeon, came from Bridgeport, Connecticut. He assists Dr. Hossein Faiz, who is Chief of Surgery. Dr. Chanda Varandani, whose specialty is Pediatrics, came to this hospital from Queens, New York. Dr. Jai Varandani, also from Queens, New York, has joined the medical staff in the capacity of Internist.

The Administration and the Governing Board of Lee County Community Hospital would like to invite the public to share with them in this observance of National Hospital Week.

LCEA Honors Retiring Teachers

Five retiring Lee County educators were honored at the May 7 spring meeting of the Lee County Education.

Retiring are Charles Herbert Herndon, Elk Knob, May Kaye Taylor, Jonesville High School, Alice Jones, Pennington Elementary, Thelma Stewart, St. Charles, and Austin Bays, Lee County Vocational School. All were honored with special engraved plaques from the Association.

According to outgoing LCEA president, Jack Spiers, attendance at the spring meeting was much improved in comparison to previous years.

Delivering his final remarks to the assembly, Spiers told Lee County teachers "to seek out and support friends in the political arena." Quoting a Georgia educator, Ruby King, Spiers said, "Be good to your students - some may grow up to be politicians."

Recalling his previous experiences serving as LCEA president as "rewarding," Spiers further illustrated how teachers can and have changed things for the better by speaking out and utilizing channels available to them.

Guest speaker of the evening, Mrs. Cathy Justus, UNISERV representative from Cumberland Mountain Unit, District I, explained the operating structure of the United Teaching Profession (UTP) from the local level to the national

She stressed that UTP, to which all but 14 Lee County teachers belong is a powerful force over two million strong on the national level. Teachers from this county have two votes on the District I Council and send 16 delegates to the state VEA convention. Two delegates participate in the NEA (National Education Association) convention.

Also during the meeting LCEA members elected offices. Taking office as president June 1 will be Lawrence Scott. Elected to other offices were Faye Stickland, president-elect; Henrietta Hoskins, secretary; and Wandaleen Adams, treasurer.

Mistrial Possible In Webb Case?

Local Commonwealth's Attorney Cynthia Kinser, prosecutor in the murder for hire case of Bernard Chester Webb, is considering seeking a mistrial based on reports that several members of the jury that acquitted Webb may have been biased.

According to weekend newspaper reports in the Richmond Times Dispatch one of the men on the jury had posted bond for the defendant's girlfriend earlier this year while she was awaiting sentencing on a conviction of attempting to help Webb escape from jail

Another woman juror was reportedly told by her husband that he would divorce her if she voted to convict Webb, and another female juror received an indirect death threat when she was subpoenaed for jury duty

The six woman, six man jury was dismissed Thursday after finding Webb innocent in the killing of Georgia businessman David Hill

The jury deliberated less than four hours before clearing Webb, who could have received the death penalty or life in prison on the capital murder charge if he had been convicted.

A business associate of the victim, R.L. Herring, faces a first degree murder trial next month in Hill's death.

Lee County Circuit Court Judge Samuel Coleman III learned about the incidents involving the two women during the trial, but chose not to confront them for fear he would prejudice them Kinser said.

Kinser said the trial proceeded despite her objections to keeping the women on the jury and the presence of two alternate jurors who could have taken their places.

The posting of the bond involving the male juror and Webb's girlfriend was not learned until the jury had begun deliberation, Kinser added

Board members, after coming out of executive session, agreed to hire Danny Catron, a CETA employee, at the landfill. In the same motion, was the request to move the Building Inspector's office into the space formerly occupied by CETA in the County Administrator's Office.

Also included in the motion was the hiring of Jill Miles as secretary and receptionist to the County Administrator, Accountant, Virginia Housing Section 8 and the Building Inspector. Mrs. Anita Smith, formerly in the Building Inspector's office, will be transferred to the Treasurer's Office and the Electoral Board is to be moved into the space vacated by the Building Inspector ing road. It would arc southerly near the intersection with Secondary 790 and proceed southeasterly to tie into the new section of Route 58 about seven miles west of Jonesville.

This segment of Route 58 consists of one lane in each direction, with pavement 20 feet wide and with narrow, crumbling shoulders. The proposed project would conform with other improvements on Route 58, providing a 24 foot roadway with two lanes in each direction, to be discussed later at a design hearing if a location corridor is approved.

Construction on the proposed project could not begin before late 1985, depending upon the availability of funds ground at Flatwoods; better teaching conditions will exist at Jonesville Elementary, course opportunities for all students could be expanded and overcrowded cafeteria conditions at Jonesville Elementary will be eliminated.

The proposal points out that consolidation of the two high schools would eliminate some teaching slots but that these teachers could hopefully be absorbed into the system through other routine retirements and resignations. The proposal estimates a savings of $116,764 in teachers salaries based on creation of 10 vacancies at an average teacher salary of $11,647.

Also from a financial standpoint, a better pupil-teacher ratio would be achieved from such a consolidation increasing the average class size

On the adjustment side of the picture, the proposal cites the necessity of rescheduling bus routes and moving expense. Correspondingly, social adjustments on the part of all students would be necessary and teachers would also have to be relocated. High school class sizes would increase and Flatwoods would lose its varsity sports identity.

No citizens from the Flatwoods Community were present at the HELP meeting

Under the HELP proposal, usage of the 1911 two story structure at Jonesville Elementary would be eliminated and grades one through three would be transferred to the auditorium building four through seven transferred to Flatwoods Combined School

The study also suggests moving one of the open classrooms in auditorium area behind the stage by eliminating the movable partition between the teacher's lounge and the learning disability classroom The furnace room, now being used as a classroom, could serve as a more private and convenient teacher's lounge

All kindergarten classrooms would remain in their present locations

The HELP proposal would relocate the multi handicapped classroom and learning disability classroom in the existing home economics building at Flatwoods Combined School

There would be sufficient space in elementary and high school buildings to accomodate grades one through seven. The agriculture building would not be utilized as a teaching classroom

The report concludes by pointing out that Jonesville High enrollment at end of February '81 was 366, Flatwoods High was 140, Jonesville Elementary seventh grade was 64, for a total of 570 students.

Jonesville's High School designed capacity is 586 according to a LENOWISCO Lee County school study. "The aforementioned savings to Lee County system and the advantages to the students more than justifies such an action of acceptance of this proposal by the Lee County School Board," the report concludes

In memory of Rev. Eugene Huff.

You Will Be Missed

You are missed our blessed one
We hated to see you go
Your face glowed like the sun
Oh how we loved you so.

We always looked for your smiling face
We knew you would always be there
Oh how you loved to sing Amazing Grace
Oh, how we always knew you would care.

You went up to heaven one Sunday morning in May
There evermore to reign
Oh, how you would love to say
There will be no more pain.

You have gone home now
You'll forever see God's smiling face
How he could love you so much, you knew not how
But you were accepted by his loving grace

We truly loved you as husband and dad
Oh, if only you knew how much
But now you are with the Master
Now his hand you can touch

Yes, you will be missed dearly
But we all have to trudge on
For one day we see oh so clearly
We will see you at God's throne

Following the luncheon Mrs. Aichel showed a film on the care and activities of the older citizens. Teen agers in Chicago had joined together in visiting, talking, making music, and dancing with the older persons and were gaining as much as they were giving. There was no generation gap there.

Mrs. Aichel presented Certifications of Appreciation to Mrs. Baumgardner and many others from Wise, Scott, and Lee Counties, and the City of Norton, for their continuing support of the program and services for the elderly. Each volunteer was pleased to receive this acknowledgement from Marilyn C. Pace, Executive Director of Mountain Empire Older Citizens, Inc. This was a "First" for this type of volunteer work. I believe people are becoming more aware of what they can do to help with programs such as this.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of little David Howe.

Oh, how I'd love for you to come and play for a while,
To hear your friendly laugh and see your sweet little smile.
But, God needed a special little angel for his very own.
So, nearly a year ago God called you home

Little Friend,

Back Checks Limited

People who delay applying for social security retirement or survivor benefits for some time after they become eligible may be affected by a change in the law which took effect March 1, Bob Kelly, social security manager in Norton, said recently.

Under the new law, back payments can be made only for up to six months before the month of application, Kelly said. Under the old law, back checks could be received for up to 12 months before the month of application.

The change generally applies to retired workers over 65 and their dependents, and to widows, widowers, and dependent parents of deceased workers who are themselves over 62.

People who apply for reduced benefits retired workers and their dependents under 65 and widows and widowers under 62 cannot generally get benefits for months before the month of application. This part of the law was not changed.

People who apply for benefits because they are disabled workers, adult children, widows and widowers are not affected by the new law. They can still get benefits for up to 12 months before the month they apply if they are found eligible.

More information about applications for social security benefits can be obtained at the Norton social security office, located at 630 Park Avenue. The telephone number is 679-2404.

Ponderin And Putterin'

We're finally getting a rain on the mountain that is long overdue. It seems no matter how much you water anything it is just not the same as God's own nourishment. Of course, that means the weeds will grow as well as the garden. Working in the garden I don't mind - weeding - I mind. There is a quote by Richard C. Cabot that I believe pertains to me. "Work is doing what you now enjoy for the sake of a future which you clearly see and desire. Drudgery is doing under strain what you don't now enjoy and for no end that you can now appreciate." So if I expect to gather anything - Work and Drudge I must.

Lettuce and onions seem to be flourishing everywhere. Lettuce is a heavy feeder, particularly of calcium and phosphorous. But if everyone is like me they throw some fertilizer on the ground, sow it, and let it take care of itself. Now onions are different - onions to me are a cure-all. In the flu epidemic of 1918 those who ate lots of onions showed a great resistance to the disease. Of course, the reason for that could be no one would come near them. Onions and carrots like to grow near each other. That serves a dual purpose. It will repel the onion and carrot fly. Onions also like to grow with beets. I have also been told onions are good seasoned with tarragon or thyme.

Do I sound like a conceited expert, well If I do I had the wind knocked out of my sails this week. I purchased three burpless cucumbers to grow for the first time, planted them at the end of a patio row. I sincerely believed at the moment they hated me and committed suicide. They died a very quick death. I then found out potatoes and cucumbers don't like each other, so naturally I'm blaming the potatoes.

Well, I'm thinking about adding catnip to my herb garden. In case some of you folks don't know catnip. It's a perennial with leaves that are almost heart shaped and grey-green in color. It stands between two and three feet high. The stems and leaves are coated with downy hairs. The flowers range from light purple to pale pink. You may strip the leaves off the plant or harvest the entire plant. Dry your catnip in the shade — never in the sun — You must be careful not to lose the oil from the leaves. Two or three days are required. I offered no herb or any other folklore treatment as a substitute for medical treatment. If someone is ill they should see a doctor If you would like to try an herb tea occasionally, I will include them. Catnip tea has several uses. It's supposed to be a sedative, to calm nerves and with a little honey added a good throat soother. The tea should be steeped never boiled. Pour a pint of boiling water over a half cup of broken stems and leaves. Let stand several minutes, strain. You can combine catnip leaves with peppermint and chamomile for a good tasting tea Last but not least, if you don't want to use it as an herb, crush it up fresh and give it to your cats They're wild about it.

Fluorescent Lights Saves Energy

One energy saving recommendation is to make greater use of fluorescent lights in suitable areas in homes.

Fluorescent lights are more efficient than incandescent, said Virginia Tech Extension specialist in home furnishings, Katherine L. Habel. They give more lumens per watt.

One 40-watt fluorescent tube gives more light than three 60 watt incandescent bulbs. A 40-watt fluorescent lamp gives off 80 lumens per watt; a 60 watt incandescent gives off only 14.7 lumens per watt.

The specialist also suggested concentrating light on work and reading areas and for safety

Fox Festival Features Scott County Musicians And Cloggers

Activities at the John Fox, Jr. Festival on Wednesday, May 20, at Mountain Empire Community College in Big Stone Gap will begin at 9:30 a.m. with a program of mountain music and dancing.

Old time and bluegrass music will be provided by several popular Scott County musicians. Rounder recording artist Jack Tottle will demonstrate the superb mandolin playing that has gained him recognition as one of the best in the country

Frets magazine, a widely read publication in the music field, listed Tottle as one of the twelve most influential mandolinists in the country, along with legends Bill Monroe and Jesse McReynolds. His solo album "Back Roads Mandolin" and his book Bluegrass Mandolin by Oak Publications have made him well known among musicians everywhere

Brother and sister duo Kieth Sims and Rita Quillen of Hiltons will also be on hand. Kieth and Rita perform regularly at shows and festivals in the area, including the A.P. Carter Fold in Hiltons. Kieth is well known for his banjo playing in the old-timey "clawhammer" style. His skill earned him an invitation to the Smithsonian Folk Life Festival in Washington, D.C. in 1976 when he was the ripe old age of sixteen.

Since dancing is such an important part of Appalachian culture, Principal Floyd Sloan is bringing his popular Rye Cove Cloggers back to the Fox Festival this year to show off some fancy stepping. The group is composed of current or former students of Rye Cove Elementary School, ranging in age from 9 to 18. The dancers have performed all around the region, including a political rally at which Roy Acuff shared the stage. That performance earned them an invitation to the Grand Ole Opry stage.

At 10:30 there will be presentations by three distinguished scholars. Poet A.L. Mitchell, registrar at Emory & Henry College, will read from his Collected Poems. Dr. Robert Higgs, author of Voices from the Hills, will present a humorous program on "Sut Luvingood - Appalachian Trickster". Finally, a program of story-telling, ballads, and dulcimer music will be presented by Dr. Kiell Napps of Virginia Highlands Community College.

Family Notes

By Betty Joan Moore

Virginia Tech Extension Service agents provide continuing education — programs, information, services — for everyone. Miss Moore is with the Lee County office at 346-1522.

If you are an active gardener or raise a lot of flowers you will want to keep the following suggestions on your "to do" list.

Check your lawn mower height. For best results, most lawns should be mowed at a height of 1½ to 2 inches. Your grass needs to have long green leaves to provide food for a vigorous root system, and help the plants endure hot, dry weather.

Break off the old flavor heads from rhododendron and laurel. This will eliminate fruit and seed formation, and help promote vigorous growth of the shrubs.

Remove leaves of spring flowering bulbs after they have turned yellow and dried. Use them as mulch in the vegetable or flower garden.

Water newly planted shrubs and trees repeatedly during the summer to maintain an adequate supply of soil moisture.

Use lawn clippings as mulch in the vegetable and flower garden.

Softwood cuttings of many shrubs will root readily at this season.

Control insect pests for your garden before they cause serious damage. Use approved biodegradable pesticides, and follow the instructions on the package.

Stop cutting asparagus in late June after 8 weeks of harvest. Apply a liberal top dressing of 5-10-5 fertilizer, and apply a 1 inch mulch of sawdust, or lawn clippings.

Apply a sidedressing of fertilizer to sweet corn and leaf vegetables in your garden. Use 1 pound of 5-10-5 or ⅓ pound of 10-10-10 per 50 foot row. Broadcast between the rows, and scratch into the top inch of soil with a rake.

On Wednesday, May 6, the Spanish club, also held their monthly meeting.

Student Council Association elections were held on Friday, May 8. The many candidates running for an office in SCA campaigned hard during the week. On Friday the student body listened to the candidates' campaign speeches and then voted. Unfortunately, after all of the votes had been counted there could only be one winner for each office. The 1981 82 SCA officers are: President Tammy Reece; Vice-President-Trena Wampler; Secretary Melissa Fletcher; Treasurer Tracy Doyle, Historian Eva Quillen; Reporter-David Byington.

On Friday, the junior class had their Senior pictures taken for next year. The Senior class had their pictures taken in their cap and gowns.

What do Americans grow in their home gardens? The number one crop is tomatoes. After that in order of popularity it's onions, green beans, cucumbers, peppers, lettuce, radishes, carrots and peas.

According to the National Gardening Survey, three out of every four vegetable gardeners preserved some of their home-grown produce for fall and winter eating last year. Freezing was the number one method of preservation with canning not far behind.

MECC Seeks Craftsmen

Plans are already underway for the tenth annual Home Crafts Day at Mountain Empire Community College in Big Stone Gap.

Home Crafts Day, a day-long celebration of Appalachian culture featuring mountain music, dancing, and crafts, will be held on Saturday, October 10, this year. The festival has grown steadily over the years, with increasing numbers of craftpersons and musicians, as well as the general public, participating.

Due to the very limited space at the college, Home Crafts Day planners will be forced to screen potential craftpersons and limit the number in order to assure adequate facilities.

Past participants in the festival will automatically receive a letter and application form in the next few weeks. Those who have not been to Home Crafts Day before must write the college for an application form.

At this time, the committee will consider new applicants only for the following crafts: candlemaking; home remedies demonstration; storytelling, cooper (water buckets, churns); toy making; basket-weaving; antique gun collecting; weaving; rug braiding; latch-hook rug making (no kits); rag rug making; leather tanning; and whittling. Suggestions for other authentic mountain crafts are welcome.

Interested persons should write to: Lou Anne Burnett, Mountain Empire Community College, Drawer 700, Big Stone Gap, Virginia 24219.

For further information regarding this program please contact Monia Fleenor or Donna Mabe at 703 523 2400 Ext 210 or 211

Pennington High School Announces Health Careers Week 1981 — Outlook On The '80's

At the request of the Virginia Council's Health Careers Program, Governor John Dalton has proclaimed that May 10-16, 1981, shall be recognized as HEALTH CAREERS WEEK throughout Virginia. As it will also be National Hospital Week, hospitals across the State will open their doors to tours, career fairs and other programs for all these students and persons interested in health careers.

The guidance department at Pennington High School has recognized this special week by advertising various careers in the health field. Some of Pennington's career center managers, Vicki Clark, Kathy Green and Kimberly Ainders have hung posters in the school and announcements have been made about health careers over the p.a. system.

Join in the fun, and discover how you can find a meaningful and high-paying job in the future. Currently, health care is the Number One Employer in the United States. The Virginia Industrial and Occupational Employment Projections completed in 1974, state that Services, particularly in the field of health care, will account for the biggest portion of the total State employment in 1985. The counselors at Pennington High encourage interested persons to contact them for further career information.

A more thorough study done in 1980 predicts that there will be over 4,000 annual openings in the professional areas of Medical Work and Health Technology through 1982. Of these available positions, Nursing leads with an estimated 1,300 vacancies each year for Registered Nurses and 720 for Licensed Practical Nurses. From the first category of Medical Workers; Pharmacists, Physicians, and Therapists have over a hundred openings each year with Dentists and Dieticians following close behind.

In the second area of Health Technology, Dental and Laboratory Assistants, and X-Ray Technicians are in high demand. Another category in the health field is Nursing Assistance: over 1,600 nurse's aides or orderlies are needed a year.

With over 200 job classifications, there is something for everyone if you have artistic ability or a good business sense, if you work well with people or machinery, or if you enjoy medical research or teaching. The common denominator is that health professionals care about the well-being of the people in their community. They know that health and happiness go hand-in-hand.

The Health Careers Program is dedicated to providing for the health care needs of the future. Last year the Health Careers Program gave 135 lecture/slide presentations to over 17,000 students in schools throughout Virginia. If we haven't visited your school, let us know.

Remember HEALTH CAREERS CARE about you -- take advantage of the opportunities in your community during the annual HEALTH CAREERS WEEK.

For more information write: Health Careers Program, P.O. Box 12363, Richmond, VA, 23241.

The monthly meeting of the Lee County Head Start Policy Council was held on May 6, 1981 at the Lee County Public Library. Reports were given by the Virginia State Parent Policy Association delegates, Ms. Susan Baker and Ms. Frances Ricketts on their recent trip to Danville, Virginia.

Special guest of the day was Mr. Noel Guthrie, Psychologist from the Lee County School System. He gave an informative talk about his work within the program. It was followed by a question and answer period in which the parents had a chance to ask personal questions.

Next meeting will be June 2 at 10:00 a.m.

Interested in becoming part of the underground mining industry? Mountain Empire Community College's Mining Technology Program is now accepting applications for the summer program to begin on June 16, 1981 and the fall program to begin on September 28, 1981.

The six quarter certificate program offers classroom training and the possibility of two quarters of co-op training.

Keokee Mountaineers Score 9-2 Win Over Twin Springs

Keokee advanced in the district tournament on Monday of this week, when they eliminated Twin Springs 9-2.

Roger Morris used his pitching staff well, as he started Kevin Pennington, and then used Tim McElyea, Mickey Hubbard and Kip Phillips in that order.

Pennington was the winning pitcher, while Mickey Hubbard led the ten hit Keokee attack by going three for four, including the games only homerun. He had two runs batted in for the game.

Keokee now 15-2 on the year, scored in every inning except the fifth, with the second being the big inning when they scored three times.

Twin Springs closes the season at 1-14. They were limited to two runs on only two hits by the Mountaineers pitching staff. Twin Springs committed four errors in the game as did Keokee. The Titans started Kaylor, with Joe Salyer coming on in relief. Kaylor was charged with the loss. The Titans only win of the season was over Rye Cove, who was also eliminated on Monday by the Pennington Bobcats.

All area fans should go to Jonesville for the finals, and view the action, as two of the tournaments participants will travel to St. Paul next week for the regionals. All the teams need the fan support in their bid to bring home a state championship, so lets all get behind the two teams, whoever they are, and pull for them both in the upcoming regional tournament.

Keokee Tops Twin Springs Wins District Title

In the final game of the regular season for both teams, played on Tuesday of last week, Keokee topped Twin Springs by the score of 12-3 to lay claim to the Cumberland district crown.

Keokee 14-2 on the year and 13-1 in district play pounded Twin Springs pitcher Flanary for sixteen hits. Mickey Hubbard was 4 for 4 in the game, while Chig Davis and Tim McElyea smashed homeruns.

Kevin Pennington went the distance on the hill for Keokee in gaining the win. He allowed the Titans six hits and three runs. All three runs came in the fourth inning, and gave the Titans a 3-2 lead. The lead held up until the top of the sixth, when Keokee crossed the plate eight times. They scored two more runs in the seventh to make the final 12-3.

The loss dropped Twin Springs to 1-13 on the year. Their lone win was against Rye Cove.

The win by Keokee gives Roger Morris and his Mountaineers a ticket to the regionals regardless of how they do in the district tournament. The district tournament finals are being held today at Jonesville if weather permits. The tournament winner also advances to the regionals, and should Keokee win the tournament then the tournament runner-up goes.

Pennington Eliminates Rye Cove From Tournament 5-1

The Pennington Bobcats took their opening game of the tournament on Monday, May 11th, when they sent Rye Cove home for the year by beating the Eagles 5-1.

Gary Collier started on the mound for the Bobcats and finished, but needed a couple of relief stints from Gary Pendergraft to bail him out of jams.

In the third inning and Pennington leading 1-0, Collier issued two walks with two outs. Pendergraft who was playing shortstop was brought in to put out the fire. Pendergraft walked the first man he faced to load the bases, and then blew the ball by the Rye Cove hitter for the strikeout to end the inning. Collier came back at the start of the fourth inning and pitched until two more Eagle baserunners reached in the fifth with one out. Pendergraft was again called on by Bobcat coach Jack Rasnic, and he responded by striking out both hitters he faced to end the inning leaving the runners stranded at first and second base.

Pennington leading 2-0 in the fifth, got a three run homer from Bobby Ledbetter to up the score to 5-0. The homerun was one of two hits in two trips for Ledbetter who drove in four of the five runs. He also walked once in the game. Mike Reynolds drove in the first run of the game with a bunt. Reynolds was thrown out at first on the play. Mike later in the game got himself one of the seven hits by Pennington.

Rye Cove who finishes the season at 4-12, got its only run of the game in the sixth inning when Mike Bowen reached Gary Collier for a homerun that just cleared the right field fence. Scott Bowen went the distance for Rye Cove, and got the loss. His teammates made one error in the game while Pennington committed two.

Dryden started Ronnie Rhoten who was knocked out after the Bulldogs upped a 4-1 lead to 8-1 with four runs in the fourth inning. The tournament winner or runner-up, if Keokee wins, will advance to next weeks regional tournament at St. Paul, along with Keokee.

No matter who the two teams from the Cumberland district, making the trip to the regionals are, lets all get behind both and push for them to make it to the state tournament. Wise will undoubtfully be the regional favorite, but they could be upset on a given day.

Controlling High Blood Pressure

According to Dr G.C. Honeycutt, Jr., Director of the Lee County Health Department, approximately 530,000 Virginians, ages 18 through 79 have high blood pressure. "It is a major health problem," says Dr. Honeycutt, "because it is a significant contributing factor to the over 800,000 deaths nationwide due to heart attacks and strokes."

To combat the problem, Virginia established a program in 1977 with the expressed purpose of expanding high blood pressure control services in local health departments, and to stimulate the participation of volunteer and professional groups. The ultimate goal is to reduce the morbidity and mortality attributable to high blood pressure

Basically, the program strives to alert the public to the problems associated with uncontrolled hypertension and provides hypertensive patients with such services as periodic monitoring of blood pressure, follow-up, and dietary counseling. Considerable emphasis is placed on adherence to the prescribed therapy established by patients physicians

"High blood pressure cannot be cured, but it can almost always be controlled," says Dr. Honeycutt.

The four essential components to controlling high blood pressure are

1. Faithfully taking the medicine prescribed The pills won't cure high blood pressure, but they will help lower and control it. If the medicine is stopped, the blood pressure rises again

2. Avoid salt. Salt causes the body to retain excess fluid and increase the heart's workload Avoid salty foods like beer and ham Eat meals as they are served and put the table salt away

3. Avoid overweight. Too much body fat causes the heart to work harder than it should Physicians can prescribe the proper diet and exercise for overweight persons with high blood pressure

4 Don't smoke Smoking injures and hardens blood vessels and speeds up the pulse This puts extra stress on the heart and causes blood pressure to rise

"High blood pressure may be symptomless," says Dr Honeycutt. "You may feel perfectly well and still have high blood pressure It is important, therefore, to have your blood pressure checked on a regular basis. This is particularly true of blacks, as over 22 percent have high blood pressure compared to the 15 percent of whites affected."

The State Health Department is working with a number of health agencies, both public and voluntary, to enlarge the control effort For example, a contract with the American Heart Association, Virginia Affiliate, calls for the screening, the follow up of 20,000 persons in 1981 with emphasis on the high risk black male population between the ages of 17 and 44

However, Dr. Honeycutt emphasized the personal responsibility of the individual with high blood pressure

"We strongly believe that it is the patient who is ultimately responsible for following the treatment plan as prescribed by a physician.

Keokee News

By Eula Clarkston

There are many notable days in the month of May. As we turn back the pages of time most everyone of the older folks will remember when the War ended in Europe - V.E. Day, on May 8, 1945. Those who had loved ones fighting in the War in Europe were happy to hear about the victory in Europe. It meant that their sons, husbands, and daughters in service would be coming home again soon. Many American soldiers lost their lives fighting in the War to protect our Nation and they will never be forgotten.
Saturday, May 16, is Armed Forces Day. It is on this day we honor the Army, Navy, Air Force, and marine Corps. The soldiers who fought to keep the flag of red, white and blue flying over our Nation, the good old U.S.A., the land of the free and home of the brave.
To all the American soldiers we salute you on this Armed Forces Day, May 16, 1981.

Parris Recommends Holding The Line On Rates

TVA Manager of Power Hugh G. Parris recommended that TVA electric rates be held to their present levels through September despite added costs due to lack of hydro generation in the worst drought in the Tennessee Valley in 91 years.

"We're going to pinch the nickels and dimes. We've had some success in offsetting the effects of the drought, but we're going to have to have some more successes," he told the TVA Board in Knoxville.

In the fourth Quarterly Rate Review, Parris said all divisional operating budgets remained the same as in the February Rate Review

"Those items which are directly under the control of managers such as labor, materials, services, and supplies are within budget and some are down significantly," he said.

TVA Board Chairman S. David Freeman, in respondingto Parris' report, said, "I would say that this is a very favorable report on the cost-cutting effectiveness of this organization. It is an unfavorable report on the rainfall and on the Federal Government in Washington's ability to get the interest rate and the economy under control"

Despite the cost cutting efforts, the 1981 Power budget picture has worsened since February chiefly because the drought has continued, reducing the low cost hydro generation even more, and because high interest rates have persisted

An additional $15 million in interest charges is forecast for 1981.

When it doesn't rain and there is less water behind the TVA dams, the power system must run its coal-fired power plants more than planned which increases power costs.

Parris said hydro generation is 44 percent below normal, 60 percent below last year, and the lowest of record since 1944 when TVA was still building the dams and only had about a third of today's capacity completed.

"Despite the dismal hydro generation experience, we haven't lost our resolve to reduce power costs. Let's stick with our (present) rates and work at it," the Manager of Power told the TVA Board.

He said total revenues for fiscal year 1981 ending September 30 are now estimated to be $3,781 million, down $10 million from the February estimate, chiefly from a warmer than normal winter.

However, with increased coal-fired generation to make up for less lower cost hydro generation than expected, operating expenses were down only $2 million to $2,591 million. As a result, he said operating income is expected to be down an estimated $8 million to $1,190 million, but still sufficient to cover higher interest charges of $1,156 million.

Sunday School Lesson

A priest was a person divinely appointed to transact business with God for people. He performed the duties of his office by offering sacrifices and making intercession. On behalf of the people he went into the holy of holies to offer gifts and sacrifices, to preside over the services of the sanctuary, to explain the law, to decide legal controversies, and to bless the people in the name of the Lord.

Hebrews 4: 14-16

These verses remind God's children that Christ is their High Priest, that He is great in His person, position and power, and that He makes it possible for them to "receive mercy, and find grace to help in time of need."

Christ, our High Priest, is strong. He is strong enough to save amid all the perils of our pilgrim way. Christ is also sympathetic – concerned with our infirmities and helplessness. Moreover, He is sufficient for all our needs. His strength, sympathy, sinlessness, sufficiency, and supremacy combine to make Him worthy of our adoration, praise, and service. We should approach the throne of grace with lowly reverence, deep sincerity, unstaggering faith, devout joyfulness, enlarged expectation, and great boldness. Because Christ is able to help us in every difficult situation, we should come into His presence with full confidence that He will supply adequate help as the needs arise. It is through Christ that all of our needs are supplied.

Hebrews 5: 1-10

In any age there are certain basic and essential qualifications for a priest. One is that he must be a human being. Angels could not serve as priests because they were not "taken from among men." A priest had to have the experience of a man before he could be a representative of men. It was necessary for him to live in the midst of men and know their experiences before he could truly sympathize with them and meet their needs by bringing them to God.

It was also the function of a priest to offer sacrifices for the sins of people and to mediate between them and God. It was important that a priest have compassion on those who had become the victims of selfishness and waywardness. How wonderful to serve as a connecting link between God and people!

Another qualification for a priest was divine appointment. Man did not have the right to choose the priesthood but was required to receive his appointment from God. Therefore, he was not to use his appointment for the purpose of glorifying God.

"Strong crying and tears" are terms that express the fervency with which the Son of God, in the Garden of Gethsemane, offered up prayers and supplications to His righteous Father. How tragic was His sorrow and how terrible was His agony on that occasion! In answer to His prayers Christ obtained strength for His trials and sufferings. His obedience to the will of the Father was consummated on the cross, when He became the procurer of a perfect and eternal salvation for men.

The great purpose and end of the sufferings of Christ was our salvation for time and eternity. It is encouraging to know that the ministry of Christ on our behalf continues. Christ is pursuing His work as High Priest on behalf of believers today. Therefore, every Christian should avail himself of Christ's role as mediator by approaching the throne of grace when help is needed.

Social Security Payment Increase

Secretary of Health and Human Services Richard S Schweiker announced that Social Security and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments will increase automatically by 11.2 percent beginning with the July checks

This means that a retired worker under Social Security now receiving a benefit equal to the average monthly payment of $337 will get $374 a month in the July 3 check. An individual receiving the maximum federal SSI benefit of $238 will get $264 70 and a couple now receiving $357 will get $397.00, beginning with the July 1 SSI check

Under the law, Social Security and SSI checks increase automatically each year if the Consumer Price Index rises by 3 percent or more over a specified measuring period. Through this mechanism, the purchasing power of Social Security and SSI recipients is maintained despite inflation

The average monthly Consumer Price Index rose by 11.2 percent from the first quarter of 1980 through the first quarter of 1981, which is the measuring period for the 1981 benefit increase. This increase results in an automatic 11 2 percent cost of living increase

The secretary's statement followed the announcement by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the March CPI increase. Calculation of the benefit increase was, according to the law, based on the CPI for urban wage earners and clerical workers.

Supervisors Adopt County Decal Tax

Supervisors in a special May 13 meeting voted four to three to adopt a motor vehicle license tax ordinance which will help to insure collection of personal property taxes in Lee County.

Voting in favor of the measure were Supervisors Tevis Wilder, Sam Massingill, Bill Thomas and Roy Lucas; opposing the ordinance were Chairman Bascom Waddell, D.J. Barker and Frank Freeman.

During the course of the public hearing, a number of citizens were given an opportunity to speak for or against the ordinance before the actual voting took place. Some local citizens opposed to the decal questioned the fairness of administration of the ordinance, the constitutionality of personal property taxes and complained of the extra cost to be added to the already exorbitant amount it takes to operate an automobile legally.

Supporters of the measure asked how could personal property taxes be illegal if the majority, if not all of Virginia's counties had such personal property taxes, and that $5 for an auto decal should not prove to be too much of a financial hardship.

Proponents also said that they felt this decal method was a fair way of equalizing the responsibility of citizens in the area of payment of personal property taxes. One citizen who had recently moved from another part of Virginia which utilize such a decal tax said that the ordinance had worked most effectively for the

County Auto Decal Geared To Boost Tax Collection

By Diane Herndon

As the old saying goes, "There are only two things to be certain of in this life -- death and taxes."

The question of taxes has recently caused quite a stir among some Lee County citizens -- more specifically the May 13 adoption by local supervisors of an ordinance imposing a motor vehicle license tax. (See related story on this page.)

Under the provisions of the motor vehicle license ordinance, the term motor vehicle includes every automobile, truck, motorcycle, moped, motor scooter, trail bike or similar vehicle normally garaged, stored or parked within the County.

The cost of the tax, $5 for a decal per owner for the first vehicle and $1 for each additional vehicle, doesn't seem to be the primary complaint among local taxpayers. Rather, it's the condition that no county decal will be issued by the treasurer until adequate proof of payment of personal property taxes has been shown. This includes personal property taxes as much as five years delinquent.

Herein lies the rub for many folks as Lee County currently has collected only 44 percent of the assessed personal property taxes due on motor vehicles. In term of dollars, according to Treasurer Luke Jones, this amounts to $236,928 alone in motor vehicle personal property taxes uncollected.

Also falling under the category of personal property are mobile homes and in this classification a whopping 65 percent of the assessed taxes go uncollected or roughly $490,000.

Treasurer Jones, whose office will be issuing and collecting for the motor vehicle decal and tax, is somewhat concerned about the exact wording of the ordinance - whether the ordinance refers only to personal property taxes due on motor vehicles or, in fact, includes "all personal property" which would also encompass mobile homes.

County Administrator Odell Wilson insists the meaning of the newly imposed ordinance refers to "all personal property" including mobile homes unless, in those special cases, the mobile homes have been classified as real estate.

The ordinance, drafted by former County Attorney, Les Bailey, seems to pretty much follow the wording of the State Code relevant to such tax imposition the Code, likewise, never clearly stating "all personal property taxes."

Treasurer Jones indicated that perhaps an Attorney General's opinion might be in order so that his office would know definitely what it is supposed to collect.

In an effort to gain a clearer understanding of how other counties interpret similar decal ordinances, Jones contacted the treasurer of Pulaski County, which only for the first time this past year collected a motor vehicle license tax.

According to the Pulaski treasurer, their county used the decal issuance as a means of collecting all due personal property

Why Pay Your Taxes

By Diane Herndon

Several citizens at the recent public hearing on the motor vehicle license tax who were opposed to the adoption of a county decal ordinance raised a threatening, yet pertinent question -- "What happens if we won't pay our taxes?"

One way of answering this question is to simply scan the county's budget and see where all the tax dollars go? But to better understand the impact and potential effect such a widespread, "no pay" attitude could have on Lee County, maybe it would be easier to think in negative terms.

First of all, with no tax dollars coming in, our county would be hard pressed to operate its schools and in turn, we would be threatening our most valuable natural resource and the future leaders of our county - the children. What about the people who don't have children in school, why should they have to pay to support Lee County schools? Well, again much for the same reason -- today's

St. Charles Cafeteria Burglarized

Lee County Sheriff's authorities have arrested 22 year old Mike Ramey, St. Charles, in connection with the weekend break in of St. Charles Elementary School.

Two other suspects are also being sought for the May 17 breaking and entering of St. Charles cafeteria. Stolen from the school lunchroom were ground beef, corn dogs, orange juice, chicken and beef patties and chuck wagon patties valued at approximately $92.

The incident was reported by a night watchman at a neighboring coal mine and authorities were on the scene quick enough to cause the alleged robbers to leave behind the goods.

Investigating officers were Jarnigan, Presley and Janeway.

St. Charles is the most recent target of vandalistic break-ins. Elydale, Elk Knob and Jonesville High School having also been the sites of recent burglaries.

Authorities report no connection among the burglaries.

School Board members at their recent meeting voted to offer a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone involved in the Elydale, Elk Knob or Jonesville High School break ins.

Bobby McCoy: A Profile Of A Former Student

Editors Note: The following article is written by Bertha Whitehouse who was Bobby McCoy's first English teacher.

Robert G. McCoy. Bobby to me has a long memory. He declares that he can still see me and Mrs. Mattie Harris side by side walking the halls of the old Spotsylvania High School. From my English classroom he still hears "A word to the wise is sufficient." "Mend your speech a little lest you mar your fortune." "Procrastination is the thief of time", et cetera. And the grammar test was as easy for him as apple pie a la mode.

Bobby graduated from Spotsylvania High School in 1964 as an honor student; he lettered in football (quarterback), basketball and track for three years and in baseball he lettered four years. While coaches were singing of his superior athletic skills, I was singing of his academic ability.

After graduating from Spotsylvania H.S., Bobby received a football scholarship to Va. Tech; due to a dislocated shoulder which required major surgery, his career as a football player was limited but he went on to become the Southern Conference and Big Six hurdles champion, and led the Tech baseball team in hitting (or R.B.I.'s) for two years.

His first job was that of teacher and coach at James Monroe High School, Fredericksburg, in 1958-59, and in 1959-60 he served as teacher and coach at Spotsylvania High School. In 1960, Bobby and Alger Pugh went to Saltville in Southwest Va. to teach and coach. Alger remained one year but Bobby stayed for 13 years. During those years he served as teacher, coach, athletic director, assistant principal, principal and then superintendent. This is what I would call Experience with a capital E.

In 1973, Bobby became superintendent of schools in Lee County, Va. Lee is the "first" county that one enters when coming from the west. It is bordered by Kentucky and Tennessee, with the beautiful Cumberland Gap as its most landmark.

My former student was married in 1958 to the lovely Hilda Byrd Smith of Caroline County. They have two sons, Mac, 20, and Hunter, 18; both are good students and fine

Pennington Elementary Athletic Banquet

Featured speaker at the banquet was Randy Jenkins, University of Kentucky quarterback, who said if you don't study and make good grades you won't get to play sports . . . studying is most important. School Board Agenda Varied

The Lee County School Board in its regular May 12 meeting received individual copies of the HELP proposal for consolidation of Jonesville and Flatwoods High Schools, moving the fourth through the seventh grade students from Jonesville Elementary to Flatwoods Elementary and closing the two story building constructed in 1911.

The HELP representatives requested this action be taken for the coming school term. Superintendent Bob McCoy thanked the group for coming and commented that the proposal showed considerable work had gone into its preparation.

Also appearing before the School Board was Dryden parent, Tina Fowler, who showed slides to the members which pointed out the need for a small school bus to serve the route leading to her home and also, the necessity of rearranging the parking lot at Dryden School to better insure safe loading and unloading of school children.

In other action, School Board officials accepted the paint bid from Miner's Farm Store.

Approved an increase in mileage reimbursement from 185 to .20 cents per mile.

Approved giving non professional personnel a reasonable assurance that they would be employed for 1981-82.

Superintendent McCoy in his reports to the Board said that federal funding cutbacks are expected, but no decisions will be made in budgetary shifts until definite information is received. He again noted the critical financial state of most school cafeterias in the county which will necessitate some drastic action in the near future.

McCoy noted that supervisors had transferred $300,000 of previously approved cash appropriation and that they (supervisors) had tabled a recent School Board request to obtain an option on land between Jonesville and Flatwoods for purpose of constructing a high school.

(See related story of front page explaining ordinance and its application.)

In other action, supervisors voted to retain low bidder, Attorney Les Bailey for legal work concerning renewal of the bond anticipation notes. Bailey's fee, the only bid submitted, will be $40 an hour.

Supervisors also voted to extend the deadline of hearings of the Board of Equalization through June 5, 1981.

Board members, upon the recommendation of D. J. Barker, approved the following five year appointments to the Woodway Water Authority, effective May 17, midnight: Dan Pennington, Gary Fausnight, R.B. Pennington, and Ralph Cheek.

Why Pay Taxes

youth will be tomorrow's leaders and without an adequate education, they won't be able to make capable and logical decisions for the good of all the people.

In the second place, to whom would you turn if you were in need of food, jobless and had a family to take care of? Without local tax dollars, the Lee County Department of Social Services would help considerably fewer people struggling to rise above hard times and make their way.

Likewise, without local tax dollar input the local health department couldn't offer near the amount of free services to all residents as is possible now. And as County Administrator Odell Wilson explained it, through free services at the local health department, the entire direction of an individual's life can be kept on a steady course by preventing health problems.

Lee County citizens would literally be buried in trash and debris if it weren't for local tax dollars providing for a system of garbage disposal and maintenance of the county landfill. Our rivers and streams would become more polluted than they are now if people were left to dispose of their trash as best as they saw fit. Our environment would become a quagmire of rotting rubbish.

And to whom would you turn for help if your home was broken into or your business burglarized? How could the sheriff and his deputies patrol the county to keep its roads and public places safe if there were no funds in local coffers to pay salaries or gas bills or vehicle maintenance.

These are the main areas that utilize tax dollars, but there are many other services the county provides if one only stops and thinks.

For instance, consider the service of the County Clerk's Office where all documents, deeds, etc., are stored to make our lives official.

Marriage licenses, fishing and hunting licenses, proof of property ownership . . . all these things are handled through the clerk's office and are all an - important part of our daily lives.

Or consider the importance of the county building inspector's job. Again, you're being protected through his knowledge and awareness of safe building practices and obedience to certain construction standards.

Your tax dollars also go to maintain roads that aren't in the secondary system and plenty of folks live off such roads.

The list becomes quite long if you just stop and think about some of the services that your county government offers that are so often just taken for granted. We've only mentioned a few of the more obvious ones here.

By now the answer should be clear -- if you don't pay taxes, you don't enjoy certain necessary services. If only a few don't pay, then the tax burden falls more heavily on those who do.

As County Administrator Wilson explained it, if we can't better our collection of personal property taxes, then the difference has to be made up somewhere else and real estate taxation is the alternative. Conversely then, if everybody would pay what they owe, all would pay less in the long run. Isn't that more appealing and fairer?

County Decal

taxes despite the fact that the ordinance was not originally worded to say all personal property. She added, however, that supervisors plan to amend the original ordinance to say "all", although no local citizens have contested the wording of the original.

According to Commissioner of Revenue Silas Glass mobile homes are assessed by the same method as real estate, but are classified as personal property.

For instance, he said the average going assessment rate of a mobile home would be about $12 per square foot, whereas a house would be about $30-$40 per square foot. One must also bear in mind that mobile homes depreciate about 10 percent per year whereas houses appreciate. After 10 years, mobile homes are assessed at about 25 percent of value, unlike 10-year-old vehicles which are no longer assessed.

Glass went on to say that mobile homes are rarely classified as real estate -- usually only when the Commissioner deems sufficient changes have been made such as permanent additions or encasement, physically attaching the unit to the land.

Decals are scheduled to go on sale this first year at the treasurer's office around June 15 and must be purchased by July 31, with the expiration date May 31, 1982. In all subsequent years, the sticker life will be from May 1 until May 31 of the following year.

Sheriff R.V. Chadwell said his agency will strictly enforce the new ordinance with his existing staff. "It's my job to see that the law is carried out as fairly as possible," Chadwell added.

If citizens are driving without the necessary decal after the July 31 deadline, they will be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction in General District Court, will be fined $20.

Citizens should remember that the decal is in no way connected to the state's vehicle licensing procedures or purchase of state license plates.

Some citizens question the fairness of the new tax as they are under the impression that residents of incorporated towns will not have to buy the county decal. In actuality, town residents will continue to purchase their town stickers, but then must take proof of purchase of that sticker, as well as evidence that personal property taxes have been paid up, to the treasurer who will, in turn, issue them a county decal without charge. Town residents will not have to pay for two stickers they will be credited with purchase of their town sticker through issuance of the county decal. They will need to display both the county decal and the town sticker on their windshield adjacent to the state inspection sticker.

Consequently, in enforcing the ordinance, sheriff's department authorities will be checking all vehicles after July 31, 1981, to see if they are displaying a county decal.

Are Your Trees Safe For Motorists? Case

George Thompson was only fifty years old at the time of the accident. It was one of those freakish events in life. George was at the wrong place at the wrong time. It was a windy, stormy night There was a sprinkle of rain and gusts of wind up to 30 miles per hour. The neighborhood George was driving through was one of the oldest areas in the city. The trees along the street reflected this oldness by their size They were massive with branches extending far out over the street. Unfortunately for George, the wind caused one of these limbs to break and fall onto his car as he was passing under The roof of the car was caved in but of more importance was the fact that George was rendered permanently paralyzed from the waist down An investigation of this tragedy revealed that the limb of the tree which fell on the car was rotten and probably had been for quite some period of time

George filed a lawsuit against the owner of the land upon which the tree grew. He asked for $1,000,000 in damages and contended the owner was negligent in not discovering the rotten limb and removing it from the tree. He also included as a defendant in his suit the city, and claimed they had an obligation to inspect the trees growing by the side of their streets and to keep the streets safe from falling limbs

The defendants argued that the injury was the result of the storm an act of God and that they should not be held liable How should the court rule?

Decision

The court awarded George the $1,000,000 in damages They held that the landowner was negligent in allowing a rotten limb from his tree to remain hanging over the street The city was not held responsible athletes. Mac is attending Concord College in Athens, W. Va., and Hunter plans to enter college in the fall.

They live on a 180 acre farm and have recently built a new house. They are "gentlemen" farmers who raise cattle. Bobby has now added to his love of the classroom and the athletic arena a real love for the good earth.

I should add that Bobby keeps his educational credits moving; he received his M.Ed. in Administration and Supervision from the College of William and Mary in 1965, and has fifty additional hours of graduate work from the University of Va. and William and Mary.

As I told you, Bobby never forgets; he remembers Earl Coppe of the Free Lance Star who covered his athletic career in high school. He remembers Stuart Allen, now of Winchester, as the one who trained him for his track successes. He remembers Alger Pugh and Billy Marrs as friends from Spotsylvania days and they are still good friends.

Now, hear ye this from my beloved student: he remembers his first high school English teacher; namely, yours truly, as a lovely white-headed lady with a bluish tint in her hair. A bluish tint! Why I must explain to him that what he thought was a bluist tint was really the pale blue light of a halo!(?).

Be THAT as it is (or was) I am still ready to nominate him for the highest educational post in the state.

Pennington Elementary Open House

There will be an open house at Pennington Elementary School Friday afternoon, May 22, starting at 1 p.m. sponsored by the Pennington Elementary PTO and the school.

All parents are invited to attend and visit the school and talk to the teachers.

Dear Editor,

We at Warriors' Path State Park would like to thank the people of the Tri-Cities for the support you have given us this past year. We thank you for another fine fall and winter season at your state park.

With vacation time fast approaching, we would like to remind all of our friends of the many new recreational facilities and hiking trails at Warriors' Path. Besides all the fine facilities, you will once again find a varied fare of nature and recreation programs this summer. These programs are free and open to all, and we hope to see you there.

In addition, I will be available to come to area civic clubs, youth groups, and summer schools, to present programs on nature, conservation, and folklore. Please do call the park office (239-8531) to arrange for the programs that will best suit your needs.

As this bright spring season fades to green hazy summer, it's a perfect time to enjoy the great outdoors in our region. Thanks to you, Warriors' Path State Park continues to be one of those great outdoor places to enjoy.

Sincerely,
Marty Silver,
Park Naturalist

By Betty Joan Moore

Virginia Tech Extension Service agents provide continuing education — programs, information, services — for everyone. Miss Moore is with the Lee County office at 346-1522.

Strawberries are an excellent source of Vitamin C with one cup supplying about 150% of the U.S. Recommended Daily allowance for the average adult.

Strawberries also add iron to the diet. Many Americans, particularly women and children, have diets deficient in this mineral, so it's good to know that one cup of fresh whole strawberries provides about 8% of the U.S. RDA for iron.

One of the nicest things about strawberries is that a whole cup has only about 60 calories. Sweet, plump and juicy strawberries make dieting easy and delicious.

You may want to try this recipe for strawberry pie with some of your fresh berries.

"BERRY ELEGANT" STRAWBERRY PIE

½ tablespoon gelatin
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
6 tablespoons powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup whipping cream
1 prepared crumb crust or baked pie crust
1 pint strawberries, stemmed and halved
¼ cup strawberry jelly, melted
¼ cup plain yogurt

In small saucepan, combine with gelatin with ¼ cup water and dissolve over low heat. Set aside. In large mixing bowl, beat cream cheese with sugar and vanilla until smooth. Add cream. Beat until soft peak forms. Add dissolved gelatin and yogurt. Beat until stiff. Pour into prepared crust. Chill 3 hours. Before serving, arrange berries decoratively on top. Drizzle jelly over berries.

Congratulations.

Everett Rank Named As ASCS Administrator

Secretary of Agriculture John Block has named Everett Rank as administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and executive vice president of the Commodity Credit Corporation. Rank has served as administrator-designate since March 9.

Rank, a native of Fresno, California, farmed cotton, almonds and grain.

Following 10 years of service as chairman of the Fresno County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee, Rank was appointed chairman of the California State ASC committee in 1969. He held that post until named ASCS Western Regional Director in 1974.

He has been a member of the American Farm Bureau Federation for 34 years and has also served on the board of directors of the Ranchers Cotton Oil Company, Cal Cot and the Clovis Sanger Gin. He was on the board of governors of the Agriculture Foundation at California State University at Fresno.

In his new position, Rank will administer policies and programs of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service through its 50 state and 2700 county offices. Programs under that agency include those for farm commodities, cost sharing and environmental protection, natural disaster emergencies, national defense relating to farm production, conservation, income stabilization and the handling, storage and distribution of grains and foods.

Rank and his family live in Alexandria, Va.

U.S. - Nigerian Joint Agricultural Committee To Meet

Members of the U.S. Nigerian joint agricultural consultative committee will meet in Lagos, Nigeria, beginning May 31 to discuss private agribusiness participation in agricultural development in Nigeria on a joint venture basis.

According to Quentin West, director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Office of International Cooperation and Development, the cooperation between USDA and the private agribusiness sector in this country is a new approach to assisting developing nations. The two countries also have agreed to participate in agricultural research and the exchange of related information. West said the program in Nigeria could serve as a model for similar cooperative efforts in other countries.

West said the program illustrates how government to government relationships arranged by the United States can open doors for private business. The private sector can concentrate its resources on establishing and operating business. It can also help make U.S. companies more competitive with rival firms from other nations, some of which receive government subsidies for foreign development activities.

Former Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman is chairman of the U.S. delegation; Mallim Joda, former Secretary of the Nigerian Ministry of Agriculture, is chairman of the Nigerian delegation.

Sunday School Lesson

MEDIATOR OF A NEW COVENANT

Throughout the Old Testament are accounts of God's dealings with His people and the record of covenants which He made with various individuals and groups. It is noteworthy, however, that His convenants were made with redeemed people; also, that He always had a specific purpose in making a covenant with an individual or with a people

Hebrews 9:11-15

Access to God is ever a need of man, but entrance into His presence requires that man's sins be atoned for and his uncleanness be cleansed, and these are things which man cannot do for himself. Bearing the marks of imperfection, the forms of worship practiced by the Jews were inadequate when it came to bringing men into true and close fellowship with God. Since their animal sacrifices could not remove the pollution caused by sins, new and better provisions were made available by and through Christ. Who was the real substance of the previous shadows

The sacrifice for sin which Christ offered was that of His own life's blood; therefore, it surpassed by far the sacrifice which was offered by the Jews. The voluntary sacrifice of Christ on the cross made available to believers in Him cleansing from all the sins which defile the soul. His death for us on the cross made available to us salvation from the penalty, pollution, power, and presence of sin. It guaranteed an unending fellowship with God

Christ's sacrifice opened for us the way to God, brought us into His presence, cleansed us from all sins which defile the soul, cleansed our consciences, gave us the privilege of rendering acceptable service to God, and empowered us for such services throughout our Christian lives as delight the heart of God This sacrifice is far greater and more effective than any other that has ever been made Christ not only brought us into right relationship with God, but He also enables us to live godly lives and bring great glory to Him

Year after year the ritual of the Day of Atonement had to be repeated Time and again the sins of the people blocked their access to God's presence, and they had to be atoned for In contrast with the sacrifices of the high priest, which was offered annually Christ made a sacrifice which will never need any repetition The sacrifice which Christ made was entirely the product of love, and it secured for us a redemption that is eternal Through His sacrifice Christ made a complete atonement for our sins and for that reason we should serve Him faithfully substantiating the testimony of our lips with our lives

To each of us death is coming For it is appointed unto men once to die Short as it may be this life is long enough for us to become what God wants us to be, and to do what He wants us to do After death is the judgement in which men must render an account for what they have thought desired, said and done In view of Christ's return let us strive to be clean vessels into which He can pour His fullness, channels through which He can reveal His glory and instruments with which He can accomplish His purposes

Mrs. Hobbs Honored

Mrs. Minerva Hobbs was honored with a surprise birthday dinner on her 80th birthday on May 3, 1981 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Hancock of Jonesville, Virginia.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Hobbs of Jonesville; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hobbs of Rose Hill; Mr. and Mrs. George Matlock of Rose Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Matlock of Jonesville; and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Durham and Frankie of Big Stone Gap. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Bill Snodgrass of Jonesville visited.

Carl Creekmore, Mrs. Lee Ann Creekmore, Paul Creekmore and Hazel Creekmore.

Lee Ann Creekmore celebrated her 91st birthday at the home of a son, Carl on May 7, 1981. Family and friends gathered at the home of Carl and Ruth Creekmore to help celebrate a birthday few of us have the pleasure of attaining. Of course, food, gifts and well wishes were abundant since Mrs. Creekmore was only visiting from Dayton, Ohio where she resides with a daughter Hazel.

She is in good health and can as in the years of her children growing up, still express her concern for their best interests, even scolding a little now and then as mother always knows best.

THE DAY OF BEGINNING.....

Graduation is one of the most important milestones along the highway of life. It is a significant accomplishment. Yet, while it marks the achievement of a successful program of training and education, it is not an ending, but in a real sense it is a beginning. The future belongs rightfully to those who have prepared for it, who will now move upward, striding confidently toward a new plateau – to higher education, and along the routes designated commerce, industry, public service, and medicine, to name but a few.

Graduation has opened the book of life to a fresh new page, to the beginning of a new chapter; and each member of the Class of 1981 through individual effort shall determine what will be recorded thereon.

The best wishes of a proud community are extended to you on this momentous occasion!

Congressman
BILL WAMPLER
Reports from Washington

Chief Justice John Marshall once said, "the power to tax is the power to destroy." We have been destroying America with too much taxation.

With taxes taking forty-three cents out of every dollar, there is little left for the working man. The average American must work from January 1st to May 10th just to pay his obligation to the government this year ... six days longer than it took in 1980 to pay your taxes.

Such exhorbitant taxes put a strain, not only on individual budgets, but on the economy as well, because few can afford to save or invest. This is ample justification, in my opinion, to cut tax rates in each of the next three years, as proposed by President Reagan.

His tax proposal is a sweeping plan to return much economic decision-making to the free market. The proposal differs from tax cuts of recent years in that it is not aimed at stimulating aggregate demand through changes in the average tax rates. Rather, it is designed to increase work, savings, and investment through changes in the marginal tax rates.

The distinction between personal and business cuts is an artificial one. Individuals own all business and all business income accrues to individuals in one form or another. Thus, any tax change that affects personal savings affects businesses, and any business tax cut will have an effect on personal well being.

The current tax code contains serious distortions which lead to inefficiency. Because of its multiple taxation of income from personal saving, the tax system creates a bias in favor of consumption and against saving. Less savings means less investment, which hampers economic growth.

High marginal tax rates on labor income artificially penalize the work effort. Once again, this causes an efficiency loss, because the cost of working, relative to leisure, is distorted.

All economic decisions are made at the margin. That is, a worker makes his decision to work or not to work based on the tax treatment of increased or extra income, not on the treatment of income earned in the past. If relative prices are distorted, it is only through changes in marginal tax rates that the distortions will be minimized. A cut in marginal tax rates on personal income will increase the money you take home, thereby making work more profitable and leisure more costly.

Tax rate reduction is just as important to the success of the Economic Recovery Program as are spending reductions. Now that the President's budget has been approved, Congress should move at once on tax relief.

Teachers Re-Elect VEA Officers

Teachers around the state have re-elected Fairfax County teacher Walter J. Mika, Jr., as president and Wythe County teacher Brenda Cloyd as vice president of the 44,000-member Virginia Education Association (VEA).

In statewide balloting conducted in each school division during April, VEA members re-elected Hampton teacher Alease Gant to represent them on the Board of Directors of the National Education Association. They also chose Fairfax County principal Bill Martin to represent administrators on VEA's Board of Directors.

Mika and Gant were unopposed in their bid for re election. They received 21,764 and 21,923 votes, respectively. Cloyd defeated Henrico County teacher Dave Teets 12,897 to 8,615 to win re election to her second one-year term as vice president. Martin received 10,851 votes to defeat Bedford County principal Denis Deane, with 4,391 votes, and Radford city elementary supervisor Yvonne Hylton, with 6,139 votes, for the two year position on the Board of Directors.

President Mika, currently on leave from his social studies classroom in the Lake Braddock Open School in Fairfax County, will continue his full time leadership of the VEA for a second year, from Aug. 1 until July 31, 1982.

Cloyd, a business teacher at Wythe County Vocational School for the past 11 years, will serve concurrently with Mika.

Gant, an English teacher at Kecoughtan High School in Hampton, has represented Virginia teachers on the NEA Board of Directors since 1979, when he was appointed to an unexpired term to fill a vacancy. Her new three-year term will begin Sept. 1 and conclude Aug. 31, 1984.

Martin, a principal at Sunrise Valley Elementary School in Fairfax County, will begin his two-year term on VEA's Board of Directors Aug 1. Martin is a past president of the Virginia Association of Elementary School Principals

Council Of Higher Education To Participate In National Project To Study Enrollment Patterns

The State Council of Higher Education for Virginia will join with agencies in four other states to study enrollment patterns at public colleges and universities. The two-year study is intended to produce planning information that will help states cope with enrollment declines in higher education during the rest of this century.

The five-state project, supported by a $200,000 grant from the Ford Foundation, will be coordinated by the National Center for Higher Education Management Systems (NCHEMS) at Boulder, Colorado. The other participating states are Connecticut, Iowa, Minnesota, and New Jersey.

Such student characteristics as age, income, place of residence, sex, and race will be considered in analyzing enrollment patterns and trends at different types of institutions of higher education in each of the states. Throughout the study, each state will decide which student characteristics to review and how best to analyze the date obtained.

"Virginia was selected to participate in this project," Council Director Gordon K. Davies notes, "for two reasons. First, the Council's process for projecting enrollments is considered to be among the best in the nation. Consistently, the Council's projections have been within one percent of the actual enrollments for the system. Secondly, Virginia will likely experience less of an overall enrollment decline than most other states. There is no doubt that the state will have a decrease in the traditional college age population that is, students in the 18 to 21 age bracket. But Virginia's continuing population growth and the institutions' enrollment of older adults should compensate, at least in part, for this reduction."

In announcing the start of the project, Dr. Ben Lawrence, Executive Director of NCHEMS, said the Ford Foundation grant will make it possible to test and refine analytical methods that will help states determine appropriate policies to deal with a decline in the traditional college-going population over the next 15 years. "The Ford Foundation's support of the study will help NCHEMS advance the idea that long range planning to deal with change should be based on adequate information, both about existing circumstances and about the likely outcomes of alternative planning decisions," he said. "Many of the problems engendered by the predicted enrollment decline will have serious impacts at the state level and the states need to make concrete plans to minimize the negative impact of this decline."

"State higher education agencies," Dr. Lawrence continued, "need a sophisticated understanding of enrollment patterns if they are to develop and implement policies designed to ameliorate or cope with enrollment declines. For example, a state might consider reducing its overall excess capability within its public college or university system by closing an institution. But if this option is exercised, it is critical to know what will happen to the students enrolled at that campus. Will they simply transfer to other institutions, thereby easing the excess capacity problem? Will they drop out entirely? Will they leave the state? Or will they withdraw from the public sector? Even worse, will they transfer to overcrowded programs on other campuses within the system and thereby increase the strain?"

The Council of Higher Education is the state agency responsible for the coordination of Virginia's public institutions and for the future planning of the Commonwealth's entire postsecondary educational system. The National Center for Higher Education Management Systems (NCHEMS) is an independent, nonprofit organization devoted to improving planning and management in postsecondary education. Supported by the National Institute of Education, other government agencies, and private foundations, NCHEMS is engaged in research and development programs designed to help college administrators more effectively discharge their planning and management responsibilities.

Volunteer Development Grows

Twenty-three Extension operations across Virginia are being added to the 25 currently involved in assisting the Center for Volunteer Development at Virginia Tech in strengthening volunteer programs in the Old Dominion.

Delbert A. Dyer, center director, said agents in each of the 23 units have agreed to improve their abilities in assisting volunteer groups in their unit areas and to act as links between volunteer groups with expertise at Virginia colleges and universities.

Eventually, each Extension unit will have a representative working with the center.

The original units in the program were Alexandria, Amelia, Arlington, Brunswick, Carroll, Danville, Dickenson, Giles, Gloucester, Hampton, Hanover, Henry, Highland, Isle of Wight, Lee, Loudoun, Louisa, Montgomery, Norfolk, Northampton, Prince Edward, Southampton, Tazewell, Virginia Beach and Washington.

The center, designed to strengthen outreach programs in volunteerism, came into being in late 1979 when the W.K. Kellogg Foundation awarded the University a five-year grant for use by the Extension Division in cooperation with state human service agencies.

The center links the expertise of Tech, Virginia State University, and other college and university faculty to problems experienced by local volunteers and volunteer groups through local Extension offices.

CBN Graduation

The second graduation in the three-year history of CBN University was conducted recently in colorful outdoor ceremonies on the school's campus.

Thirty-seven students were graduated from the School of Communication and one from the new School of Education. They came to CBNU from 20 states and the nation of Brazil.

Dr. Richard F. Gottier, university president, delivered the graduation address. Dr. M.G. (Pat) Robertson, university chancellor and president of The Christian Broadcasting Network, Inc., sponsor of the university, also spoke.

S. Tucker Yates, chairman of the board of regents, and Dr. Don D. Petry, university vice president, presented the Master of Arts hoods to the graduates.

CBN University, situated adjacent to the CBN headquarters building, was opened in 1978 with one school, the School of Communication, offering the M.A. degree in radio and television, communication studies, journalism, advertising and marketing, visual communications, drama and biblical communication studies. The School of Education opened last fall and offers the Master's degree in the fields of school administration, curriculum development and special education.

Plans for additional schools have been announced, but no target date has been set.

Prime Time

At Least, He Should Get an Autograph

by Cy Brickfield

By the time you read this, Ronald Reagan will presumably have recovered sufficiently from his bullet wound to be able to steadily increase his activities as he continues his recuperation at the White House. By then, it is hoped that the Oval Office staff will have begun making plans to honor the 68-year-old fighting carpenter from Cleveland who has turned out to be an unsung hero of the unsuccessful attempt to assassinate the President.

His name is Alfred Antonucci and, if you look carefully at the television film of the shooting outside the Washington Hilton, you can see him helping Secret Service agents and metropolitan police officers subdue John W. Hinckley Jr., the young drifter from Denver who is charged with attacking Reagan. In fact, from most reports, it appears that Antonucci was among the very first to tackle the alleged assailant even as the sound of shooting and acrid smell of gunsmoke were still in the air.

On that showery afternoon, Antonucci was standing with a friend on the sidewalk, hoping to see the President leave the hotel via a special security passageway, and walk to his official limousine a few feet away. That was when he first noticed the pale-haired young man waiting nearby.

"He said the guy was standing right in front of him with his hands in his pockets," explains Eileen Antonucci, his daughter-in-law. Apparently, there was something about Hinckley that attracted the attention of Antonucci and others, including the security officials guarding the President, but nothing that really aroused their suspicion until it was too late.

Then the shooting started and, in a matter of seconds, the wounded President had been shoved into his limousine and driven to safety, Press Secretary James Brady was lying face down on a sidewalk grate with a bullet in his head, and a Secret Service agent and a Washington policeman also lay wounded after they had literally thrown themselves into the line of fire.

It was at this moment that Antonucci again noticed the pale-haired young man—this time with a gun in his hand—and tackled him to the ground. Security officials had also spotted the alleged assailant and were surging forward to swarm over and subdue him. In the scuffle, body piled upon body before Hinckley was captured and led away to a waiting patrol car.

According to his daughter-in-law, Antonucci was somewhat roughed up in the struggle to subdue the suspect. Afterwards, he was questioned for about 90 minutes by Secret Service agents who were presumably curious about how he happened to be in that particular spot at just the right moment.

What they learned was that Antonucci is a member of the Building and Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, and that he had come to Washington from Cleveland to attend the AFL-CIO meeting at which the President had spoken just before he was shot. Having returned from the meeting's lunch break too late to hear Reagan's speech, Antonucci and a friend waited on the sidewalk in hopes of catching a glimpse of the President. They obviously saw far more than they expected.

By the time the excitement was over, Antonucci had begun to experience some chest pain. He was rushed to Georgetown University Hospital where he was found to be suffering from an irregular heartbeat. His son, Dominic, flew in from Cleveland to be with his father and mother, and to accompany them home as soon as Antonucci recovered from his upset.

There is little point in attempting to measure whether Antonucci is more or less heroic than the Secret Service agent and the Washington policeman who literally laid their lives on the line by using their bodies to stop bullets meant for the President. Antonucci's heroism is different in that taking these risks is part of their job; the carpenter from Cleveland, on the other hand, didn't have to get involved, but did because it was to him an instinctive part of being a good citizen.

Antonucci did not vote for Ronald Reagan, his son revealed to a television reporter, but nonetheless became "very emotional everytime he starts to talk" about the historic events in which he was involved. Once the election was over, he had accepted the will of the people, and was thus outraged that someone had tried to shoot his president.

Interestingly, Antonucci had another reason for being on the sidewalk outside the Hilton. He is a collector of Presidential autographs, and was hoping to add Reagan's to his collection. Considering the events that followed on that anxious afternoon, and the role he played in them, it would seem that the very least Alfred Antonucci deserves is President Reagan's autograph—preferably on a letter of commendation or maybe even an invitation to dinner at the White House.

CVC Mining Management Advisory Banquet

The first annual banquet of the Clinch Valley College Mining Management Advisory Committee was held May 9 at the Lonesome Pine Country Club in Big Stone Gap. The banquet honored members of the Committee who have committed their efforts toward the establishment of a degree program in mining management at Clinch Valley, members of the CVC administration, and graduating seniors in the new degree program.

William A. Thompson, Jr., Chairman of the Advisory Committee since its inception in July, 1979, introduced the seniors who are working toward Bachelor of Science degrees in Mining Management. They are Tom Bowman, Alan Crockett, Brian Dotson and Dennis Hillman. He also introduced Greg Potter, the student representative on the Committee for the 1981-82 academic year.

Joseph C. Smiddy, Chancellor of Clinch Valley College, addressed the group. He noted that Thompson's mother supplied the spark which led to the establishment of Clinch Valley College when she asked of Sam Crockett, "Why can't the University of Virginia open a branch in Wise?" After the efforts of many local citizens, the College was opened in September 1964. Thompson's father, William A. Thompson, Sr., served as Chairman of the first CVC Advisory Committee, and helped to secure a portion of the land upon which the College is built.

Smiddy noted that work toward the establishment of a program in modern mining management was begun when in 1976 he and Dean Emmet Low appointed a committee of faculty members to study the possibility of creating a program directed at training students for work in the mining industry. The committee -- George Culbertson, Bob Vicars, and Roy Wells, Jr., found there existed a need for persons with management training in the mining industry. In the spring of 1978 the Planning Committee at Clinch Valley approved the program and subsequent approvals were secured from the Faculty of the College, the University of Virginia and the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia.

The first CVC Mining Management Advisory Committee, which held its initial meeting July 31, 1979, consisted of W.A. Thompson, Jr., Thompson & Litton Engineers, Wise; Charles E. Brinley, Stonega Division, Westmoreland Coal Company; T. J. Briskey, Beth-Elkhorn Coal Corporation; Thomas Sexton, Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Company; G. R. Swanson, Pittston Company Coal Group; and McLynn Sharpe, Virginia Division of Mines. They met frequently over the ensuing months and helped the College develop a degree program which serves the needs of the mining industries. Mountain Empire Community College and Southwest Virginia Community College also shared in the development of the program and offer the technical courses required in the program.

Final approval to begin the new program was secured on May 9, 1980, and classes were begun in the fall of 1980. Six courses have been offered in the Mining Management program to date, and enrollments indicate that the program will be attractive.

Distinguished guests in attendance at the banquet were members of the CVC administration and faculty, W.A. Thompson, Jr., Lamar Samples, Alynn Plaisted, Danny Belcher, and Steve Dula. Louis Kinum, Assistant Professor of Management at Clinch Valley, has served as the representative for the College on the Advisory Committee.

VEC Devotes $8.15 Million To Summer Youth Employment

The Virginia Employment Commission's CETA-sponsored Summer Youth Employment Program (SYEP) will put 5,500 Virginia youth to work this summer.

Federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds will provide $8.15 million for the VEC's Balance of-State CETA summer work and training projects. The 14-to-21-year-old SYEP trainees will work at over 1,200 job sites in counties, towns and smaller cities around the Commonwealth.

"Because of the Reagan Administration's emphasis on youth employment, SYEP is one of the few CETA programs that will be untouched by current budget cuts," VEC Youth Programs Manager for CETA Harold Kretzer said. "In fact, in early April, the VEC was notified that we will receive approximately $600,000 more than had earlier been allocated. Most other CETA prime sponsors will also receive additional SYEP funds."

These young people will earn minimum wage ($3.35 per hour) and most will work a 40 hour week. Their employers will include public and private non-profit organizations, such as local governments, schools, hospitals, libraries, museums, YMCAs, and state and federal parks and recreation sites.

As SYEP participants, some young people work as aides in a wide variety of occupations, from hospitals and office work to building projects. Others make contributions to their communities through litter clean-up projects and sprucing up public property.

SYEP emphasizes developing good work habits and gaining work experience. "We are careful to make sure that all summer jobs are real work providing a true service or resulting in a useful product," Kretzer said. "So called 'make work' does nothing to foster SYEP goals." He also emphasized that SYEP supervisors are carefully chosen, and that each supervisor is responsible for a small group. "It would be difficult to find more closely supervised work than SYEP projects," he said.

Although SYEP emphasizes work experience, many participants also receive classroom training. Many of this summer's project will work hand-in-hand with community colleges to provide participants the best work-related training available. Quite a few SYEP participants will receive academic credit for some of their training.

In addition to work experience and classroom training, the young people also do some "job sampling." They visit factories and other private businesses and job sites in their areas. They talk to workers, observe their work activities and get some first-hand exposure to the world of work in their own communities.

"The majority of these youth will be returning to school in the fall," Kretzer said. "Their summer employment provides them the opportunity to explore different jobs, earn money on their own, and to learn to manage money. They are encouraged to open checking and savings accounts, and they practice writing checks, plan their own budgets, and find out what it's like to earn and spend their own dollars."

Other employment and training activities include counseling (both job and personal counseling if needed), labor market information, job placement and job development.

New Industrial Directory For Virginia Available

The 15th edition of the VIRGINIA INDUSTRIAL DIRECTORY is now available, according to the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, which publishes and distributes the book.

Every Virginia manufacturing and mining firm was surveyed in the compilation of the 371 page guide. Each entry is listed at least three times: alphabetically, by location, and by product code using the Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) system. The directory allows the user to find information on a known company in the alphabetical section, or to find all plants in a given area using the georgraphical section, or all plants making a specific product through the SIC section. Altogether, there are some 4,300 companies and plant locations listed in the 1981 1982 VIRGINIA INDUSTRIAL DIRECTORY.

Information on the listed companies includes full name and address of the firm, names of chief officers where furnished, telephone numbers, approximate number of employees, import/export capabilities, and specific products manufactured or mined. All of the information is voluntarily supplied by the listed companies to the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce.

Other sections of the 1981 82 VIRGINIA INDUSTRIAL DIRECTORY include a listing of transportation and foreign trade service facilities that operate in or serve Virginia companies with foreign affiliations, and lists of public utilities and institutions of higher education.

THE VIRGINIA INDUSTRIAL DIRECTORY is available from the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, 611 East Franklin Street, Richmond, Virginia 23219, at a price of $45.00 plus tax. Those ordering by mail should include $1.50 for postage and handling, plus $1.80 Virginia sales tax for in state orders.

Parents Can Help Children Plan Careers

Children first turn to their parents for advice on choosing a career, says a Virginia Tech professor, and this process begins when the child is still a preschooler. In a special report, "What Do I want To Be When I Grow Up?", written for the 1981 World Book Encyclopedia Yearbook, Dean Hummel, professor of counselor education, writes that children begin career exploration as early as age three.

Parents can play an important role in guiding their child's initial investigations and decisions about a career, says Hummel.

"Most people spend one-sixth of their lives at work and we live in a culture where identity is shaped by the kind of work we do," says Hummel. "Therefore it is essential for parents to think seriously about their child's career interests even when the child is young. Almost as soon as children can talk, somebody is asking them what they want to be when they grow up. It is never too early to help them consider the answer."

"All job activities relate either to people, data, or things," Hummel says. "Even a very young child shows a preference for one of these areas, and the parents can guide the child in learning about careers emphasizing this preference."

For example, says Hummel, a child who enjoys being with other children, playing with dolls or animals, or watching television, is likely to be "people oriented," and might make a good teacher or sales person.

"The 'data-oriented' child, who is a loner and prefers reading or visiting museums, could be a future accountant or computer programmer," he continues. "A child is 'things oriented,' and perhaps destined to be a mechanic or engineer, if he or she plays with gadgets and takes things apart."

In his article, Hummel offers several suggestions to parents for introducing children to a variety of careers and encouraging them to consider many options:

--Make available books, magazines, and games that can help a child explore career vocations.

--Encourage play activities congruent with the child's budding career interests; for example, a child who seems interested in building and tools should be given materials for constructing a tree house or soapbox racer.

--Encourage the child to explore non-traditional occupations regardless of the child's sex, social class, or economic background.

--Structure chores around the house to coincide with the child's interests if possible; when the child is older recommend summer jobs that parallel careers interests.

Take advantage of career information resouces available from public libraries, the federal government, professional and trade organizations, and the child's school to help supply him or her with additional reading material.

Urge children to get career related experience in school by taking elective and pre - vocational courses, joining clubs and extracurricular activities, trying athletics, and going to summer school and camps.

Some children make successful career decisions at an early age with little or no guidance, says Hummel. Other children may have excellent guidance and make logical decisions only to discover several years into their job that it neither suits them nor offers good opportunities. So it is important, Hummel concludes, to remain flexible.

Happy Days to You GRADS

VI Commencement Has Graduation

Robert V. Chadwell, Sheriff

One of Virginia Intermont College's largest graduating classes ever received degrees Saturday during the school's 93rd commencement.

A total of 119 bachelor of arts degrees and 29 associate of arts degrees were conferred by V I President Kenneth D Glass at the commencement. Glass also accepted a gift of audio equipment from the sophomore class.

Rep William C Wampler served as commencement speaker. Wampler urged the graduates to give full weight and support to the fundamentals to which you have been exposed during your years at Virginia Intermont the search for the true and the good and the beautiful, and the use of reason, restraint and respect for the rights of others along the way.

Wampler exhorted the graduates to continue learning throughout their lives, saying, self renewal depends on your capacity to remain versatile and adaptive, not to be trapped in techniques or procedures or routines, not to be imprisoned by your own pet theories or comfortable habits or customary ways.

Life is a continuing process, and the meaning is in the process. The really important tasks are never finished — interrupted perhaps, but never finished. All the significant goals recede before you. In other words, with respect to life's deepest goals, you never really arrive. If you think you have arrived, it can only mean that you are thinking in terms of fairly shallow goals," Wampler said.

The commencement was the final event of graduation weekend, which began Friday afternoon with an open house at the school's Riding Center. The Baccalaureate service was held Friday night at V I's Harrison Jones Memorial Hall.

Dr Glenn A Brooks, pastor of Hanson Place Central United Methodist Church in Brooklyn, N.Y., delivered the baccalaureate sermon. Brooks is the uncle of Dyna Louise Price, one of the graduates.

Ms. Price was crowned "May Queen" Saturday afternoon during the May Day ceremony. The Bristol Concert Ballet Company presented a performance entitled "Give My Regards To Gershwin" in honor of the queen, her court, parents and guests.

Two Area Students Receive Degrees From Eastern

Eastern Kentucky University conferred degrees upon about 2,038 candidates at its 74th spring commencement Saturday, May 9, including 13 from Virginia.

The degrees were conferred by Dr. J C Powell, EKU president, during the graduation program at Hanger Field.

Degree recipients this spring from Lee County, as listed by college and degree by the registrar's office, are: Jocelyn L Roberts, Ewing and Diana G Baird, Jonesville.

Kentucky Mountain Laurel Festival Art Exhibit

The Kentucky Mountain Laurel Festival Art Exhibit this year will feature pieces from the Folk Art Collection of Larry Hackley of North Middletown, as well as the work of several professional painters of Southeastern Kentucky Hackley, whose interest in folk art began when he was a graduate student in Art at the University of Kentucky, is now a collector of national repute. Part of his collection is presently being exhibited in an art gallery in Chicago, and some will be shown in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., this summer.

For this exhibit Hackley has chosen to display the work of contemporary Kentucky folk artists, principally the following six. Foremost in reputation is Edgar Tolson of Campton, a woodcarver whose work has been seen in the Smithsonian Institution and the Whitney Museum in New York. His son Donny Tolson's carvings will also be shown The work of Earnest Patton of Campton and Carl McKenzie of Stanton, and the "watermelon men" of Frank Byrley complete the wood sculpture group The whimsical "gourd art" created by Minnie Black of East Bernstadt will be featured, as well as the wildly fantastic carved and painted walking sticks of Denzil Goodpaster of West Liberty. Three dimensional works by other Kentucky folk artists will also be exhibited

Two dimensional art will be represented by the work of our local painters Pat Banks, Rosa Beason, Mason Coms, Richard Golden, Robin McFarland and Michael Roan Pat Banks, whose family home is at Olive Hill, now resides in Barbourville where she is a full time artist She works in pen and ink and watercolor, and paints many scenes of local interest in Knox and Laurel Counties Bosa Beason of Middlesboro has painted in oil here in Bell County for many years. She has in recent years received national recognition for her charming works in the primitive style. Mason Combs of Pineville is familiar to many around the state for his "Governor's Mansion" and his humorously illustrated maps of Kentucky. He is a member of The Society of Illustrators. Richard Golden of Pineville's watercolors and acrylics have been exhibited from Dijon, France, to Columbus, Georgia He finds most of his thematic materials in nature, but has also produced many excellent renditions of old homes and structures. Robin McFarland of Louisville is a newcomer to our area who portrays mostly moutain themes in her art. She works with acrylics in a realistic style which compliments the rustic folks who find themselves the subject of her brush Michael Roan of Pineville is the youngest of our painters He is known locally for pen and ink sketches of nostalgic interest here, but will be displaying another dimension of his talent, that of acrylic painting

The exhibit will be held in the meeting room of the Pineville Public Library on Walnut Street and the public is invited to attend free of charge Viewing will commence on Friday, May 29th at 11:00 A.M., when the artists will be introduced until 3:00 P.M

All interested persons are urged to come and meet them. It will remain open the rest of the day Friday, and will be open all day Saturday, May 30th.

Alpha Chi Members At State Convention

Mrs. Billie Sam Beaty, Ewing, Mrs. Charles Emmett and Mrs. Oscar W. Smith, of Rose Hill, all members of the Lee County Alpha Chi Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society, International were among the 421 members of Iota State that attended the Annual State Convention, which was held at The Hotel Roanoke in Roanoke, VA, on April 24 26, 1981.

From the three year theme of the International Society, "Women Educators: Architects of the Future," the program theme chosen for study and action in 1980 81 centered on "Selection of Design· Designing Quality Living". Mrs. Chappell's biennium was an exemplification of her personal goal, "Together We Build in a Spiritual Fellowship."

One of the three living Virginia Founders, Miss Katherine Woodward, age 92, of Portsmouth, was present and gave cheerful greetings to those assembled. She spoke, also, of the Golden Anniversary of the Society which she had attended in Austin, Texas in 1979, commemorating fifty years of notable contributions by Delta Kappa Gamma to education and educators, by raising the standards of and for women educators.

It was by the vision of Dr. Annie Webb Blanton, the first woman to become president of the Texas State Teachers Association and also the first woman to be elected State Superintendent of Public Instruction, that she and eleven other women educators were able in 1929 to found the Delta Kappa Gamma Society. These 12 founders of the now International Society were honored on Saturday evening, along with the current presidents of the 80 Virginia Chapters.

A new addition to Delta Kappa Gamma activities this year culminated in an Art Exhibit at State Convention by Chapters and individual members, which proved to be a very popular and enjoyable project. It also demonstrated various artistic and creative talents in the areas of Art - various types of needle work or stitchery; painting - water color, oil, acrylic; metal, clay, glass and paper forms; also, creative writing, prose and poetry - all designs for quality living.

Among the many committee reports heard and recommendations passed, one was the continuation of the Project THIS (Truth and Honesty in Schools) which was introduced in many areas and in various ways as a needed and a worthwhile endeavor three years ago.

The highlight of the Convention was having Miss Jessie Sims, International Treasurer, and Acting International Executive Secretary, for the Keynote Speaker. Her emphasis, when speaking on custom and times when change must take place, was information saturation, but always choosing that which is wise and good.

Miss Sims also participated in the lovely tribute to Mrs. Emily Nelson of Hampton, Va., who was retiring this year from the position of State Treasurer All the Chapters had a part in this well kept secret of beautiful surprises for Emily in appreciation of her efficient work as Iota State Treasurer for 22 years Emily had also served with Miss Sims as a member of the International Finance Committee

Members of Delta Kappa Gamma Society are chosen by invitation from a cross section of educators in all areas of education ranging from kindergarten teachers through college professors One requirement for membership selection is five years of successful teaching.

Alpha Chi members attending this enthusiastic and profitable convention were Sue Beaty, a member of the State Headquarters Administrative Board, Henrietta Smith, past Chapter president, and Viola Emmett, current chapter president

High Blood Pressure? A Variety of Health Professionals Can Help

If you have high blood pressure, you should control it to have a longer, healthier life. Uncontrolled high blood pressure can lead to heart or kidney disease and stroke. One way to get your blood pressure "numbers" to come down and to keep them down is to follow the advice of health professionals interested in helping you.

Your doctor is the only one who can diagnose your high blood pressure. But other health professionals can help in a variety of ways. Along with medication, you may be asked to lose weight, or cut back on salt or smoking Doing these things will help your medication work better and shorten the time for you to reach your blood pressure goal There are a number of health professionals trained to help you

Some Specially Trained Health Professionals

Everyone knows it is not easy to change habits To help you, your doctor may want you to see a professional who can advise you on a way to remember your medicine, or to lose weight, or to shop and cook with less salt in your food Counseling with a health educator, nutritionist, or registered dietitian can be important because those professionals can help in making lifestyle changes, in monitoring progress, and in resolving problems. They have worked with a lot of people in similar situations

Your local pharmacist can also assist you with your blood pressure treatment One way is to advise you on when and how to take your medicine Another is to explain any possible "side effects" or bodily reactions you may experience when taking your particular medication. Your pharmacist can advise you when other medicines or nonprescription drugs might cause problems if you take them in combination with high blood pressure medication Or your pharmacist can help you find the way to ask your doctor about things that trouble you Some pharmacists may even have the facilities to measure your blood pressure

Some health professionals have specialized in aspects of care traditionally performed by physicians If you live in a rural area, you may find a physician assistant or nurse practitioner taking your personal and family history, performing a physical examination, ordering basic laboratory tests, or adjusting your medication dosage. The advice of these health professionals should be followed as closely as your doctor's advice, for they usually work directly under the supervision of a physician, often in the same office.

Health Professionals Serve From Variety of Settings

Your doctor, or someone at your state or local health department can put you in touch with a health professional specially trained to help with your problems. Sometimes the services of these health professionals are available through community health centers. Or, you may find them set up in separate practice. Whatever the treatment setting, they can help with your high blood pressure control. Keep your appointment and follow their advice

Cooperate with your health professionals, take your medication, and make the recommended lifestyle changes. Your progress will give you the encouragement you need to reach your goal blood pressure and to maintain it for life. Some health professionals who can measure blood pressure for you besides your doctor often include the nurse or doctor on duty where you work, perhaps your dentist, and others who see you regularly for health care needs, such as optometrists, podiatrists, or doctors and nurses in local health department clinics

Keeping track of your blood pressure "numbers" and staying with weight, diet, or other lifestyle changes for the rest of your life will be easier if you have help. Along with your own commitment to lifelong treatment, the help of your family, friends, a close neighbor, and health professionals can be vital to you in reaching your blood pressure goal and maintaining it for a longer, healthier life

New Theory On Brain Growth

The manner in which children are able to learn is receiving some shocks these days with the introduction of a new theory on brain development.

Herman Epstein, a Brandeis University biophysicist, believes that the human brain undergoes most of its growth in two-year spurts, not through continual growth as has long been the belief. Epstein bases his assumption on studies of both human and dead brains.

That concept has now been translated into theories on how a youngster learns by Conrad F. Toepfer, Jr., associate professor of middle school education, University of Georgia.

"Up to this time, the process of schooling has been organized on the assumption that the human brain grows on some sort of continuum, and that the task of education is to challenge the learner," says Toepfer. "Although regarded as fact, no data exist to support the reality of this assumed brain growth."

According to the new theory, the brain develops in spurts between the ages of 2 to 4, 6 to 8, 10 to 12, 10 to 12, and 14 to 16-plus years. During each period the brain grows between five and 10 percent in size in 85 to 90 percent of humans, according to Toepfer

Just as the brain grows during two-year periods, there are two-year plateaus where no significant growth is found. These plateaus come between ages 4 to 6, 8 to 10, and 12 to 14 years.

"During these plateau periods, it becomes almost impossible for youngsters to initiate and develop new and higher level thinking skills," contends Toepfer.

What this means for parents and educators is that higher level thinking skills should be taught children during the growth periods and reinforced during the plateaus.

"Learning experiences during the plateau intervals should focus upon helping youngsters to consolidate, refine, and mature the new and higher level thinking skills they initiated during their just completed brain growth spurt," according to Toepfer.

Two early thinking skills are learning to name an item and recall its name. According to this research it would be appropriate to introduce those skills during the 2 to 4 year spurt. Parents and teachers could expand among and reinforce those skills during the following plateau period.

When the next growth spurt comes, between 4 to 6 years, higher level skills, such as explaining and discussing, should be introduced.

Robbins Selected President's Pride

Sherry Lynn Robbins

Sherry Lynn Robbins, a freshman at East Tennessee State University who is a 1980 graduate of Jonesville High School, is one of 26 students accepted into President's Pride, an honorary organization which represents ETSU at many functions throughout the year.

Miss Robbins, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac D. Robbins of Blackwater, is carrying a 4.0 grade point average as a biology major in the ETSU pre-med program. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.F. Minor.

A Dean's List student, Sherry is a member of the Society for Creative Anachronism, a pre-professional organization, and Alpha Lambda Delta Honor Society.

"The President's Pride membership is composed of ETSU students who have been selected for outstanding leadership and academic abilities," said Jack Hensley, director of the organization.

According to Hensley, the selection process includes nomination by a faculty or present Pride member and an interview with a committee made up of Pride members and university administrative personnel. Following selection to the Pride, students undergo an internship period where they learn about the organization.

The total membership does not exceed 30 students with the exception of the 100 charter members selected three years ago.

Family and Friends Can Help With Blood Pressure Treatment: Don't Face It Alone

Doing the things your doctor has advised to bring your blood pressure down—and keep it there for the rest of your life—will call for making some changes in your life. It will not be easy at first. Don't try to do it alone. Ask your family and friends to help you Wasn't there a time when they needed you and you were there? Give them a chance to help you NOW

Untreated high blood pressure can lead to heart and kidney disease, or stroke. There is no cure for high blood pressure. But it can be controlled Treatment by medication or by diet is required daily for the rest of your life

HBP Is a Family Affair

Doctors have found that high blood pressure runs in families There is a chance of more than one member of a family having hypertension So if family members learn early on to watch weight, cut back on salt, get more exercise, and how to deal with high blood pressure, they will benefit They will be helped as they help you treat your blood pressure.

Give your family members things to do in order to help. Your doctor can tell you how to have someone take blood pressure readings and record progress on a chart. A family member might be asked to remind you about daily medication Family members also can help with pill refills, with doctor visits, and with getting help from other health workers like educators, nutritionists, or dietitians

Friends can help, too Changes your doctor asked you to make—such as to reduce your weight, cut down eating salt, exercise more, or smoke less—affect activities often done among friends. A friend can be very helpful. Tell someone you need help following your doctor's advice.

Ask for More Information

Ask your doctor where you can learn more about high blood pressure. You—and your family—may need to learn about diet changes It will help a lot in asking your family to make changes if they understand why they are important

Cutting down on salt, high-calorie foods, and food amounts, shopping wisely for foods low in sodium or calories and using spices rather than salt or those that are high in sodium can be worthwhile when the family does these together

Your family also can help you get more exercise, such as walks around the block

But you cannot expect your family and friends to do everything Staying with treatment is your job It won't be easy to control high blood pressure Remember, your family and friends will be there if you need them

Parents Play Important Role In Education

Education is everyone's business, but there's a special role for parents.

Education has been called the cornerstone of democracy, and schools have a tremendous responsibility to help students develop the skills they'll need to succeed as adults. That job can be done best if schools and parents work together. Parents can lay the foundation for their youngsters to have a successful school experience.

Here are nine tips:

*Help young children learn and use simple words. It's amazing how much vocabulary a three year-old can develop if given support. Identify familiar objects for children with their names. The sooner young children can communicate simple words and concepts, the sooner they can move to more difficult learning

*Turn on television programs that teach. There are many that help young children learn to count, the alphabet, and even simple words.

*Listen to young children. This requires patience, but it also encourages youngsters to develop speaking skills.

*Read to children Reading is so important to education, and parents can emphasize that importance by reading regularly to young children. It will also help them recognize letters and words.

*Take the family on trips that have educational value. Going to the zoo or to a museum can reinforce lessons taught at school. And it's fun for the family

*Praise students for their success in school. Parents' feelings are important to their children. Students should understand that parents think it's as important to score well on a spelling test as it is to keep their room clean.

*Set aside 20 minutes each weekend when every one in your home reads. Students will understand that reading is important if parents demonstrate that by their example. And keep plenty of reading materials around your home.

*Establish a quiet place for study in your home. Pollsters tell us that Americans have watched 18,000 hours of television by the time they reach 18 years of age. This compares to 15,000 hours in school. In front of the television is not the best place to do homework. Give your youngster's mind a chance to absorb his or her lessons.

*Let your youngster know that you believe education is important. Parents can do this by taking an interest in what their students are doing in school, by asking questions about what happens in the class and about school projects. They can also do this by attending school events, such as back-to-school nights and open houses. Joining school support groups, such as music boosters or PTAs, indicate the value you place on education.

The greater the cooperation between the school and home, the better the learning experience for students. Working together we can provide the best possible education for students

Bee Stings Can Be Fatal To Some

With the return to outdoor activities this spring comes once again the hazard of bees and wasps.

For most of us the venom of a stinging insect hurts and is annoying, but is not a serious health problem For some the bee sting can kill. Those are the individuals who are allergic to stings. Insect stings cause more deaths yearly than snake bites, says the American Medical Association's Handbook of First Aid and Emergency Care The most common stinging insects are bees, hornets, wasps, yellow jackets, bumble bees and fire ants.

The sting causes pain, swelling, redness, itching and burning. If stung by a honey bee, carefully remove the stinger by gently scraping with a knife blade or finger nail Wash with soap and water Place ice wrapped in cloth or cold compresses on the sting area. Soothing lotions such as calamine or a paste of baking soda and a little water are often helpful in relieving discomfort.

Those allergic to insect stings suffer from a condition known as anaphylactic shock. It can occur sometimes from only one sting if the victim has been stung previously

Insect sting shock symptoms include severe swelling in other parts of the body, such as around the eyes, lips and tongue Weakness, coughing or wheezing, severe itching, stomach cramps, nausea and vomiting, anxiety, difficulty in breathing, dizziness, collapse, unconsciousness and hives or rash over the body often follow quickly after the sting.

It is important to open an airway and restore breathing. Some experts suggest using a tourniquet in severe reactions where life might be at stake Emergency insect sting kits available only by prescription sometimes contain a tourniquet It can be used only if the sting is on an arm or leg. Don't tie it too tight and loosen every five minutes until medical help arrives A watchband or belt can serve as a tourniquet.

Place cold compresses on the sting area Keep the victim lying down unless he is short of breath Then let him sit up Keep victim quiet and comfortable If a first aid kit for insect stings is available use it according to the directions

Volunteer And Cooperative Efforts Recognized

In recognition of outstanding cooperative and volunteer efforts provided to the Division of Mined Land Reclamation, Commissioner Danny R. Brown recently presented awards to one individual and three committees.

Charles Baker, who retired in April from the U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS) was presented the "Commissioner's Award", which recognizes outstanding contributions toward reclamation excellence. A plaque was presented to Mr. Baker by Commissioner Brown at a luncheon held at the Division headquarters in Big Stone Gap on Friday, May 8.

A former District Conservationist with the SCS, he has functioned in a cooperative capacity with DMLR since 1966, and has served in the Division's program development process as a member of the Performance Standards Committee. In 1977, he was appointed by Governor John Dalton to the Governor's Mined Land Reclamation Advisory Committee on which he still serves.

Commissioner Brown commented that Mr. Baker has assisted the Division practically since its creation - "we feel like we are losing one of our own. In reality, however, we look forward to continuing this cooperative relationship through the Governor's Advisory Committee, as well as other consultative avenues."

Volunteerism awards were also presented on Thursday, April 30 to the three Program Development Work Committees. The committees, whose membership comprise individuals from industry, state and federal natural resource conservation agencies and the general public, were established to provide balanced input into the Division's program development process following the passage of the federal surface mine law.

Each year, agencies of the Commonwealth are requested by the Virginia Division of Volunteerism to nominate individuals or groups who have made volunteer contributions of their time and/or expertise to the programs conducted by these agencies. The certificates, signed by Governor Dalton's wife, as well as Department of Conservation and Economic Development Board Chairman, J.H. Johnson; Director Fred W. Walker; and DMLR Commissioner Danny R. Brown were presented to the chairperson of these committees by Commissioner Brown.

Receiving the awards for the committees were James Manicure, Performance Standards, Charles Perry, Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation and Small Operator Assistance Program, and Noel Stallard, Procedures and Enforcement.

USDA Tries Streamlining The Labeling Process

Charlie Ford is one of 8,000 people who keeps tabs on the nation's meat and poultry supply. He's a U.S. Department of Agriculture meat and poultry inspector.

Part of Ford's job has always been to check the accuracy of product labels -- making sure that the right ingredients are in the product and checking to see if the net weight is accurate.

But he's being given even more responsibility for insuring that meat and poultry labels give the consumer truthful information that is not misleading. Ford and a selected number of people like him are taking part in an experiment which allows USDA in-plant inspectors to assist in the complex label approval process.

For over 75 years, USDA has been responsible for assuring the safety of the nation's meat supply and more recently poultry, and are likewise responsible for assuring the accuracy of the labels on these products.

The regulatory procedures for labeling are not an easy matter. As the industry becomes more complex, so does the labeling process. Marketing food is a competitive business that requires producers to frequently introduce new products and change the way the label looks.

In each case the application for a label approval will end up in the label review office of USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service in Washington, D.C.

On the second floor of the smallest building in the USDA complex, seven people wade through 100,000 applications a year as they battle to uphold the intent of the federal meat and poultry inspection acts, Ford said.

"Applications pour in by mail, messenger and even company representatives who hand carry requests," Ford said. "The reviewers must check every detail of a label request to be sure that it meets USDA requirements.

"Does the name of the product adequately describe the product? Is there a product weight? What is the name of the distributor or packer? Is the in-plant inspector's mark displayed? Does the product reqire a special handling statement such as, 'refrigerate after opening'?

"Let's suppose a producer wanted to label a product 'Hungarian Goulash'," Ford said. "According to USDA regulations the firm would not be allowed to do that unless the product was actually imported from Hungry. However, if the producer is willing to formulate the product according to the accepted style, it could be called 'Hungarian Style Goulash (made in the U.S.A.)'."

USDA has standards for many meat and poultry products that describe what a product must contain to qualify as a recognized style. The standard for Hungarian style goulash, for example, requires that the product contain at least 25 percent fresh meat, have no noodles, potatoes or dumplings and must contain paprika.

"If producers wish to market their own version of the product, then the product name must be a choice of words which are not misleading to the consumer," Ford said. "Since the product does not meet the accepted style and is not imported from that country, it would have to be identified with an alternative descriptive product name. The list of ingredients on the label would spell out the contents in detail."

With a growing number of applications sent to USDA daily, USDA officials saw the need for a new approach to reviewing the 100,000 labels received every year.

"We're considering a change in its regulations that would allow inspectors such as myself to have certain label approval authority," said Ford, who is based at a sausage plant in Baltimore, Md.

Since Dec. 1, 1980, USDA has been testing the feasibility of the new system through a pilot program. About 270 meat and poultry inspectors in Missouri, Kentucky, Delaware and the District of Columbia are involved.

During the test period, USDA employees like Ford have the authority to approve any "simple" label requests. Simple label requests are labels for products that are made from single ingredients which do not make any claims about quality or nutrition or which do not make guarantees.

Employees like Ford will also be responsible for the final approval of any printed labels that have been previously approved in sketch by the Washington office.

"USDA's objective with this test is to streamline the present system and get its inspectors at the plants involved in the label review process, since they know more about the product than anyone else," said Ford. "This would greatly reduce the Washington label review staff's workload and allow them to concentrate more on policy matters."

Spending Slashes For Education Hit Middle-Income Families Hardest

Students and parents in the middle-income bracket will be hardest hit if President Reagan's plan for educational spending slashes is approved.

The proposal to lop off two to three billion dollars from the current student aid program could drastically affect the higher education community while having a demoralizing effect on the secondary education level.

Under the proposed changes in both the Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) and Pell Grant (formerly BEOG) programs, middle-income families would feel the impact most. Present law requires families earning less than $25,000 annually to contribute up to 14 percent of their disposable income. The Reagan plan would required them to contribute 20 percent of their income to education costs. Wealthier families may have to pay more.

This could have the effect of forcing many current high school seniors to discard their plans to attend college and go into a job market that offers few jobs.

To curtail the number of Guaranteed Student Loans allocated to middle-and upper-income families, the Reagan proposal would limit the size of loans to the amount a student needs to cover education costs after other sources of student aid and family income are taken into account.

The loan-reform plan would reduce federal subsidies even for the neediest students by ending the federal policy of paying the interest on loans while borrowers are still in college.

In addition, another source of federal aid to deserving college students -- social security payments -- would be eliminated entirely.

The education community is gearing up to resist this action, and as an important sector of this community the National Association of College Admissions Counselors is mounting a major campaign to fight the proposed cuts. Clinch Valley College and its staff have been asked to participate in this campaign on behalf of the students they serve.

For major effect, the support of all parents and students is needed to save the financial aid that has enabled thousands of students to attain a quality higher education. Persons in the education community are working to save the present program of financial aid to deserving students, but the support and response of parents and students is needed.

How You React To A Tornado Warning May Save Your Life

One of the most frightening phenomena about tornadoes is that they often strike suddenly and with little or no warning.

How you react if a tornado strikes your town may determine whether you survive the almost certain devastation, says the Insurance Information Institute.

The Institute stresses the importance of staying inside during the storm and cautions motorists to never try to flee from the path of the tornado in an automobile. Tornadoes are too swift and erratic.

Prepare Before the Tornado Season

Citing findings from a recent study by the Bureau of Epidemiology at the Federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, the Institute offers the following recommendations:

1. People in single family dwellings in tornado prone areas should identify and reinforce some interior portion of their home as a shelter.

2. Mobile home parks should provide a community shelter for their residents.

3. All public buildings should have clearly designated tornado shelters.

4. People in motor vehicles should seek shelter immediately when they hear a tornado warning.

The Institute suggests that homeowners, businesses, schools, churches or other public facilities keep a battery operated radio, flashlights and a supply of fresh batteries on hand.

Homeowners are also advised to take a complete inventory of their personal belongings before a tornado or other disaster strikes. This inventory should be kept in a safe deposit box or in a safe place away from the premises. An insurance claim is made easier if you keep a good inventory list, receipts and other pertinent information concerning your possessions in a safe place.

During the Storm

Motorists who happen to be in their car as a tornado approaches are advised to abandon the vehicle and seek shelter in the nearest ditch or depression, if no suitable shelter is available.

According to the Institute, the safest place in the home is in the basement. In houses that do not have a basement, residents are advised to take shelter in a bathroom or closet on the lowest level of the structure or under a heavy piece of furniture. Stay away from windows. A large piece of furniture or a mattress in your basement will provide protection in an emergency.

If a tornado strikes during school hours, teachers will keep children away from windows and seek shelter either in a designated area or in interior hallways. Concerned parents Should Not attempt to go out in the storm to pick up their children at school.

The Institute advises office workers or shoppers to seek shelter in an interior corridor on the lowest level of whatever structure they are in and to stay away from windows or exterior walls. All personnel should be aware of the location of designated shelter areas in their buildings.

After the Storm

After a tornado has struck a community, the Institute urges residents to be alert for broken power lines, shattered glass, splintered wood and other hazards that they may encounter.

Homeowners and businessmen who have suffered damage to their property are advised to make temporary repairs to prevent further loss from rain, wind and looting. They should also contact their insurance agent as soon as possible, since prompt service is usually available within hours after a tornado or other disaster strikes a community.

A free-loan film produced by the Institute, "Nightmare of Spring," is available to the business community and to educational groups. The film demonstrates the need to be prepared to act fast to protect both life and property if a tornado strikes your community.

Requests for the film, which should include both a first choice date and an alternate date, should be sent to: Modern Talking Picture Service, 5000 Park Street North, St. Petersburg, Florida, 33709, or contact the Institute's Regional Office, Insurance Information Institute, Suite 370, 1025 Vermont Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C., 20005.

Body Repair Has Variety

What is it worth to do a job right? Well, just ask the "good ole boys" in Mr. Lawrence Cridlin's Auto Body Class. Not only do they earn a good or acceptable grade for their efforts in class, it can be financially profitable.

Mr. Cridlin, a veteran vocational school instructor for 14 years, says that "body repair has variety there are different problems with each damaged vehicle." In addition to having a broad knowledge of automobile construction and repair techniques, repairers must develop appropriate methods for each job. Occasionally, some of the tasks performed in auto body repair are straightening bent frames, removing dents, and replacing crumpled parts, actually, much of the work revolves around repairing and refinishing sheet metal. Small dents and creases can be smoothed out by holding a small anvil against one side of the damaged area while hammering the opposite side; small pits and dimples are removed with pick hammers and punches, but when the vehicle is badly damaged the part has to be removed and new sections installed. Another technique used by body repairers is the use of plastic or solder to fill small dents which cannot be worked out of the metal. Then they file or grind the hardened filler to the original shape and sand it before painting.

Many of the vehicles the boys work on look ready for the "graveyard," but a few weeks later they are made to look and drive like new.

According to the young men in the auto body class "Mr. Cridlin demands quality work," and judging the finished product leads one to believe he usually gets it. And "yes," the boys agree, "it's worth it to do the job right."

The car pictured above is a duplication of "General Lee" as seen on the Dukes of Hazard television series. It would require a very special eye to discern the difference in the two cars. Would we dare say "Boss Hog" supervised this job?

Here's How a Georgia Boy Became a Political Writer

BY ROY V. HARRIS

For sometime I have been writing about political issues. I've been writing about political issues because they concern all of us and because this country is in a mess produced by our politicians.

I have been involved in a lot of politics in Georgia over a period of 60 years.

I thought it might be interesting to you as to how I got interested in politics in the first place, and to tell you a little something about politics in Georgia at that time.

It began in 1906. During that period I was 11 years old and we lived out in the country in Glascock County about fifty miles due west of Augusta. One day a parade of buggies came by. There weren't any automobiles in that part of the country in 1906. The parade was led by a buggy pulled by two big black horses, and only one man occupied the buggy. He was big enough to take up the whole buggy.

When my father came home that afternoon we wanted to know the meaning of the parade. He told us that a man by the name of Jim Smith was running for Governor and some of his friends from the nearby town were going with him to the crossroads below where we lived to hear him make a speech.

A few days later I noticed a picture of this big fat man in the buggy with two big black horses on the front page of one of the newspapers. The fat man and the black horses attracted my attention and I started reading about the Governor's race.

As I remember, there were nine candidates for Governor. Hoke Smith, the owner of the Atlanta Journal was one candidate, Clark Howell, the owner of the Atlanta Constitution was another. Then there was the fat man, a man from Macon, one from Savannah, and Senator Richard B. Russell's father was also in the race. I don't remember the names of the others.

Politics was hot that summer and there was a great deal of interest. Due to the peculiar situation in Georgia, there were two main factions in the state at that time. One group followed Hoke Smith and the Atlanta Journal and the others followed Clark Howell and the Atlanta Constitution. So the state was divided between the Smith and the Howell factions. The other candidates were running on their own.

Then there was Thomas E. Watson who lived in Thomson, Georgia, about twenty-five miles from where we lived. He had run for President in the 90's on the Populist ticket and Hoke Smith had been a member of President Cleveland's cabinet. Watson had the old Populist following in Georgia with him and he held the balance of power. He put Governors in and put them out when they didn't suit him.

Watson supported Hoke Smith in 1906 and Smith got elected. The term of a Governor was two years then and, during Smith's first term, Watson got mad at him because he wouldn't pardon a man who had been convicted of killing a woman at the Old King Mill in Augusta.

During his first term, Smith fired a man by the name of Joe Brown, who lived in Marietta, from the old railroad commission.

The Howell group and Watson got together and decided to run Joe Brown for Governor. He was known as "Little Joe". He was rather insignificant looking and didn't make a good appearance. So, they adopted the strategy of keeping him at Marietta and letting him write what they called a "card" for the newspapers everyday. With Watson's help, "Little Joe", who was a part of the Howell faction, got elected in 1908.

Then Watson got mad with "Little Joe" and in 1910 he supported Hoke Smith and Hoke got elected again.

The way Watson flipped them in and flipped them out is a result of the politics at that time. Most of the rural people were still Populist and still followers of Watson. The Democrats were split between the Smith group and the Howell group, and Watson had a picnic.

The big fat man and the two black horses not only got me interested in politics, but caused me to begin to read the newspapers. The elections of 1906, 1908 and 1910 were enough to excite the interest of any young person and I suppose as a result I developed a keen interest in politics.

By the way, we lost our big fat candidate and his two black horses in the telling of this story. He carried three counties in the election that year and it was said of him that he owned one county and bought two.

Social Security News

Every month people come into the social security office with the question, "What happened to my check?" They generally find out that it is something they have either done or neglected to do that has caused their checks to stop.

The most common cause of failure to receive a social security check is failure to report a change of address. You'd be surprised at the number of people who move without telling social security where they've moved to, despite the fact that the social security check is their primary source of income.

Some people think it's enough to report the change of address to the post office. However, the post office will forward mail from social security to your new address for a year only. After that they will send the check back to Treasury.

Certain changes in your payment status can automatically result in your social security check being stopped. These include, for example, a mother whose youngest child turns 18, or a dependent whose check is based on the work record of a worker who goes back to work and earns over the earnings limit.

It will take from 1 to 2 days to review the record to see what caused your check to stop. If it looks as if the check has actually been sent, our regional program center will contact the Treasury Department disbursement office. The Treasury Department will determine if your check has been returned and if it has, a new check will be sent to you. This usually takes 4 to 5 days from the day process was started.

If the Treasury Department finds that the check has not been returned, it will put a stop order on it, and transfer the matter to its Washington, D.C. office to determine if the check has been cashed. If it has not been cashed, Treasury will send you a new check immediately.

However, if the check has been cashed, a new check cannot be issued until it is determined who cashed the first one. Treasury will send you the cancelled check and a form requesting an information you may have as to who cashed the check. If you were not responsible for cashing the check, the Treasury Department will send you a replacement check. The process from the time you came into the office until you receive the replacement check could take up to 21 days.

Nationwide, about 60,000 people each month report they did not receive their checks, and about a third of these actually have problems that result in the issuance of a new check. That is less than one-tenth of one percent of the more than 35 million people who get benefits each month.

Among the things you are required to report are earnings of more than the annual exempt amount, if you go outside the U.S.; if you divorce or your marriage is annuled, marriage, adoption of a child; child leaves the care of wife, widow, or widower, child nearing 18 is a full time student or is disabled, change in school attendance for a student 18-22, or if a person getting benefits dies.

Spring Car Care Is Out-Of-Sight

When it comes time to spruce up your car for summer, many items that need care are out of sight and therefore out of mind, says the Automotive Information Council (AIC).

Most people like to wax their car before summer but often leave it at that, so AIC has compiled a maintenance list of commonly forgotten items.

Look at the condition of the air cleaner. If it's clogged with dust and grime, not enough air gets through to the carburetor. That can result in poor combustion and wasted fuel, along with reduced performance.

Think about a tune-up because it might be time, especially since the car has come through the rigors of a colder weather driving.

Inspect the tires for cuts or other damage and check the tire pressure, including the spare. Underinflated tires can waste up to one gallon of gasoline out of every 20.

Check the condition of the wiper blades. Winter weather might have cracked or deteriorated the rubber blades. It's a good idea to replace the blades if they are over a year old.

Take a test drive and pay attention to the performance of the brakes and the steering. These items have been punished during winter driving and may need some attention.

Check all fluid levels – oil, steering, transmission, brakes and cooling system.

Before you wax the car, touch up any scratches to guard against rust. Car

Breaks Park Offers Heritage Program

Breaks Interstate Park will celebrate Appalachian Heritage Day on May 29 by offering a series of programs free of charge to the public at the park amphitheater.

Roadside Theater performers, whose mountain tales thrilled more than 800 school children bussed to the park last May, will tell "Jack Tales" this year at 10:30 a.m. and 1:00 p.m.

At 7:30 p.m. Appalachian expert Dr. Helen Lewis and Clinch Valley College professor Dr. R.A. Ball will present a program to acquaint the public with the background and character originals for John Fox Jr.'s Trail of the Lonesome Pine. At 8:30 p.m. these character originals will come alive as Roadside Theater performs the folk drama Red Fox, Second Hangin'.

The program is being presented on the Friday leading into Memorial Day to allow area schools to bus children to the park in the morning and afternoon to serve park campers, lodgers, and visitors. Area principals are requested to inform the park how many children they plan to bring.

Breaks Park Appalachian Heritage Day is sponsored by Breaks Interstate Park and Arts Council and Education, with grants from the Kentucky Arts Commission, Virginia Commission for the Arts, and the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities and Public Policy.

Boys Home 75th Anniversary

BOYS' HOME, located in western Alleghany County near Covington, Virginia, will observe its 75th Anniversary with a celebration on Saturday, June 13th.

Founded in 1906 by The Rev. G. Floyd Rogers, Rector of the Episcopal church in Covington, it served as a school and church mission for the then isolated mountain children.

It soon began to take in boys who needed a home. The first facility was a log cabin which was loaned to Mr Rogers for his use

Now affiliated with the Episcopal Dioceses of Southern Virginia and Southwestern Virginia, BOYS' HOME is a modern child care community where 61 boys currently live.

BIGGER ROLE FOR ALLIES IN DEFENSE ARENA

By Edwin Feulner

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger failed to win promises of increased defense spending from the Japanese, Dutch and West German defense ministers who met with him in Washington several weeks ago.

Their refusal was not unexpected But it poses a real dilemma to the young Reagan Administration as it attempts to shore up the West's defenses, while struggling with serious budget problems here at home

Still, the fact remains that Japan and European members of the NATO alliance must assume greater responsibility for their own defenses The United States cannot continue to shoulder the burden forever

Certainly, our allies cannot be expected at this time to raise their real growth in defense spending up to an order of magnitude approaching that of either the Soviet Union or the United States That would be unrealistic on our part.

However, the U.S. should seek a consensus from its allies as to the seriousness of the Soviet threat and a commitment to increase their defense burden gradually — in spite of economic stringencies, which the U.S. also faces

At a meeting in Bonn on April 8, NATO defense ministers for the first time formally and unanimously linked Soviet international behavior to the resumption of arms control talks But they still balk at committing the resources necessary for dealing with the Soviet threat

For the past three years, for example, the commitment of NATO's allies to the defense of Western Europe has been gauged in terms of whether or not they were meeting the 1978 pledge to a three percent annual rate of growth in defense spending By late 1980, however, it became apparent that due to low economic growth, most of our European allies would fail to meet the three percent real growth pledge in 1981

Rather than couching the NATO defense spending issue primarily in terms of whether they are meeting an arbitrary, fixed percentage increase in defense spending this year, U S policymakers should seek to define exactly what areas in the NATO and European defense programs are most in need of increased spending, and seek allied support for these programs over and above the promised three percent increase

As Deputy Secretary of Defense Frank Carlucci told a conference of Western officials in Munich "The U S no longer produces and consumes 50 percent of the world's Gross National Product Europe is no longer shattered, impoverished, and disunited Indeed, Western Europe's total GNP exceeds that of the U S "

A look at the comparative defense spending for Western nations (see below) shows why the U S must insist on its allies shouldering more of the burden

COMPARATIVE DEFENSE SPENDING
FOR THE TEN WEALTHIEST WESTERN NATIONS

Nation	As % of GNP	1980 U S $ (in billion)
U S	5.2%	142 7
U K	4 9%	24 4
France	3 9%	20 2
Netherlands	3 4%	5 2
W Germany	3 3%	25 1
Belgium	3 3%	3 7
Australia	2 8%	3 9
Italy	2 4%	6 6
Canada	1 7%	4 2

Pennington In Semi - Finals

Pennington High School Baseball team won second place in the Cumberland District and advanced to semi-finals in Region D by defeating Appalachia 6-1.

Keokee Wins Cumberland Championship

The Keokee Mountaineers claimed another Cumberland district championship, last Wednesday afternoon when they belted the Pennington Bobcats 16-5.

The Mountaineers sent Kip Phillips to the mound to oppose Pennington's Gary Pendergraft. It probably would have been a much better ball game, if Pennington could have pitched with a rested arm. But he has pitched so much this season, that his arm was bound to bother him sometimes. And yesterday it did. After pitching the first inning, allowing no runs on one hit, he did not go to the mound for the second inning. He went to play shortstop with Gary Collier coming on in relief. Collier failed to get a single batter out after pitching to three batters. He was pulled in favor of Earl Rose, who went one inning and got knocked out, giving up four runs on three hits. Scott Haynes worked the last four innings for Pennington, and gave up nine runs on six hits and walking eight batters.

Keokee scored seven times in the second inning when five different players all had hits. The Bobcats came up with a run in the third on three runs and a error. Then in the bottom half of the inning, Keokee loaded the bases for Chig Davis, the Mountaineer's catcher. Davis simply over powered the ball as he sent the ball sailing over the left field fence for a grand slam. When the ball finally came down, it landed on the football field. Davis was tough to get out all day as he had three hits in four trips, while driving in seven runs and scoring three times himself. He also threw out a couple of runners trying to steal bases.

Pennington didn't get their first hit of the game until the sixth inning, when Phillips walked Pendergraft, and Bobby Ledbetter doubled him home. Gary Collier and Roger Byington was the only others to reach Phillips for a hit. Phillips struck out twelve and walked eight before getting relief help from Kevin Pennington, who pitched the last two hitters in the game. He struck out both men he faced. He fanned Mike Jones to end the game.

Gary Collier was charged with the loss, his first against three wins. Phillips got the win to up his record to 5-1.

Keokee's record improves to 17-2 overall, while Pennington falls to 15-3. All three losses have come against Keokee.

Pennington Bobcats Eliminate Appalachia 6-1

In the opening game of the regional tournament being played at Wise, the Pennington Bobcats got a strong pitching effort from Gary Pendergraft to post a 6-1 decision over the Appalachia Bulldogs.

The Bobcats scored single runs in the second and third innings for a 2-0 lead, before the Bulldogs got their lone run in the fifth to make it 2-1. Pendergraft then got tough on the mound and held the Bulldogs scoreless the rest of the way.

Pennington stretched the 2-1 lead to 5-1 in the sixth, when Pendergraft sent Bo Stuart on his way to the showers, with a two run homer. Bobby Ledbetter then added a solo shot, that drove Stuart from the mound. Stuart a left hander struck out nine, but walked seven to help the Bobcats scoring. He remained in the game to play left field when pulled from the mound Kilgore finished on the mound, but was reached for a homerun in the seventh by Mike Jones. Jones who had two hits in the game, sent the ball soaring towards right field. It barely cleared the fence. Ledbetters homerun was also to right field, but there wasn't any doubt when the ball left the bat, as right fielder Brian Williams just turned away and didn't even bother to watch it go out.

Pendergraft fanned nine batters and walked three, while giving up only the one run on three hits. The win ups his won-loss record to 9-2, while Penningtons record goes to 16-3 overall. All three losses by the Bobcats have been to Keokee, who was to play Wise yesterday if the weather permitted. Pennington was also suppose to play St. Paul yesterday, again if the weather permitted. Should Pennington or Keokee, if not both advance to the regional finals, scheduled for Thursday, all you baseball fans go up to Wise High School to see some pretty good baseball, and push for the team of your choice to win and go on to the state tournament.

Keokee Mountaineers Shutout T.W. Pioneers

The Keokee Mountaineers team moved into the finals of the district tournament last Tuesday by turning back the Thomas Walker Pioneers 9-0.

Roger Morris called on senior right hander Mickey Hubbard to do the job on the mound, and he responded with a four hit shutout. He fanned thirteen Pioneers in route to upping his won-loss record to 6-0.

Keokee scored once in the first, and then crossed the plate five times in the third to make it 6-0. A couple of times, Thomas Walker had the bases loaded against Hubbard but couldn't come up with the big hit to get back into the game.

The Pioneers started Alden Payne, who worked five innings. Tom Howard pitched the last inning for Thomas Walker

Keokee had eight hits in the game with Jeff Collins, Kip Phillips, Jesse Robbins and Kevin Estep all gathering two hits each. Phillips had a solo homer over the left field fence, while Kevin Estep parked one in the same vicinity with one man aboard.

The Pioneers who closed out the season at 10-8, have a very young ball club. Although the Pioneers only had four hits, they had Johnny Edds who had one hit, and stole four bases in the game. Edds only a freshman, posted a won-loss record of 6-2 this year, and certainly has all the credentials to be a gifted athlete. Ronald Skeens and the entire Thomas Walker High School can be proud just to know they will have Edds back for three more years

The win by Keokee raises their overall record to 16-2. The Mountaineers met Pennington in the finals at Jonesville last Wednesday, with both teams advancing to the regionals, which began this past Monday at St. Paul. Good luck Mountaineers and Roger Morris in the regionals!!

Pennington Bobcats Move To Finals, Belts Dryden 10-0

In another semi final action game of the district tournament played last Tuesday, Pennington belted Dryden to move on to the finals. The win over Pat Jervis' Crusaders also assured Jack Rasnics Bobcats of going to the regionals.

The game started out as if it might have been a pitchers duel, as after two innings, neither team had a hit. But that didn't last long as Pennington scored four times in the third. With one out in the third inning, Gary Collier lined a base hit up the middle. He raced home on a double by Jerome Dean. Dean then scored when Pendergraft double to left centerfield. Bobby Ledbetter then drove the ball over the left field fence.

Mike Jones, who had two hits, both doubles in the game, pitched the last four innings of the game. He gave up only three hits in his work stint, while starter and winner Gary Pendergraft allowed nobody to reach base in the first three innings of the game. He struck out four, in raising his record to 8-2.

Dryden started Ronnie Rhoten was relieved in the fifth by Greg Peters. Both had pitched fairly well the day before against Jonesville. Rhoten gave up five runs, all earned on four hits. He was charged with the loss, dropping his won loss record to 2-7. Dryden finishes the season with an overall record of 5-12.

The win gives Pennington a 15-2 overall record, with at least two more games to play. The two being the district tournament finals, plus at least one game in the regionals, which a lot of fans are hoping the Bobcats play more.

Memorial Day

Memorial Day is a special day set aside in memory of war days. From 1861 to 1865 the terrible Civil War was raging in our country. Thousands of brave men left their homes to join the Army of the Blue or the Gray. They fought for the cause they thought was right whether it was for the Union or the South.

Thousands of soldiers lost their lives and at last peace was established There was not a village in the South that did not mourn its dead and scarce ly any in the North.

The women of the Confederacy began to go to different places from time to time and put flowers on the graves of their soldiers and loved ones. After a while the beautiful custom spread North

General John A. Logan, Commander in Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, set aside May 30th as Decoration Day for the Union soldiers who had died in the Civil War The name was later changed to "Memorial Day." In both the Northern and Western States the day was pro claimed a legal holiday. Patriotic services were held and the graves of the soldiers killed during the Civil War were decorated.

Since the Civil War there have been other wars where thousands of brave American soldiers have died

In commemoration of those who made the supreme sacrifice for their country in World War II Cecil E. Kennedy, Truman E. McElyea, Pearlie E. Smith, and Dee Chisen hall. The names of these young soldiers are listed on a plaque in the hallway at Keokee Combined School. Their memory still lingers in the hearts of those who loved them.

State Police Participates In Operation C.A.R.E.

The Department of State Police announced today that for the fourth consecutive year it will participate in Operation C.A.R.E. during the Memorial Day weekend.

C.A.R.E. is an acronym for Combined Accident Reduction Effort, a State-sponsored national program to reduce motor vehicle accidents, injuries and fatalities on three major holiday weekends -- Memorial Day, July 4 and Labor Day. Virginia actually began a similar program in 1977, the year prior to the national effort.

The Virginia program involves increasing the number of troopers patrolling certain sections of interstate, primary and secondary roads where statistical information indicates high traffic volume and high accident frequency can be anticipated. By increasing the visibility of troopers, motorists are encouraged to obey State traffic laws and sufficient troopers are available to issue summonses to those motorists who don't.

"While the national effort has generally concentrated on interstate highways," said Colonel D.M. Slane, Department Superintendent, "we extend our coverage to include other heavily-traveled roads in 1979. We found that the majority of holiday weekend accidents, injuries and deaths were occuring on roads other than our interstates."

Colonel Slane also said that while the increased number of troopers has served as a deterrent to violations, an almost equally important result of the program has been that an average of more than 5,000 stranded or . distressed motorists have been assisted by troopers on each C.A.R.E. weekend. "This is important," he said, "because in addition to enforcement, our members are dedicated to helping the motoring public reach their destinations safely."

Last year, troopers patrolled a total of 157,039 miles on the Memorial Day weekend and made 6,059 arrests. These included 4,587 arrests for speeding, 261 for reckless driving, 63 for drunk driving and 1,148 for other hazardous violations

Powell River Association WMU Met At Deep Springs

The Woman's Missionary Union of Powell River Association held their Eighty-Sixth Annual Meeting at Deep Springs Baptist Church, Dryden, Va., May 15, with Mrs. Betty Harless, Jonesville First Baptist Church, WMU Director. Mrs. Maude Ingle, WMU Secretary, called the roll of Churches in the WMU Powell River Association. The guest speaker was Mrs. Otis (Martha) Brady, a Southern Baptist Missionary to Belize, South America. She gave an interesting talk about the many places her family had lived and the work they were doing. Mrs. Elizabeth Minor and four ladies presented a skit, "Let Somebody Else Do It" Ms. Beulah Johnson and Rev. Tommy Thomas gave a dialogue, "A Question of Semantics."

Reports and Recommendments were given and voted on. 1981-82 officers were elected. Refreshments were served by the Deep Springs Baptist WMU.

Rainbows can be seen at night. Lunar rainbows were observed and recorded in ancient times and are not uncommon. They are a phenomenon of the same principle as the solar rainbow.

... A Time To Sow'

It's that time of year again – time to set out tobacco, make that first cutting of hay and enjoy those early garden blessings, sweet strawberries, fresh lettuce and onions and even green peas if you planted early enough. The last few warm, sunny days have offered farmers an excellent opportunity to plant their tobacco crops, and freshly - cut bales of hay dot the landscape along many a country lane. Local Extension Agent Harley Young "guesstimated," however, that Lee County first-cutting hay yields will be about 50 percent shy of last year's amount – a condition he attributes to our earlier lack of rainfall. Young went on to say that the drought could easily cause a feed shortage later in the year.

Local Authorities Link Three Recent Burglaries

The May 17 burglaries of Ann's Grocery at Ely Creek and U.S. 421, and Osborne Coal Yard, St. Charles, as well as the May 21 robbery of the Virginia Highway Residency Shop, Ewing, were all connected and have been virtually solved, according to Sheriff R.V. Chadwell and Deputy Marvin Radcliff

As Sheriff Chadwell and Deputy Radcliff related the incidents, apparently all three thefts involved the partial or combined efforts of one adult suspect and at least five juveniles

Osborne's Coal Yard was the first target with two suspects forcing entry and heisting two guns a .12 gauge shotgun and a .357 magnum rifle both valued at a combined worth of $675

These same two suspects joined by three other individuals pryed open a window at Ann s Grocery, owned by Ann Napier, stealing wine, beer cigarettes and sun glasses worth $107

The group then apparently headed south to Florida, Chadwell said, returning May 21 only to break into the Ewing Highway Residency Shop and take three power saws

It was the united, intense efforts of local authorities tracing the sale of these "hot" power saws that resulted in linking most of the loose ends surrounding the three

History Comes To Life At Appalachian Festival

By Diane Herndon

A visit to the Museum of Appalachia Spring Festival near Norris, Tenn., was a lot like stepping back in time.

The festival, held May 23-25, on the 50 acre Museum of Appalachia mountain homestead complex featured over 400 artisans, craftsmen, music makers and some just plain swappers all doing what they enjoy and know best.

For example, there was blacksmithing, white - oak basket making, rail splitting, whittling, lye soap making, corn meal grinding, landscape painting, leatherwork, quilting, wool spinning, making sauerkraut, sassasfras tea, and hominy, weaving, tin smithing, operation of a whisky still, sheep shearing and clogging, just to name a few of the many activities

There was plenty of country food for sale like soupbeans and cornbread, corn on the cob and barbequed ribs, all to be washed down with some buttermilk.

You could buy some freshly ground corn meal or join fellow visitors at the old fashioned Irwin Chapel for some gospel singing.

The Museum of Appalachia homestead is the 20-year project of Tennessee author and educator John Rice Irwin. Irwin, feeling a strong respect and appreciation of his mountain heritage, began collecting relics depicting pioneer customs and lifestyles.

He was further encouraged and heeded the earlier wisdom of his grandfather "to start a little museum of these old timey things sometime."

For 20 years the author of several books has traveled the most remote traces of Appalachia collecting over 100,000 pioneer and frontier relics

Irwin says he has tried to set up his Museum of Appalachia in such a manner as to give it a "lived in effect." For example, a

Theme: 'Society's Pressure Points"

Soil Stewardship Week will be held nationwide this year May 24 31, according to Carl David Osborne Chairman of the Daniel Boone Soil and Water Conservation District

Since 1955 Soil Stewardship Week has been recognized in millions of churches and schools across the nation It is designed to focus on the nation's natural resource problems and to consider ways to solve them

"This country must, at whatever cost, maintain the capacity of the land to produce food and fiber" notes the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD) in its booklet for the 1981 observance NACD sponsors Soil Stewardship Week in cooperation with the nation's 3,000 soil and water conservation districts.

"With our own population at 220 million and growing and with many regions of the world depending on the United States to supplement their food supply, the need to maintain our productive capacity becomes increasingly apparent,' according to NACD

This years event focuses on 'Society's Pressure Points' as its theme and covers such topics as soil and water conservation urbanization and loss of prime farmland

4-H Livestock Judging Teams 'Best' In Recent Competition

Two new plaques proudly hang in the Lee County Extension Office -- awards honoring the achievements of the Lee County 4-H Livestock Judging Teams.

Members of both the Junior and Senior 4-H Livestock Judging Teams were among 18 members competing from Southwest Virginia and East Tennessee at the Claiborne County Young Farmers and Homemakers Livestock Judging Contest, New Tazewell, Tenn.

On the winning Lee County Senior Team are Tim Dean, Alan Ingle, Jennifer Fannon and Roger Elkins. On the Junior team are Debbie Davidson, Elizabeth Ann Fannon, Todd Hines and Julie Young

Other junior and senior 4 H'ers lending back up support in the competition were Keith Moore, Charlie Carter, Tim Carter, Brian Shoemaker, Arty Dean and Billy Willis.

Julie Young received a separate award for being the highest individual junior scorer of the day.

Basically, 4-H livestock judging involves four key words -- look, compare, place and explain. Youngsters are asked to evaluate classes of cattle, sheep, swine and occasionally horses.

Through a series of several workshops and various competitions, Lee County 4 H'ers are acquiring the necessary judging skills which will ultimately help them in state competition at Virginia 4 H Club Congress, Blacksburg, during June.

Throughout the actual judging process, animals are evaluated according to size, muscle development, balance, quality, smoothness, finish, carcass merit and yield. Once the animals have been ranked, the 4 H'er must then be prepared to orally give reasons why he placed the animals in the manner he or she did. It is this particular aspect which requires fast thinking on one's feet by being able to organize facts in logical, orderly process.

Farmland Values Lost Ground To Inflation In 1980

U.S. farmland real estate values normally outpace inflation, but not last year.

Farmland prices rose an average of 9.3 percent in the 12 months ending February 1, 1981, while general inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index (CPI) increased about 11 percent. Thus the value of U.S farm real estate declined in 1980 the first such drop in a decade.

Even before adjustments for inflation, the 1980 performance was not up to par. The 9.3 percent rise was the smallest in 3 years. Farmland values increased 14 percent in 1978 and 15 percent in 1979

Net farm income fell from $31 billion in 1979 to $22 billion in 1980

Interest rates hit record highs in 1980, with the prime rate climbing to 20 percent in April, then dropping to 11 percent in July, and then shooting to 21.5 percent in December

Credit was tight during much of the year, making it difficult for many borrowers to secure loans

Although the inflation adjusted value of farmland dropped nationally 11 states showed values increases that matched or outstripped the CPI. Mississippi topped the list During the year ending February 1, 1981 prices there rose 17 percent to an average of $1049 per acre

The average per value of farmland in Virginia and neighboring states are as follows Virginia $1,087 Kentucky $995 Tennessee $1,024, North Carolina $1,247

Tobacco Growers Watch For Blue Mold

[Editor's Note. Trade and brand names are used only for the purpose of information and the Virginia Cooperative Extension Service does not guarantee nor warrant the standard of the product nor does it imply approval of the product to the exclusion of others which may also be suitable.]

Virginia tobacco farmers and Las Vegas gamblers have several things in common Both take dangerous risks and upon gut feelings and are at the mercy of several factors beyond their control

However one thing Virginia tobacco farmers shouldn't gamble with this season is dangerous blue mold disease a fungus that attacks all types of tobacco

According to Dean Kornm, Extension specialist in plant pathology and physiology at Virginia Tech's Southern Piedmont Research and Continuing Education Center in Chatham, it is possible to produce a crop even if your fields are infected. However it must be noted that a severe outbreak of spread such as the previous years appears to be developing for 1981

Outbreaks already have been reported in Cuba and in Southern Florida plant beds. Cubans lost 80 percent of last years crop to blue mold

Coal-Fuel System Lessens Acid Rain; Wastes Enrich Soil

Scientists looking for ways to make more energy and keep the environment clean at the same time have found that the solution to one problem sometimes is the cause of another.

Here's a case in point from the U.S. Department of Agriculture:

Problem -- The United States depends heavily on foreign petroleum, the price of which continues to rise at a rapid pace.

Solution -- Switch more power plants from oil to coal. High sulfur coal, in particular, yields energy at a relatively lower price and there's more of it within this nation's boundaries. Hence, we would need to import less oil

Problem -- Burning high sulfur coal puts higher levels of oxides into the air and contributes to acid rain, a threat to the environment.

Solution -- Capture the polluting oxides before they escape through furnace smokestacks. To achieve this, scientists have come up with a coal burning system called "fluidized bed combustion." As the coal burns, limestone chemically reacts with the sulfur dioxide and changes it into a dry, inert material that remains in the firebed instead of dirtying the air.

problem As much as one-third of a ton of limestone absorber waste remains for each ton of coal burned In one year's time, the wastes add up to billions of tons What's to be done with these huge piles of leftovers?

Solution Recycle the wastes on the soil to grow food and beautify the landscape? It can be done, believe agricultural scientists who have joined with other researchers to seek an end to the chain of problems stemming from burning coal.

Five years of on going tests show that enriching soils with the wastes has boosted crop yields, said Orus L. Bennett, a soil scientist with USDA's Science and Education Administration at the Appalachian Soil and Water Conservation Laboratory in Beckley, W Va

Although the wastes are not complete fertilizers, they supply some of the key nutrients plants need, and scientists believe the wastes have enormous potential for hiking food and fiber production.

It had been thought the pollutants might stunt plant growth.

"That didn't happen," said Bennett. "All of the crops we've fertilized with the wastes have grown normally. Yields went up at about the same rate you'd expect from the application of regular lime and chemically - made fertilizer. And, if fluidized bed combustion wastes could replace some of the fertilizer made from fossil fuels, there would be farther energy savings."

Bennett said the small amount of heavy metals in the coal-burning wastes did not appear to enter growing plants at levels high enough to hurt livestock.

"We fed sheep, beef animals and chickens with forage and grains fertilized with the wastes and found no adverse effects," he said. "Nor were there any signs of a health threat when we put the wastes directly in poultry diets. Rather, there was a slight increase in broiler growth . . . probably due to the conversion of sulfur to cystine and methionine -- essential amino acids."

Scientists are checking the safety of eating the waste fertilized foods in human nutrition research at the West Virginia University in Morgantown. If the early findings are borne out, said Bennett, the wastes may be offered to farmers for fertilizing crops. They expect an answer in about two years.

For use in human nutrition studies, said Bennett, the agricultural scientists are producing meat, milk and eggs from animals fed forage and grain fertilized with the wastes and vegetables, fruits, nuts and other foods grown in the waste-enriched soil.

Crop growers in the eastern United States who farm near coal burning furnaces are the most likely to fertilize with the wastes, said Bennett, since hauling the wastes long distances might not be profitable.

Ironically, huge tracts of land robbed of topsoil by coal mining may turn green again from applications of the fluidized bed combustion wastes, which are rich in calcium, sulfur, magnesium and other elements plants need to grow.

"As we look at waste disposal problems like this one," said Bennett, "we have to keep the total food chain in mind Each step in the cycle is a link with all the rest. Enriching soils with the coal-burning wastes look like the solution It seems to complete a major food energy cycle with no objectionable pieces left over."

In loving memory of Larry, Jane, and Tonya Ely.

The accident that took your life
Took your daughter and your wife
God called you all away
To be with Him on that day
We find it hard to bear the pain
And stop the tears that fall like rain
But with God's help we'll find a way
Till we meet again "SOME SWEET DAY"

VEC Commissioner Announces Resignation

Virginia Employment Commissioner Arthur L. Lane, Jr., DPA, today announced plans to leave the agency's top post on June 30.

Dr Lane, who was appointed VEC chief in September of 1978 by Governor Dalton, said that he had "planned to leave state service in the fall and had begun to consider other professional opportunities. However, I don't think it is fair to hold my VEC position while devoting substantial time to making plans to move on to another position.

"The VEC," Dr. Lane said, "has undergone many changes, some of which have been rather traumatic, during my three years as Commissioner But my excellent management team and staff workers have worked hard to bring about needed changes and I'm proud to say that the agency is now running quite smoothly. The staff has worked hard for me and I'm sure that they'll continue to work hard to insure that Virginia keeps one of the lowest unemployment rates in the nation."

During Dr Lane's term, the State's Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund was overhauled for the first time since the fund's creation during the 1930's. The VEC revamped its automated systems program to provide prompter and better service to people seeking jobs and unemployment insurance and it became a national leader in providing federal tax credits to employers who provide jobs to disadvantaged job seekers and in providing certified laborers for Virginia growers. Also during Dr. Lane's period of service, the majority of the VEC's CETA participants obtained jobs in the private sector after completing the CETA program.

Before accepting the VEC assignement, Dr Lane served as city manager in Radford and Hopewell and in Dublin, Ga. The Albemarle County native has received gubernatorial appointments to several advisory bodies and various offices and honors from numerous government, business and civic organizations.

State Parks Now Open

State parks commissioner Ben H. Bolen announced that Virginia state park facilities began operating for the 1981 season on Saturday, May 23, 1981.

"We expect a record turnout this year in Virginia state parks due to many new and improved facilities in the 17 recreational state parks and because today more people are seeking the type of inexpensive, quality vacation alternatives offered by Virginia's state parks," Commissioner Bolen said.

Summertime facilities and activities which will become available beginning Memorial Day weekend include: 8 protected swimming beaches and 3 pools, restaurant and snack bar concessions and horse and bicycle rentals. Visitor information centers, featuring a fascinating variety of displays and exhibits, will open for the summer at that time. Also, seasonal park interpreters begin offering activities such as nature walks, paddleboat tours and evening programs.

Campsites, cabins, hiking trails, picnicking facilities and boat launching ramps for fishermen and water enthusiasts are already open for this year in most state parks.

Visitors to Pocahontas State Park in Chesterfield County, near Richmond, will be able to cool off in what is one of the largest swimming pools in Virginia. Over 17,500 square feet of swimming area are surrounded by four slides and three diving boards set upon over 28,000 square feet of concrete deck.

The new pool, in conjunction with the recently constructed bathhouse, will greatly enhance the enjoyment of both campers and day use park visitors alike at Pocahontas," Bolen commented.

The fees for using developed swimming facilities at all state parks are $1.25 for adults and $0.75 for children.

At Chippokes Plantation State Park on the James River in Surry County, the new visitor information center, picnic area, playground, interpretive tour road and hiking trail will open to the public for the first time this year

Two state parks will officially open for their first full operating season this year False Cape State Park, south of the city of Virginia Beach, offers a rare outdoor experience The primitive campsites and seven miles of hiking trails on this remote strip of Atlantic coast are accessible only by foot or boat

York River State Park, halfway between Richmond and Hampton, has extensive interpretive programs operated from the visitor information center which opened just last year

Overnight campsites are available at a cost of $4.00 per night (tax included) in 35 state parks except Seashore State Park where the charge is $5.50 per night (tax included)

149 rustic housekeeping cabins, located in 8 state parks and a lodge at Douthat State Park, can be rented through September 28, 1981

Reservations for cabins and campsites can be made in person at any state park with cabins or campsites, at designated ticketron terminals or at the central office of the Division of Parks, 1201 Washington Building, Capitol Square, Richmond, Virginia 23219. They can also be made by mail, including the appropriate reservation form and correct fees, or by telephone to the Ticketron Reservation Center, P.O. Box 62221, Virginia Beach 23462, telephone 804/490 3939, Monday through Friday 10:00 4:00 p.m. The location of reservation terminals can be obtained by contacting ticketron.

Parking fees, applicable at 10 state parks from Memorial Day weekend through Labor Day weekend, are $0.50 per car, $1.00 per truck (6 9 people) and $3.00 per bus.

Admission fees of $0.50 for adults and $0.25 for children will be required at George Washington's Grist Mill and Natural Tunnel State Park.

Additional information on Virginia State Park facilities and activities can be obtained by contacting the Division of State Parks, 1201 Washington Building, Capitol Square, Richmond, Virginia 23219.

Flatwoods Students Protest HELP Committee's Ideas

Flatwoods High School students are becoming concerned with the discussion of sending Flatwoods students to Jonesville High School to provide Jonesville Elementary students with a decent school.

We understand the HELP committee's concern for their children's safety. We also understand that Jonesville Elementary School is condemned and no child should have to go to a school in such bad condition, but what about us?

Aren't they at all concerned with how Flatwoods students feel about the matter? After all, we have feelings, too. We love our school and we don't want it to vanish.

We, as concerned students, PROTEST this irrational movement!

When the matter was first being brought out in various newspaper articles, no one dreamed that such a notion would even be considered.

We are really angry about the matter because no one from the HELP committee has even asked us how we feel about it, perhaps because they know already how we feel. Still, we are involved and we should be able to express our opinions.

Now, since this proposterous movement is being considered, Flatwoods students are voicing their opinion in cathy rhymes:

We Know That Jonesville Elementary
Is Quite Shot,
So Why Destroy Flatwoods
It's The Only School We've Got!

No One Has Asked Flatwoods,
As If We're Not Involved,
It Will Take A Lot Of HELP From Us,
To Get Their Problem Solved.

In a previous newspaper article, it was stated that overcrowded cafeteria conditions at Jonesville Elementary would be eliminated if this (consolidation) were to take place. It also stated that there were, including the Jonesville seventh grade, 570 students at Jonesville Elementary. Flatwoods cafeteria will seat approximately 90 people. How will that eliminate overcrowding? This would add to the overcrowded conditions.

It was also stated that Flatwoods would lose its varsity sports identity. What about the athletes at Flatwoods? There is no way that this is fair.

Flatwoods athletes would be pushed back and picked over carefully only after the other schools had their teams chosen. Some fairly good athletes would be left out that normally would be able to participate. It's true that some aren't great superstars, but maybe they just enjoy the sport and like to compete. Even some of Jonesville's athletes would be cut, because when they ship, let's say, twelve varsity girls from Flatwoods to Jonesville, there would have to be some Jonesville girls cut that would normally have a uniform.

It states also that Flatwoods doesn't offer football. Some students, who now are in the Flatwoods community go to Jonesville for just that purpose. Football is not a very good reason to push this movement. If a person has the desire and really wants to play football, they will go to Jonesville on their own free will.

Flatwoods may be one of the smallest schools in the county, but that doesn't mean that it's inferior to the other schools, academically, sports-wise, or any other way. In the last three years, Flatwoods has rated exceptionally well on the competency tests, especially in mathematics and English. Also, only Flatwoods Combined School and Dryden Combined School received full accreditations by the Virginia Department of Education this year.

Flatwoods class of '82 seems to be the most affected by this because when a person goes to one school for 11 or 12 years of his or her life, they don't want to just pack up and leave their senior year.

Just to show how that the majority of Flawoods High School students feel about this, we took a poll, May 21, 1981. There were 100 students, seniors not included, that voted. Here are the results:

In Favor Of Movement: 3%
Opposed To Movement: 95%
Indifferent: 2%

This, if nothing else does, shows exactly how Flatwoods students feel about it.

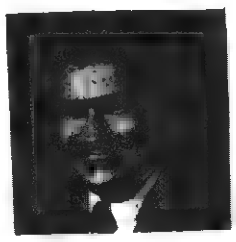
Congressman BILL WAMPLER Reports from Washington



American agriculture is the backbone of our national economy. As a nation, we owe much to our farm sector, and it must be maintained in a strong and healthy condition. It is under stress today, largely because of high inflation and high interest rates, much like other segments of our society.

Since early in the year, the House Committee on Agriculture has been working on an Omnibus Farm Bill. We were faced with the difficult task of trying to attack inflation and high interest rates which are driving up farmers' costs of production, and at the same time produce a bill that provides fair treatment to all commodity programs.

The legislation finally reported for floor action is a "budget buster". No one interested in farm legislation should take it seriously in its present form, unless they believe that President Reagan, and the Congress as a whole, are not serious about reducing Federal spending. The Committee bill exceeds considerably the limits placed on spending by the House Budget Committee. They know it must be revised if we are to meet the reconciliation requirement imposed by law. Members will learn nothing new in the intervening days between now and June 15th about farm programs; nor will they be given any special insight in that period that will enable them to make the programs 'fit' any better the limited funding overwhelmingly adopted on the floor in a bipartisan vote on the First Budget Resolution.

A substitute farm bill, submitted by the Minority on the Committee, did address the public concern over unnecessary Federal expenditures. Although defeated I submit it will be the yardstick which the Committee will have to use in the future to comply with the Budget Resolution.

The substitute to the Committee bill would offer a safety net to producers, assurance to consumers of reasonable prices and stability in food and fiber production and supply levels, and programs with flexibility and cost levels that would be more in line with the Budget Resolution, with which the Committee must comply.

President Reagan was elected to try to bring economic order out of chaos. The Committee on Agriculture must help him bring Federal spending, and Federal intervention in farming enterprises under control. Only in this way can we succeed in reducing double-digit inflation the cruelest "tax" of all. It is not fair to mislead farmers and ranchers into believing that a certain amount of austerity can be avoided.

Have you ever gotten in a baking mood or got the urge to prepare a special dish only to find when you go to get out the ingredients, you don't have exactly what the recipe calls for?

Maybe some of the following suggestions will be of help to you when you need to substitute ingredients.

How Do I Substitute?

When substituting fresh herbs for dry, remember that 1 teaspoon of dry is equal to 2 teaspoons fresh.

One cup of honey equals 1¼ cups of sugar plus ¼ cup liquid.

One cup plain flour plus 1½ teaspoons leavening and ½ teaspoon salt equals 1 cup self rising flour.

For 1 ounce unsweetened chocolate, substitute 3 tablespoons cocoa plus 1 tablespoon butter of fat.

When Do I add Spices?

Add whole spices at the beginning of cooking so that the heat and moisture allows them to release their flavors. Ground spices may be added near the end of cooking because they give up their flavors quickly.

Fats are excellent carriers of flavors. In preparing baked goods, try creaming spices with shortening. When mixing salad dressings, combine with oil and set aside for a few minutes.

Powdered mustard and dehydrated onions should be combined with equal amounts of water and let stand for 10 minutes.

Whole spices stay fresh longer than ground spices.

Should Prisoner be Released Due To Poor Medical Treatment?

Case

Jerry Morton had been in some kind of trouble since he was twelve years old. It began with shoplifting, then car theft and armed robbery. Now he was thirty five years old and had completed three years of an eleven year sentence in the state prison.

He began to notice symptoms in himself of diabetes. Since Jerry had a family history of this disease, he asked the prison authorities if he could be given a blood test. The test confirmed that Jerry had diabetes. The disease should then have been monitored through weekly blood and urine tests, but no further tests were given. Jerry should also have been immediately placed on a special diet to control the disease, but this was never done.

Jerry's symptoms continued to worsen, and, after doing some research on his own, he realized that he needed insulin injections. The prison authorities refused and Jerry, through his attorney, filed a lawsuit against the state asking to be released. By this time, he had lost 50 pounds and all of his teeth. Even then, it took a court order to allow a private physician to examine him and verify Jerry's own diagnosis. The doctor testified at the trial that, "Jerry's life and well being would be endangered by allowing this course of therapy at the state prison." Should the court allow Jerry to be released?

Decision

Yes. In ordering Jerry released, the court commented on the total lack of dental care available at the prison and characterized the care received by the prisoner as, "negligence at best and a disgrace to the state." In conclusion the court stated, "Of course prisons should not be country clubs but they should at least provide minimum standards of human decency in treatment, not standards in accordance with society in the latter part of the nineteenth century."

Pennington Finishes 2nd In Region D

Wise Goes On To State With 5-4 Win

The Wise Indians have won the regional tournament, but not before they had a battle against the Pennington Bobcats.

The game was played this past Saturday, with the Indians nipping the Bobcats 5-4, advancing Mack Shupe's forces to the state tournament.

Gary Pendergraft who pitched both games prior to the finals, was again a hero, despite the loss. Having already pitched thirteen innings in the tournament, and the only rest he got was two days due to rain, again went the route, but got the loss. Pendergraft deserved to win as he only allowed two hits in the game, but eight errors by the Bobcats cost him and the team the win. He struck out six Indians and walked three. All of the Indians runs were unearned.

The Bobcats were trailing 5-1 in the last inning, before Pendergraft blasted a three run homerun to make it 5-4.

Joe Linkous started for Wise but gave way to Doug Bates, after working only two innings. Bates got the win in relief to up his record to 7-0.

The loss closes out the season for Pennington at 17-4. The Bobcats can hold their heads high, because after finishing second in the district, they wound up going farther than anyone else.

Bobcats Beat St. Paul

In a semi-final game, of the regional tournament played at Wise last week, the Pennington Bobcats came from a 3-0 deficit to beat and eliminate the St. Paul Deacons 9-6.

The Bobcats sent Gary Collier to the mound in hopes that he could beat St. Paul, and allow Gary Pendergraft to be rested for the finals, but it was not to be, as the Deacons scored three times in the first. With two outs in the first Bobcat coach Jack Rasnic called on Pendergraft to put out the fire. He got out of the inning without allowing any more damage. In the third the Bobcats scored five times for a 5-3 lead, but back came St. Paul as they got to the Bobcat ace for three runs in the same inning to regain the lead at 6-5. Pennington then scored the last four runs of the game to make the final 9-6, sending the Bobcats to the regional finals for the first time in the schools history.

On the day, Pendergraft fanned nine batters while allowing only one walk and three hits. He also had three of the Bobcats five hits, driving in one run. He was also the winning pitcher in the tournament opener against Appalachia. His won-loss record is 10-2. Pennington High School will sure miss Gary Pendergraft who graduates this next week.

Wise Rips Keokee 9 - 4

In the second game of the day, played this past Friday, the Wise Indians ripped three Keokee pitchers for nine runs enroute to making the finals.

The Mountaineers sent their ace, lefty Kip Phillips to the mound, but he gave up three runs on two hits and left the mound in favor of Kevin Pennington. Phillips failed to retire any of the Indians. Pennington went four and two third allowing six runs on five hits. He walked four and struck out three. Mickey Hubbard pitched the final one and one third innings, giving up no runs and no hits.

The Indians scored their runs in bunches of three at a time, with the innings of the first, second and fifth being the big innings. Wise started their big ace in Doug Bates, who allowed the only two hits that Keokee had in the game. Keokee did manage to spoil Bates fine season, with Kip Phillips hitting a homerun for the only earned run that Bates has allowed this year.

With the loss, the Mountaineers close out their season with a 17-3 overall record.

Book Drive Honors David Lilienthal

Small community libraries are one of the best examples of the "relatively modest but very concrete workings of grass roots democracy," founding TVA Director David Lilienthal once wrote.

On May 18, the 48th anniversary of the TVA Act, a group of present and former TVA employees will begin a month long book drive to honor Lilienthal and benefit the libraries he loved so well. Lilienthal died in New York on February 14 at the age of 81.

The drive will seek contributions of both books and money from through out the Tennessee Valley. The books will be sorted and either distributed to libraries or sold to the public, while cash contributions will be used to purchase copies of Lilienthal's collected works for addition to public library collections.

"We're trying to get the widest possible participation in this effort," said Brenda Carnes, Chairman of TVA's Lilienthal Memorial Committee. "There are many people in the Valley region who knew and loved Mr. Lilienthal, and we wanted to give them a chance to show their respect in a way he would have liked."

The project originated with an exchange of letters between TVA Board Chairman S. David Freeman and Helen Lilienthal, Lilienthal's widow. She suggested that any memorial effort center around community libraries, and Freeman proposed the book drive as an appropriate way of remembering her husband.

Contributions from the general public will be coordinated by local chapters of the TVA Retirees Association. The retirees will sponsor a number of regional collection centers, where books may be taken. The location of the centers may be obtained by calling TVA's Citizen Action Line at 1 800 362 9250 in Tennessee or 1 800 251-9242 in other states. All contributions are tax deductible.

Within TVA, the drive will be conducted by the Central Joint Cooperative Conference, an organization of management and white collar workers, and the Central Joint Cooperative Committee, an organization of management and blue collar workers.

Lilienthal's love of community libraries sprang from a devotion to local efforts to promote an improved level of public education and understanding, which he considered vital to the continuation of a democracy.

In his book about the early years of TVA, "Democracy on the March," Lilienthal noted that the founding of community libraries across the Tennessee Valley was in many cases a cooperative enterprise between TVA and local citizens. TVA worked with citizens to establish libraries in the vicinity of its construction projects, and these later became the backbone of library systems in Tennessee and other states.

"It appears evident that out of these cooperative efforts between the TVA and institutions at the grass roots, a useful and practical type of library organization has come into the Tennessee Valley states," Lilienthal wrote.

Lilienthal served as a TVA Board member from 1933 until 1941, when he was named Chairman. He served in that position until 1946, when he was named the first Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. Lilienthal remained active in national and international energy affairs until his death.

AFROTC Scholarship Applicants Should Apply Now

High school students who will be seniors next fall should begin to apply now for Air Force Reserve Officers' Training Corps Four-Year College Scholarships according to Col. Hugh D. McCracken, Jr., Air Force ROTC Registrar.

"Students' chances for selection increase by submitting their scholarship applications during the summer and early fall," says Colonel McCracken.

Applications for the freshman scholarships beginning in the 1982-83 academic year are now available at Departments of Aerospace Studies at any college or university hosting Air Force ROTC and at U.S. Air Force recruiting stations, or students can write to the Office of Public Affairs, Air Force ROTC, Maxwell AFB, AL 36112.

An Air Force ROTC Four-Year Scholarship provides for payment of full tuition, books and most fees, plus a $100 monthly stipend during each academic year. The scholarships can be used at about 600 colleges and universities that offer Air Force ROTC.

Competition for these scholarships has been keen. For example, more than 15,000 scholarship applications were received by Air Force ROTC from which about 1,400 students were selected as scholarship recipients for this fall.

"With so many applications," says Colonel McCracken, "the emphasis is on early application and high quality students." Three selection boards meet each academic year, one in November, another in January and a final board in March. Approximately 50 percent of those qualified students considered by the November 1980 selection board were chosen to receive a scholarship. For the January and March boards, the percentage of students selected was considerably lower. The precentage of selections from the November 1981 board will probably be high, too, according to Colonel McCracken.

Students competing for Air Force ROTC scholarships are required to take either the Scholastic Aptitude Test or the American College Test as part of their application process. When taking the tests, students may authorize their scores be sent directly to the Four-Year Scholarship Branch, Office of the Registrar, Air Force ROTC, Maxwell AFB, AL 36112.

The minimum SAT scores required for a scholarship application are 500 in mathematics and a composite score, mathematics and verbal together, of 1,000. For the ACT, the minimum score in mathematics is 19 and the composite score minimum is 22.

Along with aptitude test scores, other factors such as high school academic records, class standing, and extracurricular activities are considered by a board of senior Air Force ROTC officers who choose the scholarship designees.

"There is a wide spectrum of academic degrees for which Air Force ROTC scholarships are being awarded," says Colonel McCracken, "but 90 percent of the recent scholarship winners are planning to pursue engineering, scientific, or technical careers.

"Students who are not initially awarded a four year scholarship should consider electing Air Force ROTC as part of their academic plan," asserts Colonel McCracken. Air Force ROTC also offers scholarships in increments of three and one half three, two and one half and two years. To be eligible for these scholarships, students must be members of the Air Force ROTC program.

College freshmen can register for the Air Force ROTC Four Year Program the same way as they do for any other college class. Air Force ROTC's academic courses, normally taken for elective credit, deal with Air Force history, air power development, management and leadership, and national defense policy.

Upon completion of degree requirements and the Air Force ROTC program, students are commissioned as second lieutenants in the United States Air Force with a minimum four year active duty obligation. For flying training candidates, the commitment is six years for pilots and five years for navigators after they receive their aeronautical ratings.

"The Air Force scholarship program offers students an excellent opportunity to finance their college education, get their degrees and then serve their country as officers in the United States Air Force," says Colonel McCracken.

Social Security Questions And Answers

Q. Although I turned 18 this winter, I still get social security benefits because I am a full-time student. I will not be going to school over the summer but will start college in the fall. Will my benefits stop for the summer.

A. Since you were a full-time student this year and plan to be a full time student next year, social security will consider you a full time student as long as you are out of school no longer than 4 calendar months. Benefits will be paid as long as you meet all other requirements.

Q. I turned 65 in November and started getting social security at that time. Although I sold my farm last September, I just received over $8,000 for the sale of some crops that have been in storage. Will my social security be affected?

A. Because you have not performed any services since you started getting social security, the money you received for the sale of the crop will not reduce the amount of your monthly benefits under the annual earnings test. In fact, when the money is added to your earnings record, your benefits may even increase. You should report this income to social security even though your benefits will not be affected

MECC Drafting Program

The Drafting and Design Program at Mountain Empire Community College is now accepting applications for the fall quarter starting September 28, 1981. The Drafting Curriculum is a six quarter program leading to the Associate in Applied Science Degree.

With the nation converting to coal, Southwest Va., will continue to thrive. Drafting is used in the location and production of coal. Employment opportunities in all of Southwest Va. are excellent.

The Drafting Curriculum is designed for persons with no drafting experience and for persons with vocational school training or work experience.

For people now working wanting to explore the profession of drafting, the Drafting Department will offer an Introduction to Drafting Course starting June 16, 1981.

MECC will also be offering a night drafting program for interested persons who may not be able to attend the day program. The courses are tentatively scheduled to be offered through seven quarters. Upon completion of the course work, the student will receive a certificate in drafting.

For further information concerning these classes, contact Monia Fleenor, or Donna Mabe at 703 523 2400 ext. 210 or 211.

Social Security Q. And A.

Q. My mother has not been to a doctor in years. Will her Medicare medical insurance pay for her to have a physical exam?

A. No, medical insurance will not pay for routing physical examinations or for tests directly related to such examination.

Q. My husband just died from kidney disease. A couple of months ago, he talked to someone at the social security about applying for Medicare. Can I apply for him now? I still have all his bills to pay.

A. If your husband, or someone acting on his behalf while he was alive, signed either a request for or an inquiry about Medicare, you may still apply for coverage. This rule applies to people suffering from permanent kidney failure before death.

MECC Mining Technology Program

Mountain Empire Community College's Mining Technology Program is now accepting applications for the mining certificate (co-op) program. Two classes will be admitted this year: one class will begin summer quarter, June 16, 1981. The other class will begin fall quarter, September 28, 1981.

If you are looking for an opportunity to work in the underground mining industry or were recently discharged from active military service and looking for a job, this is the best way for a student to enter the underground classroom training and underground experience.

There is no general admission test and scholarships are available to cover tuitions for qualified students

Mountain Empire Community College also offers mandatory annual refresher training for surface and underground miners. The training sessions are planned to meet the requirements of Part 48 of Title 30 of the code of federal regulations.

The financing of retraining is provided by a grant from the Mining Safety and Health Administration which is administered through the State Bureau of Mines and Quarries; therefore, there will be no cost to working miners.

For more information concerning our mining classes or mining companies or the annual refresher training, contact the mining department at 703-523-2400 ext. 210 or 211.

Sunday School Lesson

PERFECTER OF OUR FAITH

Hebrews 12 was written to encourage and strengthen the Jewish believers in Christ who discovered that the Christian life was more difficult than they had anticipated.

Demands – Hebrews 12: 1-4

Since the Christian life is portrayed as a race, the runner must divest himself of all encumbrances that would interfere with his running. If he is to run a good race, he must "lay aside every weight." As used here, "weight" denotes whatever would put one to a disadvantage in running. Things which prove to be weights to those running the Christian race need not necessarily be sins. Some Christians carry a lot of excess baggage in the form of questionable habits, trifling interests, and second-best activities. Each Christian is expected to overcome his "besetting" sin, or the one to which he is the most susceptible, whether it be a suspicious attitude, a critical spirit, an irritable temper, an unforgiving spirit, or some evil practice.

Running the Christian race successfully requires exertion, progression and perseverance. The runner needs to maintain a proper sense of direction, to understand that the course is not easy, and to remember that he is part of a glorious company. Christ must be central in his thoughts, affections and purposes. One must ever look to Christ, Who is the originator, pioneer, completer and perfecter of our faith. He is the object of our love and the deepest need of our souls.

Discipline – Hebrews 12: 5-11

Part of our trouble is the idea that life was meant to be easy and pleasant. For this idea there is neither any basis in the New Testament nor any evidence of it in life. Since life is a place of discipline, we should not be surprised if we are called upon to go through the mill of hardship, adversity, suffering and struggle. We cannot develop properly without discipline, regardless of whether it is imposed from within or from without.

God's chastisement of Christians is corrective or remedial, so we must not despise Him chastenings or give way to despair when we are disciplined for failure to conform to the divine will. We may avoid numerous heartaches by remembering that when we sin willfully chastening is inevitable.

Duties – Hebrews 12: 12-13

Since the Christian life is to be positive, progressive, straight, and helpful, one is under obligation to be exceedingly careful about his conduct. A Christian is abmonished to "make straight paths," which means to regulate his walk and actions by the revealed will of God. Christ has preceded us and has called us to follow Him in the straight way. This way is the best one for us, but we also should follow it for the sake of those whom we will influence. "Make straight paths" for the sake of others who may use them after you.

Essay Contest Winner

Eddie Dalton, sixth grader at Elk Knob School and son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dalton, receives a $10 check from his teacher Mark Carter for his award-winning essay "Truth and Honesty in School." Eddie's essay was chosen out of some 100 in a contest sponsored by the Alpha Chi Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society, president Ms. Viola Emmett. The essay contest was open to students in grades four through seven with Elydale, Elk Knob, Flatwoods, Jonesville, Pennington and Rose Hill participating. Other contest winners receiving prizes of $7 and $5 respectively were Robyn Davis, second place, Elydale, Mrs. Brown's fifth grade; and Mary Jane Thomas, third place, Pennington, Mrs. Watson's fifth grade. Mrs. Barbara Rosenbaum was chairman of the event.

'Truth, Honesty In School'

When you tell the truth you are stating a fact. I think telling the truth comes before anything else. People trust you with secrets and look up to you. A person has to be sincere and truthful to be a good student.

I have always been taught that honesty is the best policy. Honesty is a quality that shows character in a person. You can't be a trustworthy person if you lie, cheat, or steal. When someone hears you make an untrue statement, they never trust you again.

To sum it all up, if every student were truthful and honest, we would have a better school, and the teachers would have an easier job.

Health And Safety Hints For A Great Summer Of Outdoor Fun

Want to have a great summer of outdoor fun? Better check out some health and safety hints first.

One thing you'll probably want to do is to get a suntan. However, Dr Maria Mandelstamm, director of the Radford University student health center, warns against over exposure to the sun. "Human beings shouldn't lie in the sun and roast themselves," she says "The skin becomes wrinkled after a tremendous beating from ultraviolet rays, which can also cause cancer in the long run.

Melanocytes cells, which form a pigment known as melanin, protect the skin and darken it, Mandelstamm explains. When the skin cannot produce the skin and darken it, Mandelstamm explains. When the skin cannot produce melanin fast enough, a sun burn results

People taking tetracycline, sulfa drugs, diuretics and some diabetic medications should avoid over exposure to the sun, since these medications can cause a heat sensitive rash

Mandelstamm advises those who cannot avoid long hours in the sun, such as athletes and individuals working outdoors, to use a sunscreen lotion

Too much body water being lost to excessive perspiration is quite dangerous, she notes "Leg or body cramps may indicate that you've lost too much water and that you need to take a salt pill." Mandelstamm advises against taking tablet before exertion, however, because "if you don't sweat it all out, your body's going to have more salt in it than it can remove

If water loss is not abated, heat exhaustion or even heat stroke may result

The last summer hazard Mandelstamm warns of is insect bites or stings Those who venture into wooded areas should be ware of ticks, which may carry Rocky Mountain spotted fever

When removing a tick, Mandelstamm says, be sure to remove the entire animal 'Don't just pull a tick off, sometimes its head will remain imbedded in your skin The best thing to do is to use a cotton swab to cover the tick with gasoline, kerosene or nail polish remover. The tick will have to withdraw in order to breathe, and then you can grab it."

Acreage Report

According to Lee County ASCS Director, Charles M. Ingram, policyholders of Federal Crop Insurance through the county ASCS office need to visit the office as soon as their tobacco crop is planted and file an acreage report. Policyholders are required to report all of the tobacco acreage that they have an interest in to the nearest one hundredth of an acre.

"This report will determine the dollar guarantee that the producer will be provided for 1981," said Ingram. "It is extremely important that the report be filed correctly," he added.

Producers must also report their share of the tobacco crop, the name of their tenant, and when planting was completed

Tobacco must be planted by June 30 in order for insurance to attach to it.

Ingram encourages Federal Crop policyholders to not delay filing their reports

Auto Inspections Necessary?

By Glen H. Mitchell
Extension Specialist,
Consumer Education
Virginia Tech College of Home Economics

Leaders in education, business, industry and government are taking a long, hard look at productivity in the United States. Some feel that U.S. workers have fallen into many bad habits. There are salespersons who don't sell; service representatives who don't service; and companies that provide a service but are only open when the majority of individuals are working. The list goes on and on.

One individual searching for ways to increase productivity is W. Mark Crain, Virginia Tech economist, who has been researching automobile inspection regulations.

The mandated safety inspection programs make no significant or detectable contribution to highway safety, said Crain.

Over 80 million automobiles are inspected each year. Roughly 60 million cars require nothing be done to them. For the majority of car owners, it is expensive and consumes time

Crain's study of states with and without mandatory auto inspection, corrected for different casual factors, indicates no significant differences in highway safety between the various states. One study in Pennsylvania showed that inspection stations tended to find non-existent defects, but failed to find half of the real mechanical faults.

Crain points out that human error, not mechanical failure, causes the majority of accidents. Only about three percent of automobile accidents are traceable to mechanical errors. We need to be more concerned about the true reasons and solutions for auto deaths which annually amount to over 50,000 persons. The direct economic loss to the nation is estimated to be more than 50 billion dollars annually.

Crain, an associate professor who is with the University's Center for the Study of Public Choice, has had numerous requests for his report which recently was published by the American Enterprise Institute. The study indicates there is no basis to show that highway safety has improved in states with car inspection programs.

If the United States is serious about improving productivity, it must rethink whether programs, actions and ways of doing business are cost effective and whether they should be dropped or improved.

Succession Cropping

Home vegetable gardeners can get more produce out of their gardens by growing crops one after another -- succession cropping.

"Using succession cropping methods," said Virginia Tech Extension specialist in home horticulture Diane Relf, "the harvest time is extended through the growing season."

There are three major methods.

Growing two or more crops in the same space, one after another, is called double cropping. For example, after an early crop of lettuce is harvested, a late maturing crop like beets can be planted in its place.

Lettuce, peas, radishes, beets, beans, green onions, cabbage, carrots, kohlrabi, spinach, turnips and Chinese cabbage mature early enough so that after they are harvested, the space can be used for another planting of the same or a different fast-growing vegetable.

"Preferably, have the second crop unrelated to the first," suggested the faculty member in Tech's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

A second method is to make several plantings of the same vegetable about a week apart. Plantings made at weekly intervals should result in harvesting at weekly intervals.

A third method is to plant several varieties of the same vegetable -- each variety with a different maturity time. For example, in the same block plant 75-day, 85-day and 90 day sweet corn.

Thank You From The President

Mary Ethel Quillen, Pennington Gap, holds a thank you note she received from President Reagan which read: I was so happy to receive your get well message! Knowing of your friendship and prayers encourages me daily. From the bottom of my heart, thank you for caring. Ronald Reagan.

Vacancy Announced At Commission

The Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries announces a vacancy in the office of its Executive Director.

Those persons with strong academic background and experience in wildlife resource management, who would be interested in being considered for that vacancy, should apply by letter with a resume and recent photograph attached to James D. Bowie, Chairman of the Search Committee, P.O. Box 1178, Bristol, Virginia 24201.

Deadline for receipt of applications is July 31, 1981

Market Trends

At the Virginia auctions veal prices were steady to 75 cents higher, except standard veal at $3.25 lower, as estimated receipts were up 8 percent from the previous week. Letting Our Colors Show

Thanks to the efforts of the Jonesville Woman's Club and the American Legion, Lambert, Fleenor and Bays, Post 185, the Town of Jonesville observed the patriotic flavor of Memorial Day by displaying a host of flags along Main Street. Woman's Club members under the leadership of Barbara Rosenbaum and Judy Davidson, purchased and placed a dozen "Old Glories" throughout the Town and hope to acquire more for future patriotic holidays. Pictured with one of the flags are Wendell Cantor, Post Commander, and Mrs. Rosenbaum, Club public affairs chairman.

Virginia EMS Director Stresses Trauma Treatment Not To Be Ignored

With the current emphasis on federal budget reductions, particularly those in health care, the need for improvement in the treatment of trauma victims should not be forgotten, but seen as the problem that it is, Susan D McHenry stated during the recent Southwest Virginia Hospital Council meeting.

Each year, approximately 10 million people in the United States are victims of trauma, with some 360,000 of these suffering resulting disability, noted McHenry, Virginia Bureau of Emergency Medical Services director. Trauma is a condition caused particularly by sudden physical injury, such as experienced in automobile crashes, falls and explosions.

Virginia Sen. Fred Gray's near fatal car accident in January of this year and the recent shooting of President Ronald Reagan have brought the importance of trauma care to the attention of much of the public, said McHenry. The effectiveness of a coordinated system of personnel trained to handle trauma, both at the scene and in the hospital, and the availability of necessary equipment was evidenced during each of these unfortunate episodes, she added.

According to McHenry, designation of Trauma Centers is a key factor in developing such a system by identifying hospitals with the highest level of trauma care capabilities, where the victim would be promptly transported to receive the necessary care.

On the state level, the Facilities Task Force of the Governor's Advisory Council on Emergency Medical Services is currently evaluating response from Virginia hospitals in an attempt to designate trauma centers throughout the Commonwealth.

Regionally, the Southwest Virginia Emergency Medical Services Council, Inc., recently accepted Bristol Memorial Hospital as the area's trauma center. Holston Valley Community Hospital, Kingsport, Tennessee, was named as an extra regional trauma center. Although Holston Valley is located outside the region, approximately one third of its patients are residents of southwest Virginia.

"The purpose of the designation of trauma capabilities is ultimately for the benefit of the patients," McHenry concluded, "which is what all of us are working for."

June Seminar To Focus On Agriculture Policy

Farmers, agribusinessmen, and consumers will have a statewide conference in Richmond on June 24-25 to discuss and examine food and agriculture policy.

Special attention will be given to how to shape/change to agriculture's advantage.

Wayne Boutwell, who is legislative assistant to Senator Thad Cochran (R-Miss.), a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, will speak about the problems of developing a food and agriculture bill. Boutwell is a graduate of Virginia Tech.

The farmer-organized and-directed marketing systems used in Canada will be discussed by Professor Elmer Menzie of the University of Guelph in Ontario, Canada.

Problems and issues associated with contracting prices and managing supplies of peanuts will be discussed by Carlton Butler and Richard Turner of Isle of Wight County. Nine other subjects are on the agenda.

The two-day conference is being conducted at the Richmond Holiday Inn - Airport by the Virginia Cooperative Extension Service. You may obtain more information by contacting your local Extension Service office.

Jonesville Junior Woman's Club Meets

The Jonesville Junior Woman's Club met on Tuesday night, April 19, 1981, at the home of Mrs. Dane Poe. Sixteen members and one guest, Mrs. Larry Lewis, were present.

The budget for the new club year was presented and approved, and each committee reported on proposed projects for the coming year.

The program was presented by Bill Huber from the HELP organization. Two other members of HELP were also present. Mr. Huber explained the purpose of HELP and their proposals to remedy some of the problems facing Jonesville Elementary School. He also answered questions asked by members of the club. Mr. Huber expressed his hope that more parents would show their concern over the education of our children and work toward better school conditions.

Federal Crop Insurance Deadline

Roy J. Myers, Chairman of the Lee County ASC Committee, reminds farmers of the deadline dates for reporting their planted acreages to grain crops. The fall seeded crops of barley, wheat, rye, and oats must be reported by June 1. June 30 is the deadline date for reporting corn and sorghum.

"There are not set-aside or planting limitation requirements for the 1981 Wheat and Feed Grain Programs," said Myers.

Producers who file accurate and timely acreage reports will be provided the following benefits: (1) Low yield (Free Insurance); (2) Target Price Guarantee; (3) History Credit.

Myers encourages all persons who plant grain crops to file an acreage report. "The free insurance protection could prove to be very valuable, especially if we have another growing season similar to 1980," he added.

Producers must file reports in person at the County ASCS Office.

Are You "The Reggie Smith?

Sharon Hounshell, Reporter
Brenda Mullins, Faculty Supervisors
F. Watson

How do we, at Flatwoods, feel about Reggie Smith? This poem by Rachel Field describes our feelings perfectly.

"Some [illegible]"
By Rachel Field

Isn't it strange some people make
You feel so tired inside,
Your thoughts begin to shrivel up
Like leaves all brown and dried!
But when you're with some other ones,
It's stranger still to find
Your thoughts as thick as fireflies
All shiney in your mind!

"There goes the alarm clock! Time to rise and shine and make ready for another boring day of school." Today would be just like any other day - slow and lazy. But there was a surprise waiting for us when we got to school that day. The "Reggie Smith" was there to talk to us to improve our attitude about the young and going to school. The Speech he gave was very interesting, he really held everyones attention with his smooth voice and great since of humor. How Could we resist?

This is What Flatwoods Students said and thought about our visitor, Reggie Smith as he entertained us on May 7.

DMV Offers Communi Plates For Communicating Motorists

In response to citizen demand, the Division of Motor Vehicles has expanded the number of reserved license plate combinations to include as many as six letters on a license plate.

Applications to reserve the special new plates, known as Communi-Plates, will be available at all DMV branch offices and license agencies, beginning May 26.

CommuniPlates offer countless possibilities for motorists to drive their messages home. People can communicate, or communiplate if you will, who they are, how they feel, what they like or don't like, where they live and a variety of other messages, pleasantries and roadway quips.

Using a maximum of six and minimum of two characters, plus one optional space, motorists may combine and mix letters and numbers to form CommuniPlates like these: J JONES, LINDA, GEORGE, DOCTOR, LAWYER, GO CAVS, G MASON, NOT BAD, NO WAY, BACK UP, HOWR U, GO 41T, GOLFER, SAIL, 81, TENNIS, C SHELL and ITS 4ME.

Anyone who owns a passenger vehicle registered in Virginia may reserve CommuniPlates for an annual fee of $10 in addition to regular registration fees. The fee is calculated from the date the plates are reserved, not the date they are issued.

Motorists don't have to wait until their license plates expire before they apply for the special combinations. The reservation fee will be prorated according to the number of full months left in the registration period.

For example, if your registration expires in January, and you reserve a set of CommuniPlates May 26, you will pay $6.67 to reserve that combination from May until the end of January. In January, you will renew your vehicle registration and pay an additional $10 fee to keep your CommuniPlates for 12 more months.

On the application, would-be communiplators should indicate their top three choices for CommuniPlate combinations. Ampersands, dashes and other forms of punctuation may not be used. Then the completed application and appropriate fee should be mailed to the Reserved License Plate Section at DMV headquarters in Richmond.

CommuniPlates are unique and initially will be reserved according to the date the applications are postmarked. If two ore more people request the same combination, the person whose application is processed first will receive it.

The Burley Auction Warehouse Association, founded in 1946, will hold its thirty-fifth annual convention at the Gatlinburg-Sheraton Hotel, Gatlinburg, Tennessee, on June 14, 15, and 16, as announced by B.A.W.A. President, James A. Finch, Maysville, Kentucky.

During its thirty-five year history, the Burley Auction Warehouse Association, with a membership of more than 90 per cent of all burley tobacco warehousemen in the eight state "Burley Belt", has attained a position of prominence and influence in the tobacco world. Dedicated to the promotion of the general welfare of farmers, warehousemen and tobacco buyers, the Association has continuously sought to create a more orderly marketing of Burley Tobacco.

Reports on various segments of the tobacco industry will be made Tuesday morning, June 16, at B.A.W.A.'s traditional "Forum of Tobacco Experts".

Thinning Young Seedlings

Thinning seedlings in the home vegetable garden should give larger vegetables.

Thinning is the process of correcting the spacing between plants by removing extra ones, said Virginia Tech Extension specialist in home horticulture Diane Relf.

Removing extra seedlings when they have two or three leaves, provides more room for the others to grow.

Pull up the weakest ones, she said.

The soil should be moist when thinning takes place so that the remaining plants are not injured. Do not wait for the plants to become too crowded before they are thinned.

"Thinning can be a harvest for some vegetables," said Ms. Relf. Beet and turnip thinnings make excellent greens. Radishes, onions and lettuce can be left to thin until some are large enough to eat.

Veterans Administration

Q -- Is there a difference in the rate of Veterans Administration disability compensation paid for wartime and peacetime service

A No. The payment is the same for wartime and peacetime service.

Q -- My father died in service. I am 18 years old and planning to start college in the fall. Since my mother has remarried, do I lose my Veterans Administration educational entitlement

A - No. The remarriage of a spouse does not affect the child's educational benefit.

Q -- What is the maximum loan amount on a Veterans Administration guaranteed home loan?

A There is no maximum loan amount established by VA. However, the maximum amount of the guarantee cannot exceed 60 percent of the loan value of the home, up to a maximum of $27,500.

Q -- I was married to a serviceman who died on active duty. I never applied for Veterans Administration benefits because I remarried shortly after his death. I recently divorced my second husband. Am I entitled to any VA benefits based on my first husband's service

A Yes. Contact the nearest VA office for assistance

Q -- I recently cash surrended my National Service Life insurance policy. I now have second thoughts. Can I reinstate my policy

A -- Yes. Make your request in writing to the insurance center within 31 days, and return the government check with your request.

Q -- I am attending school under the Veterans Administration's dependents' education assistance program on a full-time basis. Do I qualify for the VA work-study program

A - No. The work-study program is available only to veterans.

Q -- What happens if the loan payments for a Veterans Administration guaranteed home loan are not made

A Failure to make GI home loan payments may lead to foreclosure and loss of the veteran's home. In addition, if the government is required to pay a claim as a result of failure to repay the loan, the veteran will become indebted to the government for the amount of any such claim.

Q -- During the burial ceremony of my brother, who was a veteran, the flag which draped the casket was pesented to his wife. Why wasn't our mother entitled to the flag?

A One burial flag is presented in accordance with the law to the next of kin of a veteran in the following order: spouse, children, father, mother, brother, sister, etc.

Q -- I was injured while on active duty in World War II but have never filed a claim for compensation with the Veterans Administration. Is it too late to do so now?

A No. There is no time limit for filing a claim for compensation. Contact the nearest VA office for assistance

Retirement Years Worse For Women

The difference in social and economic status between the sexes becomes most apparent in retirement years, according to University of Virginia sociologist Dr Jeanne Biggar, who notes that women over age 65 are likely to be living alone with half the income level of married couples and single men

In discussing the emerging research on women in retirement, Dr. Biggar, associate professor of sociology and a gerontological sociologist, delineated the disadvantages in the profile of women in retirement.

Women live longer than men, the life expectancy of a woman at age 65 is 18 years, compared to a man's 14 Furthermore, since they tend to marry older men, women are likely to be widowed. 'Once a marriage is disrupted after age 50, whether by death, divorce or separation, women are less likely to remarry than are men," Dr Biggar said. The remarriage rate for older men is nine times that of older women

"There's a tendency for men to reach down to marry women a good deal younger than themselves," added Dr Biggar "As a consequence, more than half the women over age 65 are single, whereas more than three quarters of men live with a spouse in these years."

The second major disadvantage for this group is its economic status. More than one quarter of the nation's widows live below the poverty level; single women have half the income of men and couples.

Dr Biggar sees this as partly a function of widowhood "At the death of a spouse, a woman's income from Social Security drops by about a third. Only two percent of our widows are covered by a pension plan after the death of a spouse."

The concentration of women in lower paying jobs during their working years also is a factor, said Dr Biggar, noting that women's own Social Security benefits are lower, and women are less likely to be covered by good retirement plans "They end up with lower-paying jobs, less of an opportunity to save for retirement and lower Social Security"

There is evidence, however, that women, despite the isolation and economic deprivation, do somewhat better than men in retirement. "Women have fewer problems with adjustments or what sociologists call 'role exits,'" said Dr. Biggar. "For non working homemakers, there's a continuity of neighboring and family relationships.

"In sharp contrast are the patterns for men, whose relationships center on the work place. After they're awarded the gold watch, they find themselves having to make new relationships and adjust to the wives' domain," the sociologist explained.

The socialization of women also stands them in good stead in retirement, according to Dr. Biggar. The pattern of taking pleasure in how one does things rather than how much one produces, of valuing expressive rather than instrumental goals, is key to happiness in later years

Service Call Dial Direct

Beginning Monday, June 8, Norton area business customers of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia will dial a new number to reach the telephone business office.

"We have set up a new system which allows customers to 'dial direct' to the service representative who can help them," said Roy Roberts, local C&P manager

A business customer who wants new telephone service, a change in service or has billing questions will now dial 561-2 and the first three digits of his/her business phone number.

In the past, all customers dialed one main business office number and an operator routed each call to the appropriate service representative. "This new system is designed to provide faster, more efficient service to C&P's Norton area business customers," the manager explained.

Bill inserts explaining the number changes are now being sent to all affected telephone customers. In addition, Roberts said customers calling the old business office number after June 8 will reach an operator who will furnish them with the new calling instructions

Ponderin & Putterin'

Wildflowers are beginning to really show up in the woods now. Puccoon, Spring Beauty, Jack-in-the-Pulpit and others are beginning to fade. Last week I came across a really beautiful patch of Trillium. Three petals - 3 sepals = 3 leaves = Trillium (3). The ones I found are a large - Flowered Trillium - there are two more types (1) painted (white marked with red stripes and the erect (purplish-red). Due to its smell "Stinking Willie" is its nickname. There are no medicinal values to the plant just beauty alone.

A plant that does have some medical value that came as a surprise to me is the cabbage plant. An article I read called it the "doctor of the poor, the medicine that is the gift of Heaven. Well, zeroed right in on me. A tablespoon of red cabbage syrup is supposed to be a remedy for consumption. Its easy to prepare — 1. Wash thoroughly. 2. pound the leaves of a red cabbage, then squeeze through a cloth. 3. Weigh the juice, add half its weight in honey and cook over gentle heat, skimming as needed until it becomes a syrup. For persons with a weak chest — one tablespoon of this syrup every morning provides a good preventive medicine. I don't think I'll try that one, this one I will. To heal blisters cook cabbage leaves in milk, leave until cold, apply to the blister. If you're really worn out much less poor forget the blister — salt, pepper and eat.

Do you remember the rhyme. One to rot, one to grow.

One for the pigeon, one for the crow. I don't know whether the crow will get any seeds out of the gardens I've seen this past week, because the scare crows are fabulous. They actually have on better clothes than I wear. Well-dressed but effective.

For some reason, I've had a yearning for some sourdough bread. If you've never eaten any, there is a definite experience in life you've missed. Sourdough became well-known in the 1890's about the time the gold rush was going strong. Since store-bought yeast would not grow in extreme cold or just died. Combinations of wild and adopted yeast were used. If a prospector hit upon a really good batch, word soon got out. He became very popular, everyone would visit him for a good starter for their pot. Believe it or not, when it became bitter cold he would place it in a bag and hang it under his clothes to keep it warm. Others would take it to bed with them, since the two were almost inseparable the term sour-dough meant either the bread or the prospector. Most cook books give recipes for the starter now.

I heard a new twist for an old weather prediction goes like this:

If the evenings red and the mornings grey
Its the sign of a bonny day,
If the evenings gray and mornings red
The ewe and lamb will go to bed.

Noel Coward wrote "Private Lives" in two weeks.

New Industry Ahead?

The Thursday, June 4, meeting of the Lee County Industrial Authority could mean good things ahead for Lee County.

Set for 8 p.m. at the Courthouse, members of the local authority will be considering approval of bond financing of a $7.5 million coal preparation plant and $1.5 million knitting addition to a Rose Hill plant.

Chairman of the Authority, Ed Jones, said that the companies involved would have to produce letters of accreditation from area banks certifying that they are financially in a position to undertake such projects.

Straight Creek Processing Company would develop a coal preparation plant with a processing capacity of 350 tons per hour to be located in the Benedict area near St. Charles.

The project would include a $3.9 million preparation plant, $1.4 million in loading facilities and $400,000 for site preparation, Jones reported. The plant would employ 30 people and employ 280 more in the mines to supply the facility.

Qualtex Mills is also seeking industrial development bond funding for a $1.5 million addition to its plant in Rose Hill. The 50,000 square foot addition would employ 70 employees to the mill at first with more new employees being hired down the road.

Both companies are anxious to start on site preparation but no dates of completion have been set, Jones said.

An Historic Occasion

Gary Pendergraft was honored, as very few athletes ever are, by having his baseball jersey, number 14 retired. Gary finished the season with a batting average of .613, hit 5 homeruns, had 39 runs batted in as well as posting a 10-3 record with 115 strike outs. Gary's three losses included a 1-0 loss to Keokee (he gave up just one hit) and a 5-4 loss to Wise in regional action in which he allowed just 2 hits. Gary, who was the MVP in baseball for three years, also starred in football, basketball, tennis and track. He is considering several area colleges and/or a professional baseball career. Jack Rasnic, left, head football and baseball coach, is shown congratulating Gary on this historic occasion.

Slemp Foundation Gives Money For 4-H Camp

Local 4-H Extension officials were recently notified by a representative of the C. Bascomb Slemp Foundation that $500 had been sent to the Southwest Virginia 4-H Center on behalf of Lee County for use as camp scholarships. Wise County received a similar donation from the Foundation.

According to Lee County Extension Agents Fred Herndon and Peggy Myers, to be considered for a camp scholarship in this program, youngsters must be from ages nine to 19 and have been enrolled in 4-H during the past school year.

Camp scholarship applications may be picked up at the local Extension office or will be mailed upon request, write P.O. Box 37, Jonesville, Va. 24263, or phone 346-3277. All applications must be received by June 29.

Those who have already sent in pre-registration forms for junior 4-H camp are still eligible to apply. Junior camp is scheduled July 20-24 at the Southwest Virginia 4-H Center with transportation to and from the camp provided.

Rules for acceptance and participation in all sessions of the camp are the same for everyone without regard to race, color or national origin.

Ned's Wheelchair Fund Just $700 Shy Of Goal

In just a month, the Ned Hartsock Wheelchair Fund is just $700 shy of reaching its total goal of $3,000.

If you will recall a previous story in the News, St. Charles folks are trying to get help from their generous Lee County neighbors to raise funds for an electric wheel chair for 14-year old Ned Hartsock, a victim of cerebral palsy.

This coming August, Ned will be entering Pennington Gap High School and in order for him to better maneuver his way independently around his new school, he needs this electric wheelchair which is much easier to control than a manual one

Leaders of the effort to raise these funds are well pleased with the generosity of local friends, particularly the school children. Numerous cakes have been baked, donated and walked off to raise money for the project.

One particularly generous contribution was made by a St. Charles preacher and taxi driver who collect

Local Task Force Seeks To Shelter Battered Wives

Members of the Tri County Task Force on Battered Women are trying to determine a strategy to deal with the growing problem of battered wives and children in Lee, Scott and Wise County areas.

Representatives from various local agencies including Women's Work World, the Extension Service, Older Citizens, Mt. Empire Community College, Client-Centered Legal Aid, Woman's Clubs, Lonesome Pine Regional Hospital, Mental Health and others met at the Bread and Chicken House in Big Stone Gap, Monday, to ask questions, swap ideas and hear about possible legal options available according to Castlewood legal aid attorney, Tom Antennucci.

Although as Antennucci pointed out initially, "the law in domestic situations intervenes gingerly and is often not the best solution," there are several choices the battered or abused spouse may take.

One such procedure, usually considered a preliminary step, is to take out a warrant through a local magistrate. This warrant, he went on to explain could ultimately result in probation, a fine or even time in prison, and in many cases, is a significant deterrent for many spouse abusers.

A second possible route for the battered spouse to take is separation and consequent filing for child custody and support in juvenile and domestic relations court. This civil action can be done without an attorney and is an effective means of getting the battered party out of a dangerous situation, providing, of course, that there is some place for that individual to stay and perhaps her children.

Herein lies basic problems of most battered wives and children having a place to go until they can pick up the pieces of their life. And here also seems to the Tri County Task Force's primary objective - to establish such a place of refuge or set up a network of homes of people willing to temporarily house such victims of abuse.

Members of the Task Force are also concerned about definitely pinpointing the concentration of wife and child abuse in their respective counties and are looking down the road to a needs assessment survey to get a better fix on the numbers and extent of problems locally

A third and final alternative, more expensive, permanent and requiring the services of an attorney, Antennucci explained is separation and filing for divorce. Under this proceeding, one may even go so far as to seek a restraining order, which in effect, is the court's way of saying "hands off" or you'll be sorry

Task Force members will continue to probe for answers and solutions to this problem of battered spouses and children in the local areas.

Virginia Nursing Home Residents Raise $87,648 For State Heart Fund

Over 3,500 residents of 93 nursing homes in Virginia raised a record $87,648 for the Virginia Affiliate of the American Heart Association by "rocking and rolling" for pledges during the 1981 Rock 'n Roll Jamborees hosted by the nursing homes during the past two months.

By rocking in rocking chairs, rolling in wheelchairs and joining in a variety of other activities, these residents, supported by the nursing home staffs and friends, raised nearly $20,000 more than last year's Jamborees. Nearly two-thirds of all the nursing homes in Virginia participated in this year's event.

The Rock 'n Roll Jamborees serve a dual purpose by raising money to help fund the Heart Association's research and education programs, while being of great therapeutic value to the nursing home residents by making them feel like an important, contributing part of their communities.

In Virginia, the Jamborees are coordinated by the Virginia Health Care Association, a professional organization representing over 80 percent of the state's nursing homes.

Last year, Virginia was one of the nation's top five states in total funds raised. Early results from the national Heart Association indicate that Virginia may be one of the top three fundraisers for 1981.

Area nursing homes participating were Carter Hall in Dryden and Heritage Hall in Big Stone Gap.

KEEP HOUSE SIDING LOOKING NEW

Many homeowners who invest in new siding for their houses choose aluminum or vinyl siding for its promise of easy maintenance should not be mistaken for "no" maintenance. Any siding will keep its like-new appearance only if given a periodic washing. Rain is one way dirt is rinsed away from a home's exterior walls, but rain alone can't keep siding clean.

Use detergent and water to remove soil and stubborn surface dirt. Apply suds with a soft bristle brush or sponge. Start from the bottom and work up. In this way, any dirty streaks can be wiped off the clean part and will not leave marks that are difficult to remove. Be sure to scrub undersides of overhangs and eaves. Rinse by hosing.

CONGRATULATIONS!!!

It is again time for another school year to come to a close. In this, the last article of the "Dryden High School News", I would like to thank each and everyone at DHS and the Powell Valley News who helped make this article a success. Without your help, there wouldn't have been a "Dryden High School News." I would like to wish my successor the best of luck next year. I hope that that person has as much fun as I did writing the article. Have a nice and safe summer!!!

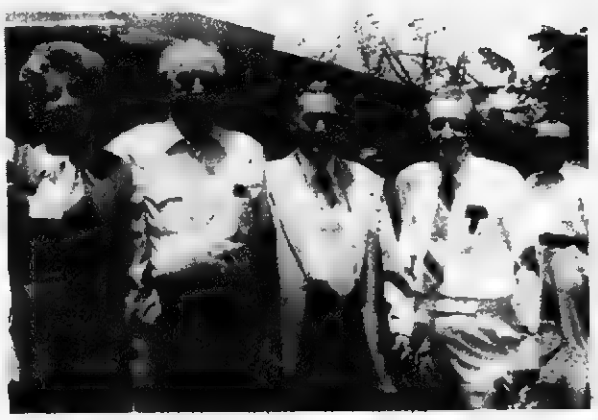
Second Annual Reunion

CCC Camp Revisited

CCC Company 2380 original photograph.

Everyone was glad they had returned to the place they had loved and the chance to renew old friendships of many years ago.



President Green with friends from afar . . .

Some came a long distance . . .

Checking out the yearbook . . .

Enjoying good fellowship . . .

Greeting an old friend . . .

Preparing for the next meeting . . . .

The second reunion of CCC Co. 2380 was held May 23 and 24, 1981 at Cumberland Bowl, Jonesville. The reunion was attended by approximately 87 former members and 38 of their wives. An exact count was not possible due to some members not being able to be there for registration day. The first day was very happy and some what emotional, as old friends greeted each other whom they had not seen for over forty years. Seeing all these old friends after so many years and recognizing them almost immediately, brought a lot of handshakes, hugging, laughter, and yes; some tears. It was truly a great moment shared by all, and as expressed by some; it was one of the happiest moments of their lives.

Of the 125 who attended the reunion, 12 States were represented. They were Virginia, North Carolina, Ohio, Indiana, Maryland, Florida, Michigan, Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia, Wyoming, and Texas. Also, there were many from distant Cities in Virginia, such as Norfolk, Chesapeake, Hampton, Cumberland, Bedford, Powhatan, Wytheville, Grundy, Staunton, and Richmond. Others were from many towns and cities closer to the reunion site. The majority of members attending were from Lee, Wise, and Scott County. Two members from California, one from Alaska, and one from Hawaii were unable to attend this year, but indicated they will attend next year. All who traveled to the reunion from near and far stated the reunion was well worth all the miles they had to travel to attend. Those traveling the longest distance to attend the reunion were Herschell (Doc) Stapleton and his wife Johnnie, from Harlingen, Texas and Harold Maxfield from Laramie, Wyoming.

On Saturday, May 23 a reunion dinner was served at the Jonesville High School Cafeteria.

The general meeting and elections were held and a general discussion was made on new activities for the reunion in May 1982. The site of the 1982 reunion was voted on and the members voted unanimously for the site to remain at the old Camp site in Jonesville.

Election of new Reunion Association Officers were held and the following members were elected to office. H.N. (Herb) Green, Richmond, re-elected President; Robert Sewell Davis, Ewing, elected Vice-President; Oscar R. Ingle, Jonesville, re-elected Treasurer; Arthur H. Carmony, Hampton elected Secretary. Also the following members were appointed Co-ordinating Committeeman by the President. Paul Hurd, Kyles Ford, Tenn., Luther Carroll, Jonesville, Shultz Bailey, Ewing, Allen Cody, Jonesville, Harold Maxfield, Laramie, Wyoming, Rex Hounshell, Dayton, Ohio, Elwood Shackleford, Pennington, and Edward Berry, Durham, N.C. Also, Clifford Snavely, Cumberland Gap, Tenn., was appointed Chaplain of the Reunion Association.

After the elections, Lt. Col. Maxwell Foster, (ret.) and Maj. J.R. Nichols, (ret.), both who were former Commanding Officers of CCC Co. 2380 during the 1930's and 40's, made a brief talk on the happiness and pleasure of being with the men of Co. 2380 again. Also, an abbreviated but outstanding talk was given by Mr. Harley Young, County Agent for Lee County and The Daniel Boone Soil and Conservation Agency.

On Sunday a church and rededication service was held for many members and their wives who attended the reunion. The Honorable Charles Couk, Mayor of Jonesville, Va. made a short welcoming address to the members present and graciously invited the reunion membership to come back next year.

The church service was held by our newly appointed Chaplain, Clifford Snavely, who performed in an outstanding manner. His message was especially fitting for this day and time, and it was well received by all. His closing prayer warmed all hearts and made everyone glad that they had returned to the place they had loved and the chance to renew old friendship of many years ago.

The rededication service was presided over by Herb Green, who advised the members present that this was an event that should have taken place many years ago, but most of us had gone our own way and scattered like the wind all over the country. All had thought of a reunion, but none had really had time to get things together. The reunion and rededication service was a new awakening for all former members.

The service gave all a chance to understand what rededication was all about. They were told that being with old friends again and becoming re-acquainted is a blessing that we should all treasure. The rededication of love and friendship for each other also meant that we could be together again after so many long years, that we can keep in touch, that we can help each other in any way that is needed. The members were advised that new friends were great, but old friends are best and it is not easy to make new friends at this time in life. A poem entitled "New Friends And Old Friends" - by Joseph Parry, was read by Herb, who also read a poem written by member Harold Maxfield over 40 years ago and entitled "Farewell", both which were well received by those present.

A brief but well-accepted talk was made by Colonel Foster, who stated his great pleasure and privilege to be attending the reunion. Also he congratulated all the members on their success in life and how proud he was to have been a part of our lives. Colonel Foster was given a standing ovation for his appearance and talk at the service.

The service was concluded by the President stating that he was truly sorry for those who had not attended the reunion and especially those who missed the Rededication Service. Those present at the service agreed that this was one of the most inspiring and memorable events they had attended.

President Green said, "I would be very remiss if I did not mention the outstanding manner in which Cecil Canter, Commander of the American Legion Post at Jonesville and his lovely wife Thelma helped us. They provided for all our needs including their Post Building for meetings and registration, all the facilities that had to be used, and even more so; helped us physically coordinate all the activities that were needed to make the reunion a success."

Barter's Gala 49th Summer Season Opening Is Comedy Hit "Dulcy"

DULCY, the 1920's madcap comedy by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, will formally begin the 1981 summer season with a gala "black tie" opening on Thursday, June 4.

DULCY concerns the efforts of a well-meaning wife, eager to further her husband's business career, who invites an unusual assortment of people to a weekend house party. This off-beat mixture of conventional and flamboyant characters provides a great many laughs for a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

The June 4 opening festivities will begin with a 6:30 p.m. dinner at the Martha Washington Inn, followed by the DULCY performance at 8:00 p.m. at Barter Theatre. Following the play will be an After Theatre Party where all who attend the opening night performance will have an opportunity to meet the cast.

Making her Barter debut is Mary Benson in the title role of Dulcy. Mary is a native of Charleston, West Virginia and a graduate of West Virginia University and Northwestern University. Mary's career has taken her to theatres in Denver, Colorado, Cleveland, Ohio and Rochester, Michigan.

Businessman, C. Roger Forbes is played by James Hilbrandt. At home in both plays and musicals, James has acted in THE SOUND OF MUSIC, SOUTH PACIFIC, KNOCK KNOCK and A BOY NAMED DOG, for which he won Off-Broadway's "Obie" Award for his performance.

Mrs. Forbes is acted by Carol Schultz. Carol made her Barter debut with The ODYSSEY tour this spring, and has been seen in New York in SELLOUT and DID ELVIS CRY? Other performances include Amy in WINGS, Agnes in SHADOW BOX and Solange in THE MAIDS.

Carolyn Clark plays the Forbes' daughter, Angela. In New York, she recently appeared as Cindy in THE DESPERATE HOURS, and lists as some of her other credits STOP THE WORLD I WANT TO GET OFF, THE YOUNGEST and the title role in the comic version of CINDER ELLA.

Eccentric pianist, Schuyler Van Dyck is played by Byron Grant. While this is Byron's first acting experience at Barter, he previously has been Musical Director here for productions of I DO, I DO and THE THREEPENNY OPERA. Earlier this season he directed THE FANTASTICKS.

The following six cast members are doing a complete switch from their serious roles in HOME OF THE BRAVE to the light comedy of DULCY.

Dulcy's brother, William, is played by Richard Taber, who made his Barter debut last season in THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST. Other regional and Off-Broadway performances have been n productions of THE CIRCLE, ANIMAL KINGDOM and EQUUS.

Daniel Oreskes has the role of the advertising exectuive, Tom Sterrett. Daniel's other performances include Stanley in A STREETCAR NAMED DESIRE, Oberon in A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM AND Teach in AMERICAN BUFFALO.

Silent movie script writer, Vincent Leach is portrayed by Con Roche, who appeared at Barter in 1977 in HAY FEVER, ALL MY SONS and PLAYBOY OF THE WESTERN WORLD. He also acted on television for three years as Dr. Rick Ryan on AS THE WORLD TURNS.

Henry, the ex-convict butler, is acted by Ray Hill. Ray's stage experience includes roles in LOOK HOMEWARD ANGEL, THE COUNTRY GIRL and the American premiere of FLINT. On television he has been seen in THE ANDROS TARGETS and YOU CAN'T GO HOME AGAIN.

Millionaire, Blair Patterson is played by Gerald Walling. Father Walling is a Jesuit priest and also a playwright. In New York he has acted in THE RIMERS OF ELDRITCH and THE DEVIL'S DISCIPLE. He originated the role of Father O'Reilly in DO BLACK PATENT LEATHER SHOES REALLY REFLECT UP?, the longest running original musical in Chicago's history.

DULCY is directed by George Tomlinson, whose previous Barter directing credits include SUMMER AND SMOKE in 1972, CANDIDA in 1974 and this season's HOME OF THE BRAVE. Also an actor, he has recently appeared in films with Sophia Loren, Peter O'Toole, Lee Majors, David Hemmings and Elke Sommer.

Lynn Pecktal, Set Designer, has designed the settings for more than 100 stage productions including plays seen on Broadway, in London and in Australia. He returns to Barter after designing here for ten seasons in the 1950's and 1960's. He is an alumnus of Virginia's Emory and Henry College and this month received their 1981 Distinguished Achievement Award.

Costume Designer Mary Jane McCarty has designed the wardrobe for six motion pictures including THE LAST CHASE, CLOWN WHITE and, most recently, PARADISE with Willie Aames. Her designs have been worn by Samatha Eggar, Lee Majors, Richard Crenna and Paul Williams.

Barter Lighting Designer Christopher H. Shaw, who devised the lighting for HOME OF THE BRAVE, does the same for DULCY.

DULCY opens on Wednesday, June 3 and will run through Sunday, June 21 with evening performances Tuesday and Thursday at 8:00 p.m., Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday at 7:00 p.m., with matinees on Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday at 2:00 p.m.

For those who wish to attend the June 4 gala season opening, reservations should be made as soon as possible. Formal dress is suggested, but is optional.

For more information on Barter Theatre's 49th season, write Barter Theatre, Abingdon, Virginia 24210 or call (703) 628-3991.

An Invitation To Termites

The Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services (VDACS) issued advice to homeowners to be sure to remove left over firewood, or any wood stacked against their house or barn. "This practice is an invitation to termites," said Charles G. Rock, Supervisor of the Paint and Pesticide Section of VDACS.

He explained that this time of year is the main swarm season for termites, which periodically leave their Colony in search of a mate. Stacked wood invites termites to go underground, lay their eggs, and start a new termite colony. The wood could provide the food for the new Colony being established. Termites are often found on window ledges, around baseboards, in closets and can be seen around the outside of houses.

How To Clean Upholstered Furniture

Upholstered furniture can be cleaned easily at home unless there is a major problem such as excessive soil, unusual stains, shrinkage or color bleeding. In many of these cases, the furniture should be cleaned by a reliable professional cleaning service.

Otherwise, a creditable cleaning job can be done following these suggestions.

Before trying to clean the fabric, test if for shrinkage. Sponge an inconspicuous spot with the cleaning solution, then let the fabric dry. Any shrinkage will be obvious.

Test for colorfastness by pressing a white paper towel, dampened with the cleaning fluid, against the fabric for several minutes. If the paper is stained, the colors will run.

To begin cleaning, remove as much of a fresh spill as possible with a spatula, and blot with towel, tissue, or sponge. Then lightly sponge the soiled area with clean water and blot. Do not rub.

If the stain remains, check the manufacturer's cleaning directions. These may appear on the hang tab, but on some upholstered furniture the instructions are attached beneath the cushions. Prompt action is important. Allowing a stain to set for any length of time makes it difficult, if not impossible, to remove

In a few cases, manufacturers recommend only professional cleaning. Most upholstered furniture, however, can be cleaned either with a water based cleaning agent or with a mild water-free dry cleaning agent

To remove water soluble stains such as starchy and sugary foods, apply a special upholstery cleaning or a solution of mild detergent suds. Laundry detergents are too strong.

For grease and oil stains, apply a dry cleaning solvent according to product directions. Sponge alcohol stains with a solution of alcohol and water and blot quickly. Sponge urine spots with cold water and then with vinegar, blotting well each time to remove the residue

Repeat the process several times to remove as much of the stain as possible

Give furniture a process several times to remove as much of the stain as possible.

Give furniture a general cleaning about twice a year

If the fabric can be cleaned with a water based solution, there are several upholstery shampoos from which to choose. These are mild detergent solutions, neither acid nor alkaline, which dry without leaving a sticky film on the fabric. Follow the manufactuer's directions exactly

If the fabric requires a dry cleaning fluid, again follow the manufacturer's directions carefully Solvents should be applied sparingly and wiped off before they soak into the filling material. Foam rubber will be damanged by solvents

Disaster Crop Insurance

Expansion plans for federal crop insurance today were accelerated by Secretary of Agriculture John R Block to include all acreage planted to crops formerly covered under USDA's disaster payments program

Block said these crops will be eligible for insurance in 1982, beginning with wheat and barley planted this fall. Other crops covered are corn, cotton, grain sorghum and rice

About 95 percent of the U.S soybean acreage will be covered, with the remainder becoming eligible after USDA collects yield data, he said

"By making this insurance available nationwide on disaster crops, we can provide greater protection for farmers and still meet our goal of reducing dependence on the federal government," Block said

He said the Reagan administration can now avoid extending the disaster payments program under the omnibus farm bill currently before Congress. That program expires later this year.

Previous federal crop insurance expansion plans would have added 250 counties per year to the program, making the insurance available on 97 percent of the disaster crop acreage in 1982

Block also announced that USDA's Federal Crop Insurance Corporation is preparing an individual yield program for all disaster crops and soybeans. Farmers able to prove their yields over a given period of years can have the coverage tailored to their own production history. This will be effective with 1982 spring planted crops, Block said.

However, he said, since individual farm yield data may be limited or unavailable in some areas, FCIS may develop identical rates and coverages involving several counties for the crops to be planted this fall. These coverages would be converted to the individual yield basis the following year, he said.

Under the new insurance program, coverage is readily available in each county since many private agents and companies are writing and delivering the federal insurance, Block said.

Keokee News

By Eula Clarkston

"Hello! to the month of June, the brightest and grandest place on the calendar, the month of roses and garden glory."

Centuries ago the Romans believed in gods and goddesses. So, deep was their faith in these mythical persons that they named the months of the year after them. The month of June was named after the goddess Juno, however, some people think the month belongs to the great Roman family Junius.

Anyway we shall call June the month of God. It brings the splendor of summer with all its beauty and joy.

As one little boy said, "Fried chicken is always better outside." The weather was a bit chilly that day but the children didn't seem to notice they were having so much fun. After lunch they went to Mrs. Bertie Simpson's house for some kool aid and cookies. Mrs. Simpson's husband has a fabious rock collection which the children enjoyed seeing.

"Was it back to school then? No, on to the Museum where the kids learned about their heritage." The boys loved the Indian arrowheads and fossils, and the girls were interested in the old baby buggy and beautiful quilts, maybe even one of their relatives helped to make. The boys and girls all said, they sure would hate to have a tooth pulled by the old instruments they saw at the Museum.

Then it was back to school arriving just in time to catch the bus for home. Everyone was tired out but had a great time on the trip.

Virginia Tech Commencement

Virginia Tech will confer degrees on approximately 4,700 students at commencement exercises to be held Saturday, June 6 at 8:55 a.m. in Lane Stadium.

Addressing the largest group of graduates in the university's 109-year history will be Tech President William E. Lavery. Lavery was chosen commencement speaker by a committee composed of students, class officers and representatives of each of Tech's colleges. Committee chairman Carl McDaniels, professor of educational and administrative services, said it was the unanimous decision of the committee to invite Lavery because of the "appropriateness and the genuine affection for him on the part of the students, faculty, and administration" at Tech. The last time a Tech president spoke at commencement was in 1970 when T. Marshall Hahn delivered his third commencement address.

There will be approximately 3,600 bachelors' degrees awarded, 900 masters' degrees, and 200 doctorates. In case of inclement weather, undergraduate exercises will be held in Cassell Coliseum; masters' and doctoral candidates will meet in Burruss Auditorium where they will watch the proceeds from the coliseum on closed circuit television and then receive their degrees. Good weather has permitted commencement exercises to be held in Lane Stadium for 11 straight years.

Dear Editor,

To Brenda Graham and Flatwoods Concerned Students.

I'm a parent of one of your students. I also have children in both Jonesville Elementary and High School. I would like to go on record in protest to your cold hearted attitude. How can anyone be so cold hearted as to put school and sports before a childs safety? God help you all! As a mother of a Flatwoods student, your inhuman attitude to life and other people is shocking!

I'm sure HELP didn't mean to offend anyone. They just went through the proper channels with their suggestions (that's all it was, no more) I'm having lunch today with some of the members. I'll ask them to check with you first next time there is a idea. Not to take Jonesville students safety or education first but make sure you're not inconvenient. All I want is a safe place for my children to be educated.

If your students, parents and teachers protest that much why not come out to the meeting? Their meetings are open to all Lee County. Have you seen the HELP committee proposal? Have you read it in detail?

You say "Flatwoods cafeteria will seat approximately 90 people. How will that eliminate overcrowding? "HELP didn't mean to seat all 570 students at one time. I'm sure you have more than 90 students. I know they don't all eat at the same time.

I've worked just as hard as any Flatwoods parent in your school project. I didn't do it because I have a child at Flatwoods but because there were children in need. Next time you're on the playground look at your equipment then think of me. Parents from Dryden, Pennington Gap, Jonesville, Rose Hill, Ewing, St. Charles and other places helped put it there. It wasn't put there just because you are from Flatwoods.

No one at Jonesville wants to destroy your school. We just want a safer place for all children. May I ask each one of you "What is more important to you?" Flatwoods varsity sports and identity or a childs safety? I hope there are some of you that are human and have compassion?

I'm not sure now if I want my children down there if you are taught to be cold and inhuman to others. You write like you think HELP wants to take over your school. Not so, can't we do what is best and safe for all? I just hope the school board thinks of our children's safety and not your schools sports.

Why not ask a member of HELP to come to a meeting for more information. Get all the facts before you say anymore.

New schools are at least ten years in the future. HELP just wants to do something for our children now. Their project won't be forever. I'm not a member of HELP but I'll be at their next meeting to know more. Try to keep an open mind and be fair. Get all the facts!

HEARING GOD'S COMMANDS

King Josiah consistently and persistently obeyed the law of the Lord. Consequently, God gave him the needed strength and crowned his efforts to serve Him with success.

Finding A Lost Scroll – II Kings 23: 1-2

Wanting his people to worship God correctly, Josiah instructed Hilkiah; the high priest, to clean and repair the home of the Lord. In the process of removing the rubbish therefrom workmen found an old scroll which had been buried in the debris for a long time. This scroll was the Book of the Law, the loss of which had been disastrous. Hilkiah's report to Shaphan, Josiah's servant, "I have found the book of the law in the house of the Lord," the latter did not consider the discovery as anything about which to get excited.

Upon hearing the reading of the scroll, Josiah was convinced that its message was truly God's message to his people. Through his messengers Josiah summoned the prophets, the priests and the populace to a great mass meeting, and read in their hearing "all the words of the book of the covenant," in order that the listeners might understand what the requirements of the Lord were. In the presence of the hearers Josiah pledged his loyalty to God, and promised to obey God's Word to the very limit of his ability. Following the example of their king, the people solemnly declared their adherence to the covenant and pledged themselves to worship, obey, and serve God. Thus God's Word exerted a purifying influence in the lives of the people of the affairs of the nation.

Let us remember that God's Word has not lost its power or become out-of-date. It speaks to the needs of people in all generations. This eternal Word is as fresh and helpful today as it was when it was first recorded. Only as God's Word becomes a part of us will our lives be fruitful, and be lived to the glory of God. If you have lost it through neglect or otherwise, find it, study it, believe it obey it, and teach it to others.

God's Standard For His People – Deuteronomy 10: 12-11:1

Reminding the people of Israel of the greatness, goodness, and grace of God, which He had so frequently, graciously, and generously demonstrated toward them, as in the case of His deliverance of them from their bondage in Egypt, Moses informed them that God rightfully required the total dedication of their hearts, minds, and lives to Him. Moses let the people know for a certainty that God fully expected them to revere, trust, worship, praise, thank, honor, love, obey, and serve Him cheerfully and faithfully. Because of the majesty of His person, the wonder of His grace, and the multiplicity and greatness of His acts in their behalf, Moses urged the Israelites to express their genuine gratitude to God for all of His numerous mercies and blessings which He had bestowed upon them. We, too, are challenged to honor, love, obey, and serve God to the fullest extent possible because of whom He is and for what He has done for us. He deserves our very best in all ways and always.

Ponderin' And Putterin'

This week has been a hectic one around our place. Our cauliflower has begun to mature and we've been busy trying to stay ahead of it. I've heard it called "cabbage with a college education." It took me a while to get up the nerve to grow it but so far my luck has been much better than with the burpless cucumbers.

In case, you're interested, the best time to plant vegetables that bear crops above the ground is during the light of the moon; that is, between the time the moon is new to the day it is full. Vegetables that bear crops below ground should be planted during the dark of the moon that is the day after it is full to the day before it is new again. I definitely must have set my strawberries at the right time, because they have really outdone themselves this year. Strawberries besides having a high vitamin C content also contain iron and salicylic acid (found in aspirin) this acts favorably upon the liver, kidney and joints. Sounds wonderful, doesn't it. Last but not least it has a remarkable effect on high blood pressure. Its wonderful to think something that looks good, tastes good is also good for us. So while you're picking berries, don't feel guilty about eating them, remember its for your sore joints and blood pressure.

The bees on the mountain are certainly having a high time in my herb garden. One of their favorites seems to be the camomile. The nickname for this plant is "physicians plant" it seems if you place an ailing plant near the camomile 9 out of 10 times it will recover. The aroma from the plant has an apple smell to it, though in no way does it favor an apple or apple tree. The name camomile is derived from the Greek word Kamai (on the ground) and melon (apple). As an herb it is used to calm the nerves, cure delirium tremens and prevent nightmares. As a tonic, an infusion is made from the blossoms, take a half to a full ounce of the blossoms and a pint of boiling water. Besides having a healing capacity, its a terrific insect repellent. Take your tonic, wash in it, let dry and no insects will bother you.

To close this week, I'll leave you with this poem.

Our Daily Bread
M. Babcock

Back of the loaf is the snowy flour
And back of the flour is the mill
And back of the mill is the wheat and the shower
And the sun and the Father's will.

Operation C.A.R.E. State Troopers Report

State troopers patrolled a total of 121,192 miles over the Memorial Day weekend, made 5,676 arrests and assisted 2,935 distressed or stranded motorists

However, 14 persons lost their lives in motor vehicle crashes during the holiday weekend compared to 12 a year ago

Participating in Operation C.A.R.E. an acronym for Combined Accident Reduction Effort for the fourth consecutive year, the Department of State Police increased the number of troopers patrolling portions of the state's busiest roads beginning Friday at 6:00 p.m The intent of the program, which continued through 12 Midnight Monday, was to increase trooper visibility to the point where it encourages safe driving by motorists.

"We believe the C.A.R.E program continues to be very successful," said Colonel D.M Slane, Department Superintendent, "but we are disappointed in the total number of fatalities. On Virginia's interstate highways, there were only 42 property damage crashes compared to 93 in 1980."

Total arrests and summonses for the holiday period included 4,391 speeding, 257 reckless driving, 58 driving drunk and 970 other hazardous violations."

Night Drafting Program At MECC

Beginning in June 1981, Mountain Empire Community College will initiate a night drafting program for interested people who may not be able to attend the day program.

A major aspect of the program will be flexibility in the scheduling of the classes, as well as the course content. Should more advanced students be interested in a particular area of drafting, they will be offered assistance in these areas.

The courses are tentatively scheduled to be offered through seven quarters. Upon completion of the course work, the student will receive a certificate in drafting.

For further information regarding these classes, call Mountain Empire Community College, phone 523-2400, ext. 210.

Reforestation Tax Incentives

Forest landowners in Virginia need to keep accurate records if they hope to take advantage of the new reforestation tax incentives.

That's the word from Harry L. Haney Jr., Virginia Tech Extension specialist in forest management.

He observed that records need to be a 12 month-a year job. Land owners shouldn't rely on guesswork at tax time next spring.

"Capital gains and tax deductions show the value of record keeping to the timber owner. Bookkeeping needn't be complicated.

"All that is needed is an orderly list of original costs and expenditures as they are made, backed by the appropriate receipts. This can include timber costs, site preparation and tree planting, consulting fees, timber sales and up to date volume," said the Tech College of Agriculture and Life Sciences faculty member.

Timber landowners still are learning about the reforestation tax incentives law passed in October The reforestation incentive is a 10 percent investment tax credit and seven year amortization on the first $10,000 of capitalized reforestation expenditures each year

To take advantage of the new law, Haney advised landowners to plan winter plantings now and prepare the planting site during the summer

The legislation makes reforestation expenses eligible, within limits, for the same treatment as investments in other kinds of productive assets, like buying a new tractor for a farm or some new equipment for a small business

The new incentives should help ease the short fall in timber production in the next several decades, said Haney

Before this law, direct costs of reforestation were treated as capital expenditures. They should be recovered as a depletion deduction only after the timber was cut Under the new law, landowners can recover these costs early and get investment credit

This should make reforestation investments much more attractive

A Great Beginning

Cedar Hill Golf Pro Hopes To Beat Golf-A-Thon Record

Cedar Hill Golf Pro Shannon Evans is in training . . but not to perfect his swing He's trying to improve his speed

Evans is getting ready to beat his own record in the second annual Cedar Hill Golf A Thon scheduled for June 9 Beginning at the crack of dawn, Evans will tee off trying to complete as many holes of golf as possible before he tires out or sundown catches him first Last year Evans played 374 holes from dawn until about 8:45 p.m.

The Golf A Thon not only gives the Cedar Hill Pro a real workout, but also through the generous pledge of individuals and local businessmen, adds considerable support to the junior golf scholarship fund

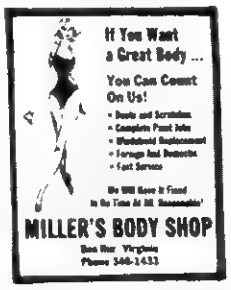
Pledges may range from five cents to a dollar with all money received going toward sending local Lee County youngsters to junior golfing camp later in the summer

Last year Evans' effort secured $1,500 for the scholarship fund enabling six perspective young golfers to attend the week long camp

At least 10 youngsters have already expressed an interest in the camp for this year, according to Country Club personnel

For more information about the Golf A-Thon, the tax deductible pledges or making application for the junior camp, contact the Cedar Hill Country Club Pro Shop at 346 1535

And don't miss the opportunity to see Evans in action on June 9th.. It promises to be a real spectacle, according to his wife. She's even trying to get some TV coverage for the event so that more can enjoy this exercise in skill and speed.



STICKLEY WATER WORKS, INC.
ROSE HILL, VA.

Dear Customer:

We have been advised by State health officials that we are in violation of the Virginia Waterworks Regulations because we failed to furnish them with the proper number of water samples from the Stickley Waterworks Rose Hill water system for the months of January, February and March, 1981.

Without proper sampling and testing, the quality of water delivered to our customers for the above period cannot be determined.

We are attempting to prevent further violations of this type by collecting the required two samples per month and submitting them to the State Laboratory.

Further violations, however minor, will be reported to you as part of new Federal and State Waterworks Regulations aimed at increasing consumers awareness of conditions that exist in public water systems.

Sincerely,
Fred F. Stickley

United Methodist Women

The Morgan Memorial Unit of United Methodist Women met at the Church on Thursday evening, May 7th, with Mrs. Henry Campbell presenting the program, "Telling Our Story."

It was an occasion for members to reflect on their history of participating in christian fellowship over the years through their women's organization, and to evaluate what it had meant to them and to others.

Mrs. Van Grabeel shared briefly a story of many accomplishments when the organization was a Ladies Aid Society, and The Woman's Society of Christian Service.

Members also shared how it is a continuing story, a mixed story - of being lost and saved, of being exiled and redeemed often wandering, but called to be faithful sometimes callous to the needs and feelings of others, but mostly a caring people who reach out to others in love and service.

The hymn chosen for singing by Mrs. Campbell was, "We've a Story to Tell To The Nations", and that story she said, "Is that God chose to enter history as a helpless newborn baby, who was reared by a poor couple in a vexed corner of the Roman Empire. He came to a troubled world in which he preached and ministered in love, but clashed with the authorities and was executed."

God experienced death, human and painful, through Jesus," stated Mrs. Campbell, "but the story doesn't end there. It is a story of hope", she stated "And though God judges us, and struggles with us, yet He accepts us, and forgives our failures so that we can live anew in brotherhood with people everywhere, including the members of our own household

Scripture basic to The Story, in Luke 24.13 35 was read by Mrs. James Wright. Others participating were Mrs. John Seale, Mrs. Snyder Harris, Mrs R C Smith, Mrs. John Hounshell, Jr., president, and Mrs. Jewel Campbell whose vocal solo, "So Send I You," climaxed the story that each shares with others that "The Savior is alive today, and lives in all who believe, and are obedient to his word and guidance."

Lee Supervisors Approve Funds For Chapter 10

Lee County supervisors at their regular June 3 meeting voted after considerable discussion to unanimously approve the $19,000 budgetary request of the Chapter 10 Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board now under the guidance of Holston Valley Mental Health Services.

Supervisors Tevis Wilder and Bill Thomas pointed out that by not funding the mental health center, in the long run the county would have to pay more by contracting these court-ordered services to the other agencies. Sheriff R.V. Chadwell also pointed out it would create a real hardship on his department if he had to transport those persons for court-ordered services to Bristol or wherever they might be.

Supervisors, after hearing from a representative committee of users of the Woodway Water Authority concerning recent appointments to that Board, also voted to rescind previous appointments for 30 days until the supervisors can resolve any misunderstandings in the bylaws with regard to Water Authority Board appointments.

During the course of discussion on the recent appointments, it was pointed out that there was much confusion concerning the new appointments and a conflict of interest existed due to the fact that some of the newly appointed Water Authority Board members were relatives of Supervisor D.J. Barker, who previously made the motion for the questionable appointments.

In other action, County Administrator Odell Wilson explained the procedure of bond note renewal and informed the Board that the note renewal would be at a rate of 10 percent for the renewing of the $940,000 for one more year.

The Board approved the necessary resolutions including a preliminary statement and an escrow agreement with the Bank of Virginia as part of the renewal process. A copy of the resolutions is on file in the County Administrator's office.

Supervisors, after hearing Coy Chadwell explain his desire to sell the contract and operation of garbage collection in the County to Eddie Hensley, unanimously agreed to permit Chadwell to do this with the understanding that Hensley will be operating under the same contract as Chadwell did.

The Board also approved a resolution calling for the intent to adopt an ordinance restraining the parking and running of noisy compressors of refrigeration trucks and other equipment between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. This action stemmed from complaints in the western end of the County.

Supervisors adopted a $381,732 budget at the annual road hearing prior to actual business of the meeting.

New appointments included Pat Fortner to the Industrial Development Authority replacing Bill Thomas; Willard Chambers, as road viewer, replacing David Rasnic.

June 23 Set As Date For Public Budget Hearing

Lee County supervisors have set June 23, 10 a.m., as the date for the formal public budget hearing to discuss the 1981-82 fiscal year budget synopsis as published in this edition of the News.

Total budget estimates for the coming fiscal year as finally agreed upon by Board members at a June 3 work session set the local budget at $4,913,319.12.

Of this total amount, $2,238,000 is designated for the local school board, a cut from the requested local county portion of $2,798,280.

If supervisors adopt the proposed budget by June 30, based on an assessment of $375 million dollars of local real estate and personal property, a tax rate of 62 cents per hundred dollars of assessed value must be used to obtain a balanced budget.

Lee County Administrator Odell Wilson praised the efforts of the Board in finally deciding on a budget that "we all should be able to live with." He added that the 62 cent tax rate was actually lower than he had anticipated, expecting one of at least 70 cents.

Suffering the largest cuts on proportionate scale were the Lee County Library and the Lee County Department of Social Services. The local library, part of the Lonesome Pine Regional Library network, had requested approximately $125,000, with supervisors cutting that figure to roughly $50,000. Wilson said supervisors were concerned about having to pay salaries of several employees at the Wise, Va., library headquarters in relation to services provided locally by the library.

Also the target of some severe trimming was the local welfare department/social services request for $332,248 which was reduced to $241,644 (this figure also includes an appropriation to the senior citizens.) Wilson said that the consensus of feeling among supervisors was that welfare program funding were "getting out of hand" with too much "over growth." He added that Board members in general disagreed with many of the federal directives handed down to the locality and that local constitutents were voicing their discontent with some mandated practices.

Supervisors also foresee considerable cuts in state welfare monies to the locality and want to prepare in advance for such budgetary changes.

In almost every category, supervisors trimmed original appropriation requests, in a "necessary and justifiable manner," Wilson noted.

Agency heads and employees and the general citizenry who have some question about the '81 '82 proposed budget should utilize the June 23 hearing at the Courthouse to air their complaints or suggestions. Supervisors will formally vote and adopt the final budget on June 30, according to Wilson.

Judge Orders July 7 Vote On Change In Government

Lee County Circuit Court Judge Samuel Coleman, III formally signed on June 2 an order calling for a referendum on the question of changing from the County Board Form of government, as provided for in the State Code, to the traditional form of county government.

According to the State Code, under the traditional form of county government, used today in all but a few of Virginia's counties, the board of supervisors functions both as a legislative and an administrative committee, whereas under the county board form, supervisors, for the most part, become primarily a legislative body.

Specific differences in the two types of local government are:

-Under the county board form of government, a chief administrator is necessary, i.e. the County Administrator.

-Supervisors appoint members of the local school board and welfare board.

The board of supervisors also includes the position of supervisor at large.

Under the traditional form of local government, school board members are appointed by the School Trustee Electoral Board, which is appointed by the local circuit court judge.

The position of county administrator is not mandatory under the traditional form of government, but is left to the discression of local supervisors.

There is no supervisor at-large under the traditional form.

A majority of Lee County voters in a November 5, 1968, referendum chose, by a margin of 463 votes, to change from the traditional form of government to the county board form of government.

Now, as a result of a petition bearing 15 percent of the registered Lee County voters filed on behalf of Ezra F. Cooper and citizens by Attorney Tom Rasnic in local circuit court, the question of changing back to the traditional form will face voters as soon as July 7, 1981, the date set forth in Judge Coleman's order for the special election.

Back in August 1968, Dr. Beryl Owens presented a resolution to the then five member board of supervisors calling for the change to the county board form. Dr. Owens, in a plea for "unity and progress" said a change of government would "take the schools out of the realm of partisan politics."

Voting in favor of the resolution at that time were Chairman Bascomb Waddell, Roy Lucas and Curtis Lawson, voting against were Board members Charlie Smith and Robert Orr.

Lee County citizens went to the polls on November 5 to elect a president and after a hotly contested campaign voted the switch in forms of government. On January 1, 1969, the changeover took place.

Once again it seems local voters must decide upon which form of government they prefer, with the date of the special election set for July 7. A copy of the judge's order is available for you scrutiny in this and subsequent editions of the News.

All Systems Go For Coal-Washing Plant

The Lee County Industrial Authority Thursday, June 4, approved the bond financing of a $7.5 million coal preparation plant slated for the Benedict area of Lee County.

Bill Huber, representing Miller's Cove Energy Corporation, a parent of the proposed Straight Creek Processing Company, explained that there is an estimated 20 million tons in coal reserves in the area which currently can't be sold at a profit unless the rock is removed.

The proposed coal-washing facility, described as about one-fourth the size of the plant at Appalachia, would transform this poor quality coal into a very marketable product, Huber said, with a low sulpher and low ash content and a strength of 1,300 BTU. Huber said the coal would most likely be marketed to utility companies.

In building such a coal processing plant, Straight Creek will also renovate existing railroad lines, set up a power substation, erect utility lines and build a unit train load out facility.

Huber predicted plant construction would begin hopefully in August with a target completion date of the spring of '82.

Citing the benefits of such a facility, he noted that the basic advantage would be a product would be sold that is currently unsaleable.

Furthermore, the plant would employ at least 30 employees on a three-shift regimen, with the potential of employing around 280 more in the mines to supply the processing operation.

Huber also said the coal operation would add considerably to real estate and personal property tax base of the county, as well as the benefit of wages from new jobs being spent by employees in local stores.

11th Annual Field Trails, Bench Show Set June 10-13

The 11th annual Lee County Horse and Hunting Club's Fox Hound Bench Show and Field Trials promise to provide plenty of challenge and enjoyment for fox hound enthusiasts.

Scheduled for June 10, 11, 12 and 13, this year's event will be held at the Club's recreation area located about three and one half miles from Jonesville.

Last year hunters and hounds from 14 states and Canada gathered to participate in this big event. As an added bonus for participants, there are abundant and attractive camping facilities featuring water and utility hook-ups, as well as many special planned activities such as hiking, fishing, horseback riding, croquet, softball and others. Ladies of the Club will be serving food daily at the Club House. Also a square dance and cake walks are planned for Friday night, June 12.

Some 63 trophies will be given during the course of the Tournament. The hunting territory is unlimited with hundreds of acres well stocked with red and gray foxes. Fast highways are no problem in this area. To better cover the area, the judges will be mounted.

Bench Show Judge will be Handford Alderman, Meadows of Dan, Va., and Master of Hounds will be Charles Boyd, Lewisburg, Tenn.

Activities during the four-day event will include the Bench Show on June 10 at 7:30 p.m. and horne blowing contest. Hounds will be cast at daybreak on June 11, 12 and 13 with trophies awarded on the final day of activity.

DMV Issues IDs For Non - Drivers

If you don't have a driver's license, proving your identity and age might be easier if you apply for a non-driver identification card issued by the Division of Motor Vehicles.

Although non-drivers of all ages request the ID cards, Donald E. Williams, DMV commissioner, said they are issued primarily as a service for elderly people to help them cash their checks and prove that they qualify for senior citizen discounts. Williams noted that some merchants and banks may require additional identification.

The cards, first issued in July 1973, are available only to Virginia residents who do not have a driver's license. They include the owner's name and address, date of birth, sex, signature and color photo. Enclosed in a plastic case, the cards cost $5 and are valid for five years.

Last year, DMV issued about 40,000 cards, bringing the total issued in the past seven and a half years to 138,628.

Applications for the IDs are available at any DMV branch office or license examining station. Individuals seeking the IDs must furnish the same proof of identity and date of birth required of driver's license applicants. DMV will accept birth certificates, military and school records and other similar documents.

To deter fraudulent ID seekers, Williams said the cards are mailed rather than delivered immediately

June 1, 1981
Dear Mr. McCoy:

This letter is to express my gratitude and deep appreciation to you and the faculty of your schools for your concern for the education of the young. I have a son, Jeff Seay, age 16, attending Dryden High School, mainly through the efforts of John Collier, Principal

My son first began his education in the school system of Wise County, Big Stone Gap, VA. Unfortunately, his progress was not as good as we would have liked and school became a chore instead of a challenge. I talked with numerous teachers as well as the Superintendent of Schools in Wise County but received no help. Always an excuse or alibi. Then, a friend asked me to talk with Mr. Collier and through him, yourself and the Lee County School Board, Jeff was able to attend Dryden High School.

Since his enrollment at the beginning of the year, his grades have been As and Bs, with one C. In talking with his teachers and principal, I am informed he is a fine student and they are glad to have him.

In my career with railroads and school boards, I find this unparallel to anything that I have ever had any part of. It is good to know there are still teachers, places and schools that have the interest of the students and education at heart. I questioned my son as to what did he contribute this "turnaround" to and he said, "Well, Daddy, the teachers help me and they listen." Thanks again to you and all your staff, the school system and School Board of Lee County.

Respectfully,
Jim Seay

Letter To The Editor:

In response to Linda Burk's letter last week I feel I must correct her or rather enlighten her on several issues. To begin with, I'm a graduate of Flatwoods and a parent of a Flatwoods Elementary student. I have kept up with the H.E.L.P. organization since its inception. My feelings truthfully are mixed on the subject of Jonesville students attending Flatwoods. I'm sure there is not a parent, teacher, student nor interested party from our area that does not sympathize with the plight of your children. But to theorize without fact that our students are taught to be cold and inhuman to others is to me made a bit hastily. I have been in Jonesville [illegible] I agree whole heartily it is [illegible] your children should have better. Are we human and compassionate? Yes, and also proud of the heritage of our school and also proud that here are young people growing up, who will stand up and be counted as Brenda Graham and Sharon Rasnick and the other students are! They could have gone on passively, never rocking the boat, accepting the will of others without question, but they didn't. Do not misunderstand, I'm not saying your children should not have a decent and safe place to be educated in. I admire you for writing your views but I feel you judged our cold-hearted attitude a bit quick.

I'm sure if a special invitation had been extended, possibly thru the paper, to teachers, students and parents of Flatwoods School to come and express their views, there might have been some there. But you see, we didn't think you wanted our opinion! When its given, its certainly not taken objectively. I do thank you, Linda Burke, for making me become aware that unless we do get involved nothing can or will be solved.

You say H.E.L.P.'s project won't be forever. If that's the case, let Jonesville Elementary students go to school in the new court house. I'm sure the Board of Supervisors will be glad to temporarily let you use it while they come up with a solution.

Letter To The Editor

H.E.L.P. Wants School Improvements

Education is the Greatest need of all children. One particular group of interested and concerned parents in Lee County agrees with this statement and has chosen to take a stand for improved facilities and educational opportunities for Lee County School children. This organization is known as the H.E.L.P. (Help Education Lee Priority) committee of Jonesville. It is seldom ever popular to speak out on controversial issues but the members of the H.E.L.P. organization feel that the condition of the Jonesville Elementary School in Lee County has been swept under the rug long enough. The problems have been discussed for more than thirty years and everyone agrees that something needs to be done. The H.E.L.P. committee is taking the stand that NOW is the time to do something to correct the problems which everyone is so ready to admit that exist. Enough talking has been done so now it is time to see that steps are taken to improve the situation.

The H.E.L.P. committee feels that the education of our children is the single most important investment any one will ever make for the return we will be able to see from the money spent. This organization feels that the parents and citizens of Lee County should be showing the children of our county how important they are to each of us by seeing that improvements are made in our educational facilities instead of saying there is a problem and doing nothing more.

The H.E.L.P. organization has spent several months checking on the options that are available to correct some of the problems in the educational facilities of Lee County. Many hours have been spent by this group in studying past school board proposals for the schools of the Jonesville and White Shoals Districts. Past and present educators of the Lee County educational system have been consulted during the process of trying to find an immediate workable solution to the existing problems. No solution will ever be arrived at that will make everyone 100% happy. The important thing one has to do in trying to solve the problems is to arrive at a solution that will have the best educational advantages for all involved.

On May 12, 1981 the H.E.L.P. committee submitted to the Lee County School Board a proposal that they feel will benefit all children of the Jonesville and White Shoals Districts. The proposal was prepared and presented with the intent of utilizing our resources more efficiently, eliminating a serious hazard to our children, promoting better educational opportunities for our children, and saving Lee County Schools more than a hundred thousand dollars.

A summary of the proposal is to: Move Jonesville High School seventh grade to Flatwoods. Move Jonesville Elementary grades four, five and six to Flatwoods. Move Flatwoods High School Students to Jonesville High School Grades K 3 at Jonesville Elementary will remain there. Grades K-7 presently at Flatwoods will remain there.

The H.E.L.P. committee considered the benefits and adjustments of this proposal for both communities and a list of these were a part of the proposal whenever it was prepared. The parents of the H.E.L.P. organization realize that a move of this nature results in strong emotional reactions by all affected. This has already been evident to the people of Lee County in the closings of Jasper, Ben Hur, Blackwater, Robbins Chapel, and the moving of St. Charles High School to Pennington Gap High School. The parents, educators, and concerned citizens of Lee County have the responsibility, no matter how unpopular, of providing the very best educational opportunities for all children of the county. Most children are not mature or knowledgable enough to make decisions concerning what is in their best interest but it is the responsibility of parents to see that decisions are made that are for the best interest of their children. No one anywhere will be as concerned over the education of your child as you. In today's highly specialized world, parents must see that their children have the very best education that society can provide.

The statement has been made that whenever a family moves into a community they automatically look at three things that tell a lot about the community and the people living there. The first thing considered is the homes found in the community. Next the churches and schools of the community are considered. The citizens of Lee County stand second to none in the homes found in their area. Some of the finest homes in the nation will be found in Lee County, Virginia. Lee Countians can boast of some of the most beautiful and picturesque churches to be found anywhere.

After newcomers see what Lee County has to offer in beautiful homes and churches, they then can look at Jonesville Elementary School as an example of what we have to offer in educational facilities

One must ask, what does this say about the Governing Body of Lee County? What does this say about the Educators and School Board of Lee County? What does this say about the interest the parents of children in Lee County take in their child's education? What does this say about the priorities of the people of Lee County?

The H.E.L.P. committee has taken, what they are finding to be, a very unpopular stand to speak out and work for improved educational facilities for Lee County. The Parents of this organization are putting forth a lot of time and effort to try to bring about some long overdue improvements. What are other parents and concerned citizens doing to improve the educational opportunities and facilities of Lee County School Children? What is the Lee County School Board and the Lee County Board of Supervisors doing to work with the parents and concerned citizens to help improve facilities and educational opportunities for the children of Lee County?

Ponderin' And Putterin'

Since I wrote about the light and the dark of the moon last week, this week I'll tell you how the noon's phases in the Zodiac have long been used as a planting guide. You use them as follows, 1. Plant while the moon is in a fruitful stage: Cancer, Scorpio, Pisces, Taurus or Capricorn. 2. Cultivate when the moon is in a barren stage: Aries, Leo, Virgo, Sagittarius, Gemini, Libra and Aquarius.

It is best to plow during Aries, plant potatoes, carrots, lettuce and cabbage during Taurus. Cancer is best for all planting, Leo for killing weeds. Libra – for planting flowers. Scorpio is also good for general all around planting. Sagittarius for plowing and planting onions. Capricorn for all root crops. Aquarius for destroying insects and last Pisces is very productive in planting. Since I know you're anxious to try this out, I'll list each of next weeks signs for you so you can experiment. The 10th thru 11th is Libra, 13th and 14th Scorpio, 15th thru 17th Saggitarius, 18th and 19th Capricorn. I'm sorry Aquarius isn't listed, because of the rain My garden has instantly become insect city especially for the flea beetles. Planting basil among tomatoes helps keep them away from the "love apple" but its all out war everywhere else. Spraying the garlic pepper and soap spray might help if the rain wouldn't wash it away. To make it, you blend flour crushed cloves of garlic, four tablespoons of hot pepper, a cut-up cake of soap Palmolive) and a cup of hot water. Dissolve in 2 gallons of water, cool, spray and pray.

Of course, handling the garlic may also keep things away from you also, but take heart, garlic is best known as the herb of the common man. Garlic cloves set out in March should be ready to harvest in August. After the blades wither, gather the bulbs, you may braid the tops together and hang up to dry or place them in a net bag (or old nylon stocking) and hang them up to dry. If you like garlic but do not eat it because of the after odor, chew a sprig or two of parsley as soon as you finish your garlic meal. The smell is due to the oil in the herb "allicin", it contains sulfur, iodine and fruit sugar. The oil is supposed to be so potent that folklore has it if you rub a clove so garlic on the sole of your foot, your breath will be affected. But garlic also has a medicinal value, a syrup of garlic is made by pouring a quart of boiling water over a pound of sliced garlic cloves. Allowing the mixture to brew 12 hours then stirring in sufficient sugar to make a syrup. Vinegar and honey may be added and are said to improve it. This may be taken in very small doses for colds, coughs and sore throats. I would advise making this before winter, you'll be spending a lot of time outside of the house after brewing this.

Lee County Health Department Offers Home Health Services

"The home health services program, operated by the Lee County Health Department, offers a less expensive form of part time nursing care and rehabilitative therapy than similar attention in a hospital or nursing home," says Dr. G.C. Honeycutt, Jr., Director of the department

Home health services, which are available to any one regardless of age or income, provides skilled nursing care to anyone homebound due to illness or injury. Services include changing dressings and catheters, giving injections, supervising medications, collecting blood and urine samples, and training the patient and family members in ways to help speed recovery.

This popular form of medical service doesn't eliminate the hospital, nursing home, or patient's physician. "In fact," says Dr Honeycutt, "the physician is a key figure in the program because he must consent to enroll his patient and then he must direct the home health team in their care of his patient." However, anyone, family member, friend, or the patient himself can contact the health department for initial information.

Once a doctor decides to utilize the home health services program, a public health nurse will interview the patient and consult with the doctor to be sure that the proper level of care can be provided. If it can, the doctor prescribes a treatment plan to be followed, and regular reports are made to him on his patient's progress. This close cooperation between the home health team and the doctor continues for as long as the patient is in the program.

A fee is charged to cover the cost of the service. Many health insurance plans cover this service as will Medicare and Medicaid under most conditions. So will Blue Cross/Blue Shield, other private insurance companies, the Veterans Administration and CHAMPUS.

Dr. Honeycutt suggests that the home health services program be considered whenever:

Complex hospital services are not needed.

A very young or very old patient especially needs the support of family and friends.

A long recovery is necessary.

Rehabilitation is needed. For example, for a bone fracture or arthritis

A patient with a terminal illness can be happier, cared for at home.

Home surroundings can contribute to a patient's recovery.

You can learn more about this program by calling the Lee County Health Department at 346-2011 any weekday between 8:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Congressman BILL WAMPLER Reports from Washington

I have received a number of letters and calls recently concerning money market mutual funds. This savings instrument gives the average investor a fair chance to keep up with inflation. The problem with money market funds is that banks and savings and loan associations cannot compete with them.

Legislation has recently been introduced that would authorize the Federal Reserve to regulate money market funds. But I believe the solution to this problem is not more federal regulation, but less regulation

That is why I am supporting a bill that would allow banks and savings and loan associations to offer an investment equivalent to that found in a money market fund. This bill would not impose any additional Federal regulations on money market funds. Instead, it would expand consumer access to this type of investment.

More specifically, this bill would amend the Investment Company Act of 1940 to permit banks and saving and loan associations to provide collective fund services for non-trust accounts, including the sponsoring of mutual funds

Banks, including mutual savings banks, bank holding companies, and savings and loan associations would be authorized to sponsor investment companies and sell their shares. These investment companies would be organized and registered in compliance with the Investment Company Act of 1940 and their shares would be registered under the Securities Act of 1933. A bank whose size does not warrant the establishment of a fund would be authorized to serve its customers by selling shares of another bank's fund

My general philosophy is that our economy and consumers would benefit from less government regulation. Rather than regulate money markets, I would prefer to see changes made that would permit all financial institutions to operate and compete on an equal basis

CLAIMING GOD'S PROMISE
Deuteronomy 1: 19-31

After their deliverance from bondage in Egypt, the children of Israel marched toward the land of Canaan, which long before God had promised to Abraham and his descendants. As they traveled through the wilderness, God provided food and drink for them and protected them from their enemies. God informed them of the excellence of the land to which they were journeying, led them to it, gave them possession of it, and commanded them to take it. His command, "Go up and possess it," assured them that God would enable them to achieve His purpose for them.

Instead of obeying God's command, the people requested Moses to appoint an appraisal committee to explore and inspect the land which God had offered them to ascertain if their findings would substantiate the divine statement that it was good. Considering their request reasonable, although it was contrary to God's directive will but within the bounds of His permissive will, Moses complied with it.

One representative from each of the twelve tribes was selected to make this survey and ascertain if the land were really as good as God had declared it was. The twelve spies were instructed to inspect the land carefully and to report their findings in detail. They were told to bring back samples of the fruit they found, and a description of the people, as well as the apparent strength of ther fortifications. Their exploration consumed forty days; therefore, their inspection must have been thorough.

Upon their return to Kadesh - Barnea, the twelve reported, "It is a good land which the Lord our God doth give us." To them it was a land of magic charms, alluvial soil, luscious fruits, and marvelous advantages, just as God had described it, and that it was well worth possessing. After the twelve submitted a unanimous report that the Promised Land was just as excellent and desirable as God had described it, ten of the spies sounded a discouraging note in the majority report, declaring that, because of the strongly fortified cities and the stature and strength of the inhabitants, it would be impossible for them to take possession of the land. The minority report, submitted by Caleb and Joshua,, did not minimize the difficultives involved, but it placed the emphasis on the ability and promises of God and strongly urged that they take possession of the land without delay. We admire Caleb and Joshua for their great faith in God and for their strong desire and great determination to obey Him. Their courage, optimism and dedication are worthy of our emulation. Their examples have certainly lighted a bright light of encouragement in our souls. By the faithfulness of these men of God we are challenged to give Him the full measure of our dedication and devotion. Let us make an honest appraisal of our personal limitations and our abilities, and then use them for the glory of God and the benefit of others whom we can touch and influence. Instead of yielding to fear and worry, which inevitably lead to failure, let us give ourselves unstintedly to obeying the divine commands, ever resting in the assurance of God's presence, protection, and power which guarantee victory. The memory of God's past mercies and blessings would cause His people to believe in and depend upon Him entirely.

Tech Plans Middle School Conference

A conference on developing a successful middle-school program will be held at Virginia Tech in Blacksburg June 21-24. Presented by Tech's College of Education and the National Middle School Association, the conference is designed for school administrators, teachers, counselors, and other people interested in the middle-school concept.

Since the middle school movement began evolving in the 1960s, over half of Virginias junior high schools have converted to middle schools. Middle school proponents believe children, ages 12 14, learn better in an interdisciplinary environment tailored to their unique needs. While a traditional junior high resembles a senior high school, middle schools offer a transitional curriculum between elementary and senior high schools

Featuring national middle school leaders, the Tech conference will cover issues and trends in the movement, the latest research on adolescent brain growth, an exemplary middle school program, and organizing and scheduling in a middle school

Outdoor Drama Needs Your Help

The "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" outdoor drama is set to open on June 25 and unless the public responds, it may be to a standing room only crowd!

The drama, which is presented at the June Tolliver Playhouse, is the tale of feuding, fussing, fighting and loving which has made Big Stone Gap a popular stop for many vacationers. This year the outdoor theater is being rennovated to make watching the presentation more comfortable for the public.

New benches will be installed this year and drama patrons are being asked to help out in the financing of the construction. The new benches will be made of wood and will seat ten persons.

Benches may be donated for a gift of $25 to the Lonesome Pine Arts and Crafts Inc. Patrons may request that the bench be placed in honor or in memory of a loved one. The memorial information will be burned into the bench.

Patrons who would like to place a bench may write to BENCH FUND c/o Jean Hendrick, P.O. Box 250, Big Stone Gap, Va. 24219. Print the exact wording (if any) that you would like burned into the wood. Checks should be payable to L.P. Arts and Crafts, Inc.

Van Dresser To Address 4-H'ers

William R. Van Dresser, dean of Virginia Tech's Extension Division and director of the Virginia Cooperative Extension Service, will be the keynote speaker at the 1981 State 4-H Congress.

He will speak to the opening assembly, Monday, June 22, at 8:15 p.m. at Burruss Hall auditorium in Blacksburg. The congress continues through Friday, June 26.

The congress theme is "4-H Changes Attitudes," and Van Dresser will follow this theme in his talk on "4-H – An Attitude Changer."

Approximately 1,400 4-H'ers, volunteer leaders, Extension staff members and friends of 4-H from each Extension unit in the state will gather for the event, said Kenneth E. Dawson, state 4-H director.

Statewide there are more than 182,000 4-H members, aged 9 to 19, involved in 4-H.

On Tuesday, June 23, most 4-H'ers will participate in competitive events. The winners will be recognized during the evening assembly at 8:15 p.m. in Burruss Hall. The assembly will include recognition of 4-H alumni and donors.

On Wednesday, congress delegates will be involved in sessions on "You Have the Right, If You Know It." The program will help delegates understand regulations affecting youth employment, transportation, financial transactions, and parental rights.

The 8:15 p.m. evening assembly will feature the 4-H Jazz Band, directed by Moses Hall, Virginia State University.

The 4-H share-the-fun show will provide entertainment in keeping with the overall theme of the congress during the closing assembly, Thursday, June 25, 7:00 p.m.

Following the meeting, the state summer all star meeting will be held on the Tech campus.

State Crime Commission Will Conduct Public Hearing

The Virginia State Crime Commission will conduct a public hearing on Increased Major Criminal Activities in Virginia, Monday, June 22 in Abingdon. It will be held at the Martha Washington Inn starting at 10:30 a.m. in the Garden Room. Delegate L. Ray Ashworth of Wakefield, Chairman of the Commission, will conduct the meeting.

Senator Frederick C. Boucher of Abingdon, a member of the Commission, suggested the hearing. Other Commission members who will be present will include the Speaker of the House, Delegate A. L. Philpott of Bassett; Senators Elmon T. Gray of Waverly and Frederick T. Gray of Chesterfield; Delegates Claude W. Anderson of Buckingham, Theodore V. Morrison, Jr. of Newport News, Raymond R. Guest, Jr., of Front Royal, and Erwin S. Solomon of Hot Springs, as well as former Senator George S. Aldhizer of Harrisonburg, the Reverend George F. Ricketts and W.N. Paxton, both of Richmond, and James Kulp of Richmond, representing the Attorney General.

Invitations have been sent to Commonwealth's Attorneys, Sheriffs, Chiefs of Police, Circuit Court Judges, Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court Judges, as well as City and County Administrators. A number of them are expected to address the hearing. These officials represent the 15 counties of Bland, Buchanan, Carroll, Dickenson, Giles, Grayson, Lee, Pulaski, Russell, Scott, Smyth, Tazewell, Washington, Wise and Wythe, and the Cities of Bristol, Norton and Galax as well as all of the towns of the area.

In addition to problems with coal, the study will include antiques, art, precious gems and other metals. It will also include the Criminal Infiltration of legitimate businesses; Drugs, both smuggling and trafficking; Forgeries, including checks and credit cards; Illegal gambling, Loansharking; Interstate and other Prostitution; Theft of farm equipment, boats and automobiles; Narcotics and such other activities as may develop during the course of the program.

From this study, the Commission would gather invaluable information that would enable us to make a report to the Governor, General Assembly and the general public with recommendations that should benefit Virginia's legislative branch and give assistance to the executive branch, as well as the general public.

Family Notes

By Betty Joan Moore, Extension Agent

Preserve some of your surplus home grown fruits and vegetables for use throughout the year.

The proven methods of processing foods to preserve them are found in publications available from the Extension Office. There are different suggestions depending on the food.

Here is a list of some of the terms of food preservation.

The boiling water bath method is a way of canning food at a temperature of 212 degrees Fahrenheit. It is recommended for processing fruits, tomatoes, pickles, relishes, and other acid foods. Enough heat is supplied by the boiling water to destroy the bacteria, enzymes, molds, and yeasts which cause spoilage in acid food.

Boiling water bath canners are available on the market, but any large container may be used if it is deep enough. There should be two to four inches of space above the tops of the jars to allow water to boil freely. The water bath canner must have a rack and a lid.

A pressure canner can be used as a water bath canner if it is deep enough. Use it with the lid on but not sealed. Leave the safety valve open.

Pressure canners are needed because higher temperatures than those of boiling water are needed to kill some bacteria which cause spoilage of most vegetables and meats. The pressure canner is designed to keep steam confined until a higher temperature is reached.

Five pounds of pressure is equal to 228 degrees Fahrenheit (109 degrees Celsius); 10 pounds is equal to 240 degrees Fahrenheit (115 degrees Celsius; and 15 pounds is equal to 250 degrees Fahrenheit (121 degrees Celsius).

In canning, the food can be prepared using either the hot pack or the raw pack method. The hot pack method is to wash the food, trim, break into small pieces; put into a saucepan and cover with boiling water, and boil five minutes. Pack the food loosely into the jars to within a half inch of the top. Fill the jar until the food is covered with boiling hot cooking liquid leaving a half inch space at the top of the jar. Adjust the jar lids. Process by the recommended method for the recommended time.

The raw pack method is wash, trim and cut or break the food into small pieces. Pack the raw food tightly into a glass jar to half an inch from the top. Cover with boiling water or juice, leaving a half inch space at the top. Adjust the jar lids. Process by the recommended method for the recommended time.

Freezing is a popular method of preserving food. It stops the growth of most microorganisms but does not destroy them. The action of enzymes which cause changes in the flavor, color, and texture of food is slowed, but not stopped.

Blanching destroys the enzymes in vegetables which cause changes in color, flavor, and texture. Although it reduces the number of bacteria, it does not get rid of them entirely.

The process of blanching is to put the food in boiling water for the recommended period of time. Food should be dipped in cold water following blanching to stop the cooking.

Enzymes are active in fruits too, but blanching would cause fruits to have a cooked flavor so other methods are used to inactivate enzymes. One method is to exclude air by packing fruits in syrup. Another method is to add an ascorbic acid mixture which is acted on instead of the fruit. Citric acid may be used alone or with ascorbic acid. It is effective because the enzyme is less active in a more acid medium.

Virginia Cooperative Extension Service programs, activities, and employment opportunities are available to all people regardless of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, handicap, or political affiliation. An Equal Opportunity Affirmative Action Employer.

Farm Tax Information Very Helpful

Taxing farms and ranches according to their agricultural use rather than their fair market value can mean substantial savings to farm families when the landowner dies.

Savings in estate taxes can be as much as $350,000 for those that qualify under a special tax code provision, said G. Wayne Burkhart, Extension farm management specialist at Virginia Tech.

The opportunity for farm families to reduce their estate taxes came about with Internal Revenue Code Section 2032 A, enacted in 1976. The law makes provisions for special use valuation for farms and ranches.

"The purpose of the provision was to help family farms survive financially and not be taxed out of existence," noted Burkhart.

For an estate to qualify, several requirements must be met:

1. The property must be used actively for farming or ranching.
2. The owner or a close relative must be actively involved in working the property for five of the past eight years.
3. The owner must have some "risk" involved or have an "economic interest" in the operation.
4. The property must pass from the deceased to a qualified relative.
5. It must be owned for at least five years before the owner's death.
6. Fifty percent or more of the adjusted gross estate value consists of qualifying property (includes both real and personal property).
7. Twenty-five percent or more of the adjusted gross estate value consists of real property.

In addition to these requirements, there are numerous other factors involved in establishing a farm or ranch estate for special use valuation, noted Burkhart.

A landowner interested in this special IRS treatment of agricultural land should contact their tax lawyer or accountant for more details.

Farmers Encouraged To Report Grain Crops

Max Graham, Vice Chairman of the Lee County ASCS Committee, encourages farmers to file an acreage report of their corn crop as soon as it is planted. "By filing an accurate acreage report, farmers will receive "free insurance" as well as target price protection on their crop," he added.

Under the terms of the 1981 Wheat and Feed Grain Programs, farmers are not required to limit their acreages or to set-aside any land to obtain full program benefits. The only requirement is that an accurate acreage report be filed on the fall seeded crops of wheat, barley, rye and oats by June 1, and the spring-seeded crops of corn and sorghum by June 30.

"In 1980 disaster payments were made by the ASCS office to a number of county corn growers who sustained drought damage," said Graham.

United Methodist Women Meet

Mrs. James Wright presented an interesting program at a meeting of the Morgan Memorial United Methodist Women on Thursday evening, June 4th, at the Church.

"Sing thankfully in your hearts to God, with psalms and hymn and spiritual songs," was her scripture lesson, and Mrs. Wright's presentation showed that hymns help tell our continuing story of "ways we love God with heart, soul, strength, and mind".

Mrs. Snyder Harris explained many changes that occur in hymns and hymn singing from age to age, and gave a brief history of Martin Luther and his writing of the hymn, "A Mighty Fortress is Our God."

Many different singing traditions were related by Mrs. Billie Lou Smith, which included the music and texts of oral tradition, the ecumenical message of hymns, and "loving your neighbor as yourself."

Mrs. Van Grabeel pointed up the fact that hymns tell a story that includes both male and female, young and old, and all people regardless of color or nationality, and Mrs. Georgia Hounshell, UMW president, spoke of our rich musical heritage in Worship. She had the group sing "For the Beauty of the Earth", which gave praise to God for many things.

A hymn of faith, trust, and obedience was sung by Mrs. Oscar W. Smith, with auto harp accompaniment, and Mrs. Wright spoke of our favorite hymns as expressions of our own faith pilgrimage.

The meeting was closed with prayer by president Hounshell.

"The best sauce is the world is hunger." Cervantes

Mining Technology Program Available

Mountain Empire Community College's Mining Technology Program is now accepting applications for the mining certificate (co-op) program. Two classes will be admitted this year: one class will begin summer quarter, June 16, 1981. The other class will begin Fall Quarter, September 28, 1981.

If you are looking for an opportunity to work in the underground mining industry or were recently discharged from active military service and looking for a job, this is the best way for a student to enter the underground classroom training and underground experience.

There is no admission test and no mining experience is needed to enter the program. Scholarships are available to cover tuition for qualified students.

For further information regarding these classes, call the mining department at MECC, phone 523-2400, ext. 210 or 211.

ROSE HILL, VA.

Dear Customer:

We have been advised by State health officials that we are in violation of the Virginia Waterworks Regulations because we failed to furnish them with the proper number of water samples from the Stickley Waterworks - Rose Hill water system for the months of January, February and March, 1981.

Without proper sampling and testing, the quality of water delivered to our customers for the above period cannot be determined.

We are attempting to prevent further violations of this type by collecting the required two samples per month and submitting them to the State Laboratory.

Further violations, however minor, will be reported to you as part of new Federal and State Waterworks Regulations aimed at increasing consumers awareness of conditions that exist in public water systems.

Sincerely,
Fred F. Stickley

Local Lee County 4-H'ers Chris Fields and Tracy Carter, accompanied by Extension Agent Peggy Myers, recently attended a week-long resource conference at Fontana Village, North Carolina.

4-H'ers Attend Fontana

Two Lee County youths joined about 250 other Tennessee Valley teenagers in a unique educational experience at the 26th annual 4-H Regional Resource Development Conference, June 1-4 at Fontana Village, North Carolina. The Lee County delegates, Chris Fields and Tracy Carter, both of Jonesville, were among 23 Virginia 4-H'ers at the conference.

These delegates were accompanied by Peggy Myers, extension agent.

Participants were chosen from the best 4-H club members in the 125 Tennessee Valley counties in Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia. They met to study the natural resources of this region; learn about problems affecting the resources and how young people can help solve them, get acquainted with career opportunities in natural resource fields; and make new friends.

In a resort setting of the Great Smoky Mountains and Fontana Lake, the delegates attended daily workshops on atmosphere, soils, minerals, wildlife, forestry, water, and human resources. The sessions were taught by Extension Service specialists and university professors. The 4-H'ers also developed leadership skills by presenting informative and entertaining evening programs and participating in planned recreation.

Theme for this year's conference was "A Resourceful Today -- A Guaranteed Tomorrow." Each year the meeting is sponsored by the Tennessee Valley Association of Test Demonstration Farm Families, the Cooperative Extension Services of the Tennessee Valley States, and the Tennessee Valley Authority.

"In the Heart of the Beautiful Cumberlands — Where Virginia Begins"

61 Years * No. 24 — Two Sections * Twenty-five Cents

Pennington Gap, Lee County, Virginia Wednesday, June 17, 1981

Steve ...
"I'd rather go fishing."

Regina ...
It's great to be back."

Jeff and Cindy ...
"No opinions, yet."

Summer School Begins

Has it really been a year since summer school 1980? It certainly has and the majority of students returning to the vocational school for the second summer say "it's great to be back;" the others, who have a bit more humdrum attitude about the situation, are looking forward to July 24 – when their vacation will actually begin. For the first year summer school student it is a new experience and in many cases a whole new set of rules to follow – but they soon adapt. A great and enviable asset of the young is that they adjust rapidly and easily. At any rate, by the time summer school is over many students will have made new friends they won't soon forget – nor will they want to! There are approximately 200 students enrolled in summer school at the Lee County Vocational and Technical Center.

Golf Pro Sets Record

Cedar Hills Golf Pro, Shannon Evans, broke his own Golf-A-Thon record recently when he played 414 holes in one day. He started at 5:15 a.m. and finished at 9:30 p.m. He was only three over par for the 46 times he toured the Cedar Hills golf course.

The reason for the Golf-A-Thon was to raise $2500 to be used to send 10 youngsters to junior golfing camp later in the summer. Shannon said, "We are a little bit short of our goal, so if you want to help call me at 346-1535."

Shannon shot a 67 on the final 18 holes ... after 15 plus hours of golf, he was able to shoot a five under par round.

Jonesville Offers Fun And Games At Park

For many years Cumberland Bowl Park in Jonesville has been a good place to go to celebrate "4th of July". This national holiday can be spent the way "you like it" in the shade of the trees, in the pool, picnicking or participating in the many activities made available this year by the Lions Club and merchants of Jonesville.

This annual celebration will begin at 10:00 a.m. with a horse shoe pitching contest, croquet and an Oldtimers Softball game. At one o'clock there will be a frisbee throwing contest, at two the tug-of-war, three the sack race and at four the husband calling contest.

The evening program will begin at 7 p.m. with opening ceremonies and at 7:30 the Little Miss Cumberland Bowl Pageant, after this there will be musical entertainment, a dance contest and to climax the day fire works.

Arts and crafts will be displayed and you are invited to add your hand work to the collection as no entry fee will be charged. Members of the Jonesville Womans Club working for the American Cancer society will be there, with helpful information.

Proceeds from this years celebration will go to the Jonesville Lions Club to help this organization raise funds to satisfy a debt they incurred for the remodeling of the Jonesville Senior Citizens Center. All donations and proceeds will go to help pay off this debt. All persons making donations will receive a ticket, good toward a valuable prize, to be held following the dance contest.

For those who wish to participate in the Little Miss Cumberland Bowl Pageant, please contact Cheryl Poe at 346 3051, anyone interested in playing in the softball game please contact Bob Graham or Fred Garrett.

Summer Arrives Sunday

The center of the sun moves directly above the Tropic of Cancer of June 21, at 7:45 a.m. EDT, ushering in the season of summer, according to Dr. Paul H. Knappenberger, Jr., Director of the Science Museum of Virginia.

This moment, when the sun reaches the most northerly point in its annual motion, is known as the summer solstice, from the Latin words "sol" meaning sun and "statis" meaning to come to a stop.

"After the sun moves above the Tropic of Cancer, it ceases its northward motion and will begin to move slowly southward again," Dr. Knappenberger explained.

June 21 is the day of the year with the longest period of sunlight. The sun will rise and set further north than at any other time of the year.

Within the Arctic circle, the sun will not set but will remain above the horizon, producing the phenomenon of the "midnight sun." In Fairbanks, Alaska, golfers will begin to tee off at midnight for a tournament.

Special Water Meeting

There will be a meeting of all the subscribers of the Woodway Water Authority at Elk Knob School on Monday, June 22, 7:30 p.m. The purpose of the meeting is to explain the operation of the system, to make policies affecting water service, and to select directors, to govern the authority. All users are urged to attend.

Budget Cuts - Future Of Our Library

The 1981-82 fiscal year for Lee County begins July 1.

Between now and then the Lee County Board of Supervisors will be required to make the final decisions on the budget for the coming year. The task is not easy. Because of upcoming cuts in the federal budget, there will be less federal and state money coming into the counties and Lee County will be no exception.

The work of the board of supervisors will be difficult with all the demands being made by the people of the county.

One of the very hard decisions facing the supervisors will be the allocation for the Lee County Public Library. At this point the board has indicated that it would cut the library appropriation by $40,000. Last year the library got $90,000 from the county and approximately $60,000 from state and federal sources. All of this "outside" money came through the Lonesome Pine Regional Library, of which Lee, Wise, Scott and Dickenson Counties and the City of Norton are all a part.

State regulations concerning libraries state that if a county or a political sub division reduces the amount appropriated for the library from last year's appropriation that a percentage of the state funds will be withheld. This would mean less money for the Lee County Public Library. With the reduction in county funds, if this should happen, the Lee County Library would be removed from the regional library system. Thus, all of the services provided by the regional system would be stopped. What would this mean to the Lee County Public Library? It would mean that books and periodicals would cost more; there would be no more use of the computers now used to keep records; expensive reference books would no longer be available through the Lee County Public Library because they are now shuttled from county to county as they are needed.

The Lee County Public Library is not a luxury. It is a necessity. Children from preschool through high school make use of it. College students, especially those attending Mountain Empire, Clinch Valley College and Lincoln Memorial University are constantly making trips to the library for information they need in connection with their studies. Adults of all ages have come to think of the library as an important and necessary service provided by the county.

The $90,000 needed to "just hold our own," amounts to just a little more than three dollars per capita. This is one of the best investments that the Lee County Board of Supervisors could make during the coming year.

The Lee County Board of Supervisors can expect to hear the people of Lee County speak out loud and clear on June 23, when the budget hearing is held. For the continued progress of the county it is important that the Lee County Public Library continue to operate as a part of the Lonesome Pine Regional Public Library.

Career Day Activities In Jonesville

Children looking at fire truck . . .

Listening intently in the courtroom . . .

The Education Committees of the Jonesville Junior Woman's Club and the Jonesville Woman's club sponsored Career Day for Jonesville Elementary students recently with approximately 225 first, second, and third graders visiting local business and service organizations to emphasize career awareness.

Students visited Powell Valley National Bank, Lee County Health Department, Jonesville Fire Department, Lee County Courthouse, and the Lee County jail. The children inspected fire engines and firefighting equipment and were taken on a tour of the courthouse, where they visited the courtroom for a question and answer session. At the sheriff's office, students were given a tour of the jail and were provided materials on bicycle safety. They were made aware of the importance of good health habits during their visit to the health department. At the Powell Valley National Bank, children enjoyed seeing the vault and being treated to lollipops. The students were assisted in crossing the streets by the Jonesville town police, who directed traffic and demonstrated the importance of safety rules

After two and a half hours of career orientation and walking from one site to another, students were delighted to return to school and find home baked cookies and cool drinks prepared by the Jonesville club members.

The day was planned in collaboration with Juha Combs, Jonesville Elementary Guidance Counselor, [illegible]h, Jr., Jonesville Elementary Principal.

Application For EMS Federal Funds Rejected

Funds for the continued development of a basic life support emergency medical services system for Southwest Virginians will no longer be provided by the federal government, Briggs Allen announced recently.

On May 28, official notification that the Southwest Virginia Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Council, Inc.'s application for EMS funds had been rejected by the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) was received, according to Allen, executive director of the Council

"We were shocked and disappointed," Allen said. Although the Council, which serves the region as a planning and coordinating group for all phases of emergency medical care, has been staffed and in full activation for nearly two years, "there is much more to be done," said Allen.

The non profit, regionally governed organization has been working toward the development of an emergency medical services system. This system would, in the event of accidents, sudden illness or injury, assure each citizen immediate telephone access for prompt, quality medical care at the scene, enroute to the hospital, and in the hospital until the patient recovers and returns home.

In order to improve the existing EMS system, the Council has sponsored continuing education for nurses, physicians, emergency dispatchers, and rescue squad personnel; and citizen CPR training Also, among other programs, an EMS communications system, linking hospitals and ambulances was developed with equipment purchased through Council grants.

The cut in funds will necessitate changes in the Council's operations for the coming year However, Allen emphasized the training programs and the numerous areas of technical assistance provided to rescue agencies and hospital personnel will continue to be offered.

As the Council's present DHHS grant expires June 30, a request has been submitted for extension of these monies. However, in order to survive on these funds, a cut in staff has been initiated and donated office space is being sought.

In addition, local sources of funding, including United Way funds, are being investigated Allen stressed the importance of support from local communities

"We've been working with a dedicated and enthusiastic group of people," said Allen "We're optimistic about the Council's future in the light of the cooperation we have enjoyed to this point."

Disaster Protection From ASCS

According to Lee County ASCS director Charles M. Ingram, more than eight million dollars was paid to Virginia feed grain farmers in low yield payments as a result of the severe drought during the 1980 growing season.

"A total of 11,088 farms qualified for payment by suffering a loss of 40 percent or more of their normal yield due to the disaster," said Ingram. "While the drought affected all major feed grain producing counties conditions were worse in the eastern part of the state."

Farmers may obtain "free insurance" protection on their corn crops by filing a timely and accurate acreage report with the ASCS office. June 30 is the final day for filing a timely report on corn.

"There are no set-aside or planting limitation requirements as part of this year's program," Ingram added.

The ASCS disaster program offers farmers insurance protection against all natural causes of loss to their grain crops.

Wildlife

Officials at the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries have again emphasized the need to leave wildlife alone At this time of the year young wildlife is very appealing. However, in just a short time what was a "cuddly, cute and seemingly helpless" animal will become what nature intended; a wild thing that is certainly best left alone.

Each year thousands of young animals are picked up by persons who honestly believe that the "critter" has been abandoned and needs help. For the most part the animal is in no need of assistance, especially from humans; the parent animal is usually nearby and in the final analysis, it is illegal to hold a wild animal in captivity without a permit.

USDA To Hold Public Meetings On Economics And Statistics Programs

The U.S. Department of Agriculture will hold public meetings here June 23 and 24 to discuss priorities and possible cuts or re directions in its economics and statistics programs for fiscal years 1982 and 1983 that may be imposed by budget limitations

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture for Economics William Lesher said he wants recommendations from people who use statistics, research and analyses from USDA's Economics and Statistics Service concerning what areas could be reduced or eliminated based on the relative value of these programs to the public

The meetings will be held in room 330, 500th 12th St., S.W., from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. The June 23 meeting will cover the agency's statistical programs and the June 24 meeting will cover its economic analysis and research work.

"The Economics and Statistics Service needs to systematically assess its priorities to maintain the quality of its work in light of rising costs and tighter funding constraints," Lesher said

"We expect one of the tightest budget years we have ever had," he said. "Recommendations from the public meetings will be important in developing our plans for the next two years."

Meeting participants will each have 10 minutes to comment, or they may submit written responses, which will be accepted through July 3.

Those who want to attend either session, want more information about the current programs or want to submit written comments should contact: Kenneth R. Farrell, administrator, Economics and Statistics Service, USDA, Room 448-GHI Bldg., Washington, D.C., 20250. Phone: (202) 447 8104.

Sunday School Lesson

RECALLING GOD'S ACTION
Deuteronomy 4: 1-2, 5-10

Moses reminded the Israelites of the time when God spoke to their ancestors at Mount Sinai and made a covenant with them. The Ten Commandments were the heart of God's covenant with His people. Obedience to these commandments by God's children assured them of His blessing, but their refusal to obey them deprived them of the divine blessing.

Deuteronomy 4: 1-2

Moses reminded the people of the sealing of the covenant relationship between God and them, of how they had promised that they would worship God alone, and then of how they had broken their promise at Baal-peor.

In verse one, Moses urged the Israelites to listen carefully and give close attention to God's requirements of them. He challenged them to do exactly what God commanded them, thereby proving the genuineness of their faith in God and their love for Him. Such obedience on their part would result in the prolongation of their lives, and their entrance into and possession of Canaan, which was the land which God had promised to their ancestors. Obedience to the commandments of God on the part of any people is a guarantee of a life that is more abundant, full, complete and enjoyable.

Tampering with God's Word, either by adding to it or subtracting from it, is strictly and specifically forbidden in verse two. Obedience to God's Word is necessary on the part of His children if they are to escape divine chastisement and to receive the divine blessings in abundance.

Deuteronomy 4: 5-10

Under divine instruction Moses had taught the people in Israel the laws of God both religious and civil, and then sought to impress upon them that their successful entrance into and possession of Canaan were dependent upon their obedience to them.

An additional effort to motivate the Israelites to obey God was Moses' appeal to them to compare their lot in life with the citizens in other nations who worshiped man-made gods and deprived themselves of the blessings of the true and living God. Moses admonished and encouraged his people to exercise the wisdom of refusing to indulge in the practices of the pagans. He taught them that through their compliance with God's will their standing with other nations would actually be enhanced, their own lives would be enriched immensely, and their posterity would receive untold blessings because of their devotion and loyalty to God.

While Moses' people were looking back with pride to what God had done for them, he was vitally concerned that his people look to the future and prepare for its challenges, whatever they might be. He did not want them to allow anything to divert them from the pathway of real obedience to God, or prevent them from teaching God's Word to the rising and future generations. People are prone to forget, and for that reason need to be reminded regularly of the marvelous ways in which God has blessed them, as an incentive to adhere closely to the teachings of His Word, which teachings are just as valid and important as they were when they were recorded.

Virginia Peach Crop Excellent

Virginia peach lovers will be getting a double bonus this year. The crop outlook is excellent and the early varieties appear to be a week ahead of schedule. This provides the perfect kick-off to pick-your-own peaches season and July as National Peach Month.

According to Charlie Mayes with the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, "Thanks to plentiful moisture, the size of the peaches looks great; in fact, some will be as big as softballs. The end of June should bring in the early varieties, with the heaviest volume of peaches occurring about July 10."

Nothing tastes like a sweet, juicy peach plucked right off the tree.

Since colonial times, this "queen of fruits" has reigned as Virginia's top summer tree fruit. The versatile peach is also tops at the table, starring in everything from daiquiris to desserts and compotes to casseroles. Perk up your summer menus with Peach-Ham Kabobs or Queen Fruit Salad, two of the recipes in the new "How to Enjoy Virginia Peaches in the Old Dominion Tradition" brochure, also free from VDACS. It contains tips on peach picking, handling, storage, nutrition and even how to slice a clingstone or freestone. Write for it at the same address as the PYO guide.

Marriage, Divorce May Stop Most Social Security Benefits

Most social security benefits to dependents or survivors of retired, disabled, or deceased workers end if the person divorces or marries, social security manager in Norton said recently. But benefits to widows or widowers who remarry at age 60 or older are not affected and will continue unchanged.

Benefits to a child getting checks because he or she is under 18, disabled, or under 22 if a full time student will end if the child marries. Checks to a spouse getting benefits on the record of a retired or disabled worker will end if the marriage ends in divorce unless the spouse is 62 or older and the marriage lasted 10 years or more

Checks for a widowed mother or father getting benefits because she or he is caring for an entitled child will stop if she or he remarries.

There is an exception to these general rules. If an otherwise eligible person receiving benefits as a widow, widower, or adult disabled in childhood marries a person also receiving one of these kinds of benefits, he or she can continue to receive benefits.

Friendship News

—Sunday was high attendance day at the Friendship Church. We broke our record with 227 present.

The youth of the church observed youth night Saturday with special guests Rick and Rosemary Williams of Nashville, singing and giving their testimonials. They also attended the Sunday Morning worship Service.

Following the morning services the church enjoyed a picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turner. Not only did we enjoy a feast of food but we could feast our eyes on the handiwork of God as we looked at the beautiful hills and mountains from this point of view. I thought of the words of the Psalmist David when he said "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth."

—Mrs. Gladys Mise was with us at church Sunday. Gladys is recuperating at the home of her son Jesse, Knoxville, following a long illness.

—Mrs. Millard Rowland and Miss Ruby Carter, Harlan, Ky. were hostesses to Kathleen Carter in Cumberland Gap for lunch Saturday

The Tech specialist advised farmers to reduce soil erosion and non-point source water pollution by adopting Best Management Practices [BMP's]. Contact your local Extension office for more information on BMP's.

Carter Hall May Activities

Residents of Carter Hall were busy with varied activities during May, especially during National Nursing Home Week. During Open House, the residents and guests were entertained by the Virginia Sugarcane Cloggers who demonstrated the art of clogging and invited spectators to participate.

Crowned Carter Hall Open House King & Queen were Susie Elliott and Charles Coffman, elected by popular vote by the residents and staff. Others in the court were Nina Grief and Oscar Neely and Tessie Kiser and Andrew Burchette.

Drs. Botts & Botts conducted a free eye examination and glaucoma clinic during Open House.

Eunice Haynes and Red Kirk were chosen Volunteers of the Year. They were presented engraved plaques in recognition of their contribution to the residents of Carter Hall.

Dr. Stan Botts, clogging with the Virginia Sugarcane Cloggers during open house at Carter Hall.

Others who participated during National Nursing Home Week were students from Pennington Gap Elementary School who presented a talent program, gospel concert by Sandy & Jerry Carter, Wilma Goins conducting a gospel music sing-along, and senior citizens with assistance from Joe Soncrant and Red Kirk entertained one afternoon.

One of the highlights of the week was the Olympics which included bowling, pitching horseshoes, throwing velcro darts, and wheelchair racing. Guests from Heritage Hall visited and joined in the activities. Winners were Viola Hyatt-darts; Ethel Scott-bowling; Oscar Neely-wheelchair races; Andrew Burchett-horseshoes. Judy Knight, Activity Director at Heritage Hall, demonstrated her skill in the wheelchair races by defeating staff members.

The residents appreciate the pastors who conduct church services weekly. Those participating this month were Pastors Harry Bacon, A.T. Hurley, Roy Corbin and W.L Henderson.

The chapel service for the month was conducted by Wenny Swenson and Naomi Sunburg.

"Since the residents have varied interests, I try to plan a variety of activities so that each resident can participate in something he enjoys," says Activity Director Carol Cox. "In addition to music programs and church services, we include crafts, games, discussion groups, Bible quizzes, films, exercise classes and outings." Our nursing home is often a half-way house between the hospital and the patient's own home. We strive to create an environment of hope, of challenge, of activities within the capacity of our residents.

Visitors and volunteers add an essential ingredient to the talents of our capable staff--friendship. That's why we've developed a volunteer program. We urge you, if you have the time; to spend it with us as a volunteer. You will enjoy the experience of seeing the lives of the elderly and ill and your own life become richer and fuller as a result of your help. The qualifications are simply stated: A good ear and friendliness. The rewards: The knowledge that you are helping. To volunteer, phone Carter Hall 546 4114.

Twenty Four Virginia Localities Designated Labor Surplus Areas

The U.S. Department of Labor has designated 24 cities and counties in Virginia as labor surplus (high unemployment) areas.

Cities designated as labor surplus areas are Buena Vista, Covington, Radford, South Boston, Suffolk and Williamsburg. Counties so designated include Alleghany, Bath, Brunswick, Caroline, Dickenson, Grayson, Highland, Lancaster and Lee.

Also placed on the list are the Counties of Northampton, Northumberland, Page, Richmond, Russell, Smyth, Sussex, Warren and Westmoreland.

This designation is intended to funnel a portion of the government's procurement dollars into areas where people are in severe economic need by giving employers in these areas preference in obtaining federal contracts. These contracts cover anything that government can buy from private industry such as electrical, mechanical and janitorial services.

To be designated a labor surplus area, the locality and its surrounding area must have a population of at least 50,000, and have had an unemployment rate during the reference period (January, 1979-December, 1980) that was 20 percent above the national average unemployment rate. Since the national average unemployment rate during this period was 6.6 percent, the qualifying unemployment rate was 7.9 percent.

Exceptional circumstances, such as natural disasters, plant closings, contract cancellations, etc. that have a substantial impact on the area's unemployment rate and are not the result of temporary or seasonal factors, also qualify localities as labor surplus areas.

Firms in these localities interested in bidding on these contracts should contact the respective federal agency to get on the bidder's mailing list.

CHRIS CLOVER
MRS. BROWN'S ALWAYS HELPING WITH 4-H, BUT SHE'S NOT A LEADER OR AN EXTENSION AGENT.
SHE'S A "KEY LEADER". BECAUSE SHE HELPS UNLOCK DOORS TO NEW RESOURCES.
HAS THE GOVERNMENT ASKED HER WHAT TO DO ABOUT THE ENERGY CRISIS? SHE'S SO GOOD AT FINDING RESOURCES FOR 4-H I THOUGHT MAYBE SHE COULD FIND OTHER KINDS TOO!

A key leader is a volunteer resource person who gives support to the 4-H program beyond the local club and community. Responsibilities of key leaders vary. They include helping the Extension agent work with new resources, helping local clubs in various ways and making community contacts for 4-H.

On The Competencies Students Ought To Have

By John T. Casteen, III

Last month in St. Louis, about 130 college and school students, teachers, deans and principals, school-board members, and other educators met to hammer out a working proposal for overhaul of the college preparatory curricula offered in our schools. Under the sponsorship of the Ford Foundation and the college Board, the group reviewed recommendations from sub-groups that met earlier to assess what kinds of high school backgrounds students need to succeed in college and came to agreement on two statements. One statement describes the basic competencies (writing, reading, doing mathematics, and so on) that all students need for college. The other describes in general terms the kinds of knowledge that ought to be the outcome of high school education: natural sciences, foreign languages, history, and so on.

Two facts about this conference ought to matter to Americans who care about children. One is that it happened at all. Most educational leaders now agree that schooling is not working as well as it should. Recent months have seen many attacks on education, especially on our high schools, but few efforts in which colleges and schools came together to begin to solve our mutual problems. The other fact is that the participants came to near - unanimity on what we need to do now to recover what we have lost in schooling.

Thoughtful People

Thoughtful people have argued since the time of Socrates about what we ought to teach. Consensus has been rare, especially in the United States. Now, however, it appears that we educators, from all levels of education, from all parts of the country, and from sundry races and ethnic backgrounds, may be headed toward a general agreement on how we came to need to improve schooling and on what general goals we ought to set.

The participants heard reports on recent research on the differences between effective and ineffective schooling. Many of the findings contradict popular notions about what has gone wrong. Declining student skills in writing and the other basics, for example, seem not to be the fault of classroom teachers, of the federal government, or of social change. Rather, background research and comments made at the conference hit at other causes: reduced levels of academic rigor in core courses; students choosing to take easy courses when harder courses are available; a rush by colleges to fill dormitories and classrooms at any cost, including sacrifice of basic academic standards.

Higher education's contribution drew particular attention. During the past 15 years, colleges have repeatedly lowered entry requirements in English, history, mathematics, the sciences, and foreign languages. Consequently, many students have acquired the false notion that these basic subjects do not matter. This lack of firm commitment to excellence at the top of the system (in many of our colleges and universities) seems to have taken away the motivation that used to keep students in the hard courses. Most school teachers and counselors have continued to urge students to excel in the tough courses, but the message has frequently not gotten through.

The recommendations for the schools come in two parts. One part is a description of the basic competencies that any student ought to command before entering college, or for that matter before beginning military service or seeking a first job. The list includes reading, writing, speaking and listening, doing mathematics, reasoning, and studying. Each skill carries with it a brief list of tasks students ought to be able to perform.

Necessary Skills

Under "reasoning," for example, the conferees listed these necessary skills: the ability to identify and formulate problems, as well as the ability to propose and evaluate ways to solve them; the ability to recognize and use inductive and deductive reasoning and to recognize fallacies in reasoning; the ability to draw reasonable conclusions, from information found in various sources; the ability to comprehend, develop, and use concepts and generalizations; the ability to distinguish between fact and opinion.

Similar listings were developed for all of the basic competencies. To my way of thinking, these listings of what students ought to be able to do as a result of being educated in high school matter because the skills define what a citizen ought to be able to do. Reasoning of the kind described, for example, seems to me to be essential if we are to vote wisely, to form our own judgments about the world around us, and to think straight. I doubt most students now master it.

Complex List

The kinds of knowledge (as opposed to skills) suggested for students who are to do well in college and meet America's need for leadership in the next generation make a longer, more complex list than most students now attempt. English, mathematics, history, foreign language, science, and the visual and performing arts all received treatment. In each instance, the participants believe the average college-bound student ought to attempt more and accomplish more than he or she does now. Good evidence shows that most high school students are taking fewer courses in mathematics, science, foreign language, and other academic core subjects than was customary 15 or 20 years ago, and that most learn less. The conference calls for a return to complexity in learning.

For Virginia, these tentative conclusions suggest both opportunities and challenges. Our public and private schools still offer the solid, advanced academic courses that seem necessary. Our school superintendent and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction have insisted that our sons and daughters must have the opportunity to excel. Many of our college preparatory schools are models of the academic rigor that pays off for students.

From my experience with our schools, I think our classroom teachers and counselors have remained committed to the core courses. At the same time, our colleges have more often than not failed to set proper standards, and many of our students have chosen the easy courses or the non-academic courses rather than the full program of five or six rigorous courses each year.

In my recent experience, high school juniors and seniors have been especially prone to miss out on what schooling ought to be. Often they either choose partial programs of study, leaving out the tough courses that they need to hone their academic skills or they begin to earn poor grades just when experience and common sense say they should do their best work.

Sharper Definitions

In our schools and colleges, we might well benefit by developing sharper definitions of goals, higher purposes, and a clearer sense of our obligations. Henry Rosovsky, dean of the Harvard faculty, has observed that students do not know what they do not know, and that they cannot make good choices between options they do not understand. I think he is right. Faculties owe students precisely these kinds of information.

In the end, students and their parents choose what benefit they will get from schooling. We need to do more in our schools than just re examine and improve their curricula. It may be time, for example, to look into new ways of paying for public education. But the conference report underscores the importance of using resources that already exist in our schools - of taking full advantage of what our tax dollars, tuition payments, and gifts pay for now. Clear writing, intelligent reading, critical thinking: These competencies ought to belong to every citizen. When we choose to demand less of ourselves in school than we should — when we choose to be less able at the end of schooling than we can be - we choose to be less than free and independent. Sound education and effective self-government go hand-in-hand. Neither comes easily.

PH And Soil Acidity

What is soil pH? This soil-related term has confused farmers and homeowners many times.

The two letters, pH (the measurement of hydrogen concentration), express the acidity or alkalinity of soil.

As an example of acidity, think about the taste of vinegar. This product is decidedly acidic. Household ammonia and bleach are strongly alkaline.

Measurement of pH runs on a scale from zero to 14. Neutrality is indicated by pH 7, or the midpoint on the scale. Distilled water, for example, is about pH 7. Values of less than seven are acidic. Vinegar has a pH value of 2.8.

Any pH value of seven or more is termed alkaline. Ammonia and bleach have pH values of 11.0 and greater.

An example of a common mistake is to think that a pH of 6.0 is just a little more acidic than a pH of 7.0. This is not the case, because each pH unit change represents a factor of 10. Therefore, the acidity of a soil of pH 6.0 is 10 times more acid than at pH 7.0.

Most crops grow best within a soil pH range of 6.0 to 7.0. However, many soils range in pH between 4.5 and 6.0. Crops grown on these acid soils do poorly. Many substances toxic to plant growth occur in the soil under these acid conditions.

Limestone applied to the soil removes these toxic substances and adjusts the soil pH up to the desirable range of 6.0 to 7.0.

Congressman BILL WAMPLER Reports from Washington

The tax cut debate continued in Congress this week President Reagan has endorsed a bipartisan compromise calling for a 25 percent reduction in taxes over three years Opponents have proposed a two-year tax cut of 15 percent

The bipartisan tax reduction program is a concensus package designed to reduce the tax burden on working Americans, stimulate savings and investment, and encourage job-creating investments.

Provisions of the package include individual tax relief in the form of across the board tax rate reductions of five percent in 1981, ten percent of 1982, and another ten percent in 1983. It would also provide marriage tax penalty relief in the form of a five percent exclusion up to $1500 in 1982 and a ten percent exclusion up to $3000 in 1983 and thereafter.

Savings, investment and productivity incentives are provided, including an accelerated cost recovery system; a reduction in the top rate of 50 percent; an expansion of individual retirement accounts; a permanent extension of the interest and dividend exclusion; a tax credit to encourage research and development; tax relief for Americans working abroad; an expansion of the royalty owners tax credit, and an investment tax credit for rehabilitation expenditures

Estate and gift tax relief, which I have long supported, is also included in this plan.

Those of us in the Congress who support the President's Economic Recovery Program have shown a willingness to compromise . to address the legitimate concerns of those who want to continue to tax and spend beyond the point of fiscal responsibility. It is difficult to justify further delay on this important issue

We need at least a twenty five percent reduction in tax rates over three years just to stay ahead . . . to offset the massive tax increases from bracket creep and payroll deductions facing all working Americans A substantial tax cut is essential to restore the certainty needed to increase savings investment and economic growth. It is needed to put pressure on Congress to continue to hold the line on spending programs. It is needed as an incentive to create new jobs. And it is needed to get a handle on inflation

This tax package does not favor the rich over the poor It will provide substantial relief to all taxpayers, and will go a long way toward restoring fiscal stability to our government

Re: Pennington Fire Dept. and Rescue Squad

I would like to thank your group for the services they have given to Pennington Elementary School this year. On two occasions, we have used the services of both the rescue squad and fire department. Your members are the greatest asset of this town.

The six hours you spent Saturday night, during the flood, pumping water out of the building is greatly appreciated. This service you rendered to our school saved the tax payers many dollars. We sincerely appreciate each of you.

Sincerely yours,
Robert W. Mullins,
Principal

Two Lee County men are still being held in the Lee County Jail pending the raising of $70,000 in bond. Martin L Stapleton, 34, of Pennington Gap, and Larry D. Stacey, 34, of St Charles, were arrested last Friday and charged with the alleged first-degree rape of a woman and the second-degree assault of the woman's boyfriend The incident occurred at Martin's Fork Lake in Crank's Creek, Ky. Burley Association Passes Resolution

James A. Finch, Maysville, Ky., President of the Burley Auction Warehouse Association, announced that the Board of Directors of the association passed the following resolution at their thirty fifth annual meeting at Gatlinburg, Tennessee, June 14, 15, 16:

Be it resolved that the Board of Directors of the Burley Auction Warehouse Association does hereby support the efforts of all concerned to allow the unrestricted marketing of the baled burley tobacco package, with full price support

Be it further resolved that we will continue to cooperate with all segments of the burley industry, in any effort to facilitate the orderly return to a one package marketing system

House Passes, State Bar Endorses Legal Services For Poor

On Thursday, June 18th the House of Representatives voted to keep the Legal Services Corporation alive in spite of a threatened veto by President Reagan. By a vote of 245 137 the measure cleared the House floor after heated debate and a last minute attempt to send it back to committee. Virginia representative M. Caldwell Butler of Roanoke has been a vocal supporter of providing legal services to the poor. He was joined by Reps. Whitehurst of Norfolk and Wampler of Bristol in support of the bill. Reps. Bliley, D. Daniels, R. Daniels, Parris, Robinson, Trible and Wolf voted in opposition.

Earlier the same day the Virginia State Bar Council, at its annual meeting at Virginia Beach, reconsidered the action of its Executive Committee and passed a resolution in support of Congressional funding for the Legal Services Corporation. The vote on the resolution was 30-12.

Attorney Phil Hirschkop said in defense of the resolution that last year in Virginia about 20,264 cases were handled by about 130 Legal Aid lawyers at an average cost of $335, well below that of most cases

The resolution states:

Be it resolved, that the Virginia State Bar affirms it's support for the availability of free legal services for the poor and urges Congress to appropriate funding for fiscal years 1982 and 1983 for the Legal Services Corporation at a reasonable level.

Virginia presently has 14 legal aid offices which offer free legal representation to the very poor on non criminal matters.

Supervisors Heard Public Response To Proposed Budget

Lee County Board of Supervisors met at the courthouse Tuesday, June 23 - 10:00 a.m., in an open session to hear opinions from the public and discuss the proposed budget for 1981-1982. Some fifty to sixty interested citizens were in attendance.

Robert G. McCoy, school superintendent asked the board to reconsider the school budget, to enable the Lee County School Board to give the 700 teachers employed an approximate eight per cent raise. Herman Grigsby of Pennington Gap made a plea to give the Lee County Public Library no less than the amount of money received last year, $90,000, with Regional Library personnel presenting some facts as to how the funding of the library is established, the percentage of state aid depends upon how much the county appropriates, and Mrs. Gail Buck stated "We can and should carry our own load, we must pay our own way." Everyone agreed we have a Library we are proud of and want to keep it that way.

E K. Geisler of Pennington Gap brought up the subject of when the public would receive an answer from the Equalization Board. Those not notified should receive an answer on or about Friday, June 26

Sam Massingill brought up the subject of the change in the county form of government to be voted on later this year, and gave his reasons for the discussion at this time.

There were no decisions made and the meeting was adjourned to meet again at the courthouse 10:00 a.m. on Tuesday, June 30 to discuss and finalize the budget. The public is invited to attend

Oil Exploration Analysis Lee County

Published information on oil and gas wells and an analysis of an exploratory aid in locating future oil production in Lee County, southwest Virginia, is now available. Some 126 test wells are spotted on maps and descriptive information listed. The relationship of these wells to linear features noted on LANDSAT satellite and aerial photographic imagery is discussed.

This 40 page, illustrated Publication 28 has just been released by the Division of Mineral Resources of the Virginia Department of Conservation and Economic Development. The report, "Lineament and Fracture Trace Analysis and Its Application to Oil Exploration in Lee County, Va.," describes the results of a study by Thomas M. Gathright II of the Division staff. The study was funded by means of an Appalachian Regional Commission grant. It can be ordered for $3.84 (postpaid) from the Division of Mineral Resources, Dept. N, P.O. Box 3667, Charlottesville, Va. 22903.

Page size copies of the 21 separate topographic maps which shows Lee County are included On these, the locations of linear features and of oil and gas tests are indicated. The accompanying text has information on the type of rocks which contain oil and on the usage and study methodology of the linears to assist in prospecting for additional oil production.

This study is a part of the Division's efforts to provide information on the type, significance and resources of the State's rocks and minerals A free List of Publications identifying reports and maps for the State is available upon request.

An Energy Saver

Nursing -- And Our Vocational School

Mrs. Sue Rosenbalm, Counselor at the Lee County Vocational and Technical Center, appears to have all of the necessary materials and supplies to administer the PSB (Pre-Nursing) Test. This June 17 was the date for the second test scheduled this year for approximately seventy-five applicants. Discouraged that at least half will be unable to enroll due to space and personnel Ms. Rosenbalm stated "It is difficult to turn people away -- applicants are chosen through the use of PSB Test scores, overall high school grades, and committee interviews using this criteria it is still often a close judgment. There is nothing that would please us more than to accept all of the applicants and offer additional health care programs, but at this particular time it is just impossible."

Health occupations education has never been in more demand, nor more

At this meeting policies were made governing the Woodway Water Authority and selected directors to assist in the operation. The directors are: Roy M. Rasnic, Mac Gilbert, Buck Brown, Hasque Slagle and W.F. Cox.

"Trail Of The Lonesome Pine" Begins 18th Season

Members of the Board of Directors of the Lonesome Pine Arts and Crafts, Inc. recently gave the Steering Committee the green light to produce the Outdoor Drama, "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" for the 18th season.

The Steering Committee consists of Barbara Polly, Chairman; Jack Gibbs, Jean Hendrick, Susan Moon, J.J. Seay, Jack McClanahan, Jr., and Bobby Jo Sharp.

The Drama this season begins on June 25 and runs through Labor Day and will be directed by Barbara Polly and Linda Rice as co-directors. It will be returned to a musical, described by Susan Moon as "More Music and Better Music."

The outdoor drama, Trail of the Lonesome Pine, is based on the famous novel written by John Fox, Jr. and adapted to the stage by Earl Hobson Smith, Playwright.

The drama is a fascinating, exciting and tender love story of a beautiful mountain girl and a handsome young mining engineer from the East. It depicts the story of the great boom in Southwest Virginia when the discovery of coal and iron ore forced the lusty, proud mountain people into making many drastic changes in their way of life.

The homespun wit and humor of these mountain people is intermingled with stark tragedy, suspense and very often violence. Their final acceptance of their inevitable destiny all are portrayed in the drama to bring it to a happy ending -- a superb evening of family entertainment.

The heroine of the "trail of the Lonesome Pine Drama" actually made her home in the June Tolliver House, home of the Lonesome Pine Arts and Crafts, Inc. while she attended school at Big Stone Gap. Tours of the Craft House are free.

The drama will be staged Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights beginning at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $4.00 for adults and $2.00 for children.

Summer Care Of House Plants

A little extra water is a good thing for house plants that have been set out doors for the summer

"The plants will be growing much more vigorously and require much more water than when indoors," said Diane Relf, Virginia Tech Extension specialist in home horticulture.

Hanging baskets especially are prone to stress from not enough water and are particularly vulnerable

A diluted liquid fertilizer application every two weeks also is a great help to indoor plants that have been moved outdoors

Winds are another hazard for the transferred plants, the specialist said If they are not protected there is danger that the leaves will be severely shredded or burned by the wind

Watch for weeds that may develop from seeds blown into the pot and control insect pests with appropriate insecticides

Sunday School Lesson

EXPERIENCING GOD'S PRESENCE
Deuteronomy 4: 32-40

Deuteronomy 4 contains Moses' earnest exhortation to obedience to God, his warning of divine judgment for disobedience, the promise of divine blessing for obedience, along with the patriarch's look at the past and to the future.

Never from the creation of the world, anywhere under heaven, had any people ever received such revelations from God as had the people of Israel. God's choice of them involved them in a special responsibility. He wanted to impress upon them the solemn duty that was theirs because of God's presence in their midst and because of His revealed will for their lives.

Moses reminded the Israelites that God the Creator had spoken to them at Mount Sinai, and that through the giving of the law had sought to instruct His people. Look where they pleased, and as long as they desired, there is not any evidence to indicate that any god had ever spoken as had the God of Israel. The purpose of God's presence in the voice from heaven and in His holy fire was that Israel might be instructed, and that their knowledge of Him would lead to such behavior on their part as would be pleasing to Him. With their ears the Israelites had heard God's instructive voice issuing from the midst of the fire. The account of the miraculous deliverance of more than 600,000 people from the midst of a powerful nation like Egypt without striking a blow, proves that the God who performed this miracle was entirely different from the gods of the pagan world. God's bringing the children of Israel out of Egypt intact was an act of divine grace. Never before had any nation been taken from the midst of a more powerful nation through divine help, as in the case of Israel becoming a nation in Egypt and then the entire nation was snatched from the clutches of the master nation. This act of grace toward the children of Israel was for the purpose of their imparting blessings to all the nations.

Moses reminded the Israelites that God had proved Himself to be far superior to all other gods, none of which were worthy of being worshiped. He also reminded them of how God had spoken to them at Mount Sinai, delivered them from slavery in Egypt, performed great miracles before their eyes, driven the nations out of the Promised Land, given it to them as an inheritance, and chosen them to prove to the world that He was supreme. Their knowledge of God's will, and the possession of His commandments, statutes and judgments were granted that they might be obedient to Him and magnify His name. As long as they were obedient to God, things would go well with them and their children, and they would enjoy great length of days

Out of gratitude for what God has done, is doing, and will yet do for us, let us cheerfully offer ourselves to Him for the doing of His will. Our personal joy and the effectiveness of our Christian testimony are dependent upon our faithfulness to God and primary care (care by a family physician rather than a specialist) produce a variety of occupations for which workers will be needed in the 1980s

"Hundreds of exciting careers some old, some new and others changing are seeking dedicated, competent health care workers who have appropriate health care credentials for employment," according to Ms. Rosenbalm "The need is outgrowing the supply in care and related services in nursing homes, hospitals: clinics; physicians' and dentists' offices; local, state and federal environmental and public health agencies: and the home Another plus in the field is that almost every major health occupation and profession now has the potential for being a career 'ladder' beginning at the aide level," she said.

The two year practical nursing education course at the vocational and technical center is designed to meet the following goals: Introduce secondary students to pharmacy, nursing, medical, dental and allied career programs; provide high school and adult students with the basic skills and knowledge needed for employment in the health field, facilitate entry into advanced programs requiring post high school education which may lead to state licensure or national certification; and enable students to become more knowledgable users of health services.

Of the school's impressive record of 99+% of the students who have taken the Virginia State Board of Licensed Practical Nursing passed the examination. Mrs. Rosenbalm says "We like to talk about that."

Ponderin' & Putterin'

If everyone has been as busy as I have since our "Moonsoon" season stopped, they know why my article wasn't in last week's paper. The weed's in the garden demanded first priority.

Has everyone noticed how busy the bees have been lately? Evidently they got behind schedule too and are trying to catch up! I generally write about something having to do with herbs and the by-products of bees is essential to herbal teas. There is no substitute for honey in the sweetening of teas. They are also best served without milk.

I don't have a bee balm plant, but both bees and humming birds are attracted to it, it is also known as Bergamot or Oswego Tea. The reason for the last is really a nickname given to it during the Boston Tea Party. The patriots refused to drink the British tea brought in on the ships and instead drank the tea made from the bee balm plant introduced to them by the Oswego Indians. Besides being a delightful tea, an infusion of it is good for colds and sore throats. A stimulant is also made from the plant. Makes you wonder if they had any the night of the "Tea Party." The plant is a tall, leafy plant with a very bright red flower cluster. It has a smell similar to citrus. Another plant bees seem attracted to is borage. This plant has several uses. The young leaves are excellent in salad, the taste is similar to cucumbers. It may also be cooked like greens. The leaves dried made into a tea have long been known to bolster a person's courage. A drink made for someone feverish is to pour a pint of boiling water over a sliced lemon and a half-dozen sprigs of borage. If you have strawberries, borage is an excellent companion. They thrive on each other. Remember a garden without borage is like a heart without courage.

Have you noticed the blue-flowered "weed" that is blooming along the roads now? That is chicory. It has a number of medicinal uses. A brew made from the plant in different strengths can be used as a tonic, laxative and diuretic. But the two best known uses are in coffee brewing — the root can be dried and used as an additive to bolster the flavor of your coffee. Or — you may make a poultice from bruised leaves and apply to swellings and inflammations.

Odd Fellows Objects And Creed

Odd Fellowship carries out to a practical conclusion the belief in the "Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man." It is not confined to any one locality or to any one state or province, but its members, lodges and institutions are spread far and near throughout North America and beyond the seas. Wherever men enjoy liberty of thought and action, there may be found the three links of Friendship, Love and Truth, which is the Motto of our Order

Odd Fellowship is found upon the principle that men came from the hand of a common parent, and admonishes him to cherish and protect his fellow man

The teachings of Odd Fellowship are broad and liberal in the extreme What an Odd Fellow is bound to do for a fellow member he is taught he ought to do for those who are not members.

No man can enter into the practice of Odd Fellowship without becoming more liberal in his thoughts and actions toward his fellow men, without becoming a better citizen, a better father, husband or brother, or without enlarging the sphere of his usefulness. To the young man it is an inspiration, to the middle-aged a support, and to the aged a comfort. This Order is the adversary of vice, immorality and all unrighteousness. It cleanses, improves and purifies those who study and exemplify its teachings in their intercourse with the world at large

No true Odd Fellow will give comfort to the enemies of society The laws of our country are paramount and to break those laws is to forfeit membership in the Order Odd Fellowship stands upon high moral ground, for the home and for humanity. It is a builder of character It abhors deception and cherishes the truth Its influence is felt everywhere and always on the side of good citizenship, honesty as between man and [illegible] obedience to law and order

Any man of good moral character, eighteen years of age or over, in good health and a believer in a Supreme Being, willing to subscribe to our laws based upon the foregoing general principles, may seek membership in the Independent Order of Odd Fellows who[illegible] as a member he will be afforded the opportunity of accomplishing more for humanity than could possible be done by him as an individual

While Odd Fellowship depends upon acquiring its members for its future growth and prosperity, from the world at large, it offers the man who becomes a member an opportunity of greater importance to himself, as an individual, than is his individual membership of value to this great Brotherhood

We do not care to receive men into our Order merely for the gratification of idle curiosity, they are worth nothing to the Order and the time expended in their instruction is wasted, for one can be an Odd Fellow only by exemplifying its teachings. Odd Fellowship takes its place with the church and all kindred organizations in providing a way for doing good in the world It stands only for what is good and what is right It affords an opportunity to a man to improve his condition by uniting with a great organization which teaches men to love not for themselves alone, but to speak kindly words, and relieve distress and suffering wherever found. With the feeling of assurance that the Independent Order of Odd Fellows has a great influence for the elevation of human character as a guardian of the home and a defender of our country, we are soliciting membership from all who possess the qualifications to become members of our Order

With a membership running into millions, this organization often triumphs over the forces of adversity and brings light and happiness into thousands of homes which would otherwise be dark and dreary

To him who knocks for admission at our lodge room door with the thought in mind How best can I serve my fellow men?" we say in all confidence that an earnest effort, during the remainder of his life, to practice the lessons taught by our Ritual, will bring to him in his closing hours the consciousness that he has not lived in vain, and that the widow and orphan of his brother who has gone before will cherish a pleasant remembrance of the kindness he has done and the sorrow he has soothed We welcome such men to our membership and assure them that their relations and their contact with Odd Fellows will be pleasant an profitable – morally socially and intellectually so long as they remain sincere and true to the principles of our Order

Safety glasses or goggles are "must" for farmers. Dust, metal particles, chemicals and pesticides all present eye hazards at work, said Glen H. Hetzel, Extension farm safety specialist at Virginia Tech.

The risk of eye injury can be greatly reduced by wearing adequate eye protection.

Rose Hill Homemakers Club News

Homemakers Covered Dish Luncheon

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Davis and Mrs. Selma Shackleferd was an ideal setting for the June 12th meeting of the Rose Hill Homemakers Club.

With the new addition of deck and terraced walkways, and the Hawaiian atmosphere depicted in many furnishings of the Home's interior, a mood of friendly relaxation permeated the day's program on Hobbies.

A delicious covered dish luncheon was a sampling of one of the hobbies which fill the lives of club members. Table Grace, preceding the meal, was given by Mrs. Charles Emmett.

Under the direction of Mrs. Davis, club president and program leader for the day, a sharing period of "Hobbie I Enjoy" included various types of needlework, flower and vegetable gardening; reading and teaching the art of reading; memorizing poetry and the Scriptures; many choices of collecting in an organized and useful manner, including stamp collecting in which Mr. Davis is skilled, and he invited members to see his collection.

Although some had taken courses in water coloring, screen painting, flower arranging, etc., most of their time was filled with work projects such as staining furniture, and refinishing it; upholstery, wall papering, and just keeping a clean and well kept house, and being busy doing special things for their grandchildren, but, also, traveling at every opportunity.

Before the sharing period, Biblical thoughts were brought by Mrs. Henrietta Smith, with a reminder that God prunes every branch that bears fruit, so that it will bear more and better fruit.

"If the vines could speak," she said, "they would complain that the pruning hurts, but He who tends the vines knows that unless the vine is pruned it will spend precious energy growing weak branches, too many leaves, and small sour grapes".

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Shackleferd shared cuttings from flowers that she had pruned from the vines.

Visitors sharing in the day were Mrs. Mollie Edens, Jonesville, Mrs Emma Campbell, Mr Davis and Mrs. Snyder Harris, Rose Hill. Other members present, not previously mentioned were Mrs. Jewel Glass, Mrs. Eula Davis, Mrs. Maud Bales, Mrs. Loraine Davis, Miss Florence Bayless, Mrs. Verna Grabeel, Mrs. Pauline Harris, Mrs. Mollie Grabeel, Bashie Kincaid, Mrs. Mary Fugate, Mrs. Ocie McMellan, and Mary Stickley.

The July meeting will be a picnic with family members as guests at 6 p.m. on July 10th at the Civitan Park Shelter, Ewing.

Why We Give You S & H Green Stamps

It's perfectly simple. We want you for our customer. We want you happy. And we want you back . . . week after week.

So that little extra of S&H Green Stamps is our way of giving you a little more for you money; something on top of the low prices, quality foods and good service that brought you here in the first place.

S&H Green Stamps are not, in fact, "free." We pay for them; just as we pay for our rent, payroll and advertising expenses. Giving away Green Stamps is our little extra way of attracting new customers, and in doing so you reap the benefits of S&H gifts.

There's an easy way to check that. It's called "shop and compare" if you've already done that, you know; Give or take a special here and there, nobody beats our kind of prices for our kind of quality. That's what is known as value.

So our S&H Green Stamps are truly a bonus for you. Truly, the little extra that adds up to a lot. S&H Green Stamps are good for both of us. They bring us your business and loyalty. They bring you beautiful and valuable gifts.

These days, that makes pretty good sense.

June 30 — Deadline For Acreage Report

Roy J. Myers, Chairman of the Lee County ASCS Committee reminds corn producers of the need to visit the county ASCS office by June 30 to file an acreage report. "All farmers who file an accurate acreage report on their corn crop by June 30 will receive "free insurance" protection on it," said Myers.

Producers who sustain a 40 percent loss or greater to their crop due to one of the following causes will be eligible for assistance: drought, flood, extensive rain, unseasonable frost, high winds, severe insect infestation or plant disease, drifting herbicide, and livestock not under control of producers on the farm

Myers also reminds farmers who have sustained a 40 percent loss or greater to their wheat and/or barley crops to contact the county office and request an appraisal prior to the harvesting of the crops.

Myers also announced that all policyholders of Federal Crop Insurance should visit the ASCS office by June 30 and file an acreage report "unless this report is filed, a producer will not have the insurance attached to his tobacco crop," he added

By Betty Jean Moore

Virginia Tech Extension Service agents provide continuing education -- programs, information, services -- for everyone. Miss Moore is with the Lee County office at 346 1522.

June is Dairy month. June is also a good time for picnics, and cheese and picnics go together very well. You do not have to worry about food spoilage, and cheese has a better flavor at room temperature.

The next time you shop for cheese, take time to compare kinds, brands, and prices per unit of weight. You'll probably find that store brands cost less. You'll notice that the amount of aging makes a difference in price -- mild cheddar usually costs less per pound than sharp which in turn, is less than extra sharp.

Sliced or shredded cheese generally costs more per pound, and the kind of packaging and the package size may affect the price sticker, too.

Collins Family Reunion

On Sunday, June 14 all the children of the late Rhonda Gobble Munsey Collins and Morgan Collins gathered at the old home place in West Blackwater for a family reunion. Those who came and enjoyed the fellowship, picnic lunch and watermelon feast were: Zelda Munsey Williams, Lizzie Munsey Minor, Homer Collins, Hazel Collins Surgent, Amos Collins, Mary Collins Hobbs, Ethel Collins Morris and Alice Collins Trent Homer lives at the old home place. His son, Ricky, and girlfriend Janet, from Afton, Wyoming were called away because of the death of Janet's father. They were not present with the other families on this happy reunion day.

Heart Study Seeks Area Participants

One-time Heart Attack victims between the ages of 28 and 64 are currently being sought to participate in a study which lowers cholesterol to an unprecendented level. With heart disease claiming 800,000 lives annually, the National institutes of health is funding four research centers across the country to explore the role of lowered cholesterol in the treatment of heart attack victims. Researchers hope to find conclusive evidence that maximal reduction of this fatty substance will significantly reduce the risk of heart disease.

The East Coast Center, which opened a short time ago, is located at The Lankenau Hospital in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

The center provides transportation and lodging for all prospective participants and an interested family member to come in for a screening visit. Interested persons 28 through 64 who have suffered one Heart Attack within the last five years are urged to contact the Hyperlipidemia Study for more information. Call toll free, 1-800-345-1057.

Summer Is A Good Time To Observe Nature

The good old summer time is here at last with the hot sunshine beaming down a few days last week with the temperature of ninety degrees in the shade. Working outdoors in that kind of weather is really uncomfortable. The recent rains made the grass and weeds grow, so that made extra work mowing the lawn and working in the garden.

It seems that all kinds of insects have hatched out and are crawling or flying around. The bugs delight in eating the beans and potato vines and other plants in the garden. I have seen four kinds of ants crawling on the ground and some of them sting like a bee if they happen to bite you. It is also tick time so look for them after working in high weeds. If your dog gets in the weeds check him because the ticks get in his ears and most of the time on his head.

Also be on the alert for snakes, they are usually lurking around where you least expect to find them. A few days ago I pulled the grass and weeds from around a flower box then went to throw them away. When I came back a snake was crawling out from under the box with its head stuck up. I ran to get something to kill it but when I got back the snake was gone. I kept searching and finally found it coiled up nearby a short distance away, that time I had a hoe ready and killed it for sure. I don't know what kind of snake it was but I wasn't taking any chances. There is an old saying, "If you kill the first snake you see of the season you will conquer your enemies."

Let's leave the insects and bugs for awhile and listen to the happy chirrup of a blue bird as it flies down from the tree top to get a scrap of bread, or peep into the bird nest to see if the three tiny eggs have hatched yet.

"Oh! yes, summer is a good time to observe nature."

Congressman BILL WAMPLER Reports from Washington

The Legal Services Corporation was established by the Congress seven years ago to provide needed legal services to the poor. Recently, the Agency has incurred a great deal of criticism for becoming a center for social activists.

President Reagan has called for decentralization of the authority of the Legal Services Corporation and its transfer to state and local governments and bar associations. He recommends that legal services be supported in large part through social service grants to the states. The House Judiciary Committee, on the other hand, has recommended reauthorization of the Corporation for another two year period.

Since its establishment as an independent agency in 1974, the Legal Services Corporation has been instrumental in bridging the legal gap between rich and poor. Last year, over 300 legal aid programs in 3,000 counties across the country handled more than 1.5 million civil cases involving low-income persons. These actions have been taken to protect the rights of the most vulnerable in our society, and to provide needed assistance in the areas of family, law, education, employment and income maintenance.

The Legal Services Corporation is the only avenue of legal representation for many of the estimated 30 million Americans with incomes below the poverty line. For better or worse, we live in an era in which our Nation's legal system has increasingly become the final arbiter of many day-to-day conflicts and disputes. As a result, access to that system is no longer a luxury or ideal, but a basic matter of survival and protection for the poor.

Unfortunately, past errors have been made by this well-intentioned agency. But I believe they can be corrected through the adoption of a series of amendments included in the reauthorization bill. The Committee bill responds to the concerns of fiscal austerity by limiting the reauthorization to two years and reducing its funding by a full twenty percent. It responds to concerns about the inappropriate use of Federal resources by greatly limiting the lobbying power of Legal Service attorneys. It includes restrictions on the Agency's involvement in controversial social issues. And it provides for State Advisory Councils to insure local control.

I have long supported legal assistance for the poor. No one in American society should be denied adequate legal representation in civil actions due to a lack of financial resources.

April Gasoline Consumption Declines

Virginia's gasoline consumption for the month of April was the lowest for any April since the 1974 Arab oil embargo according to figures released today by the State Office of Emergency and Energy Services (OEES).

This April 212,250,000 gallons of gasoline were purchased in the state as opposed to the 214,714,000 gallons purchased in April of 1980. The 2,464,000 gallon difference represents a 1.1 percent decrease in gasoline usage.

Allan Lassiter, OEES transportation engineer, noted that gasoline consumption declined even though the state's official traffic count for April showed that traffic on the Commonwealth's highway was up 2.2 percent.

"We are pleased to see that gasoline is being used efficiently in the state," said Lassiter. "This is a pretty strong indication that more of the motoring public is switching to smaller, more fuel-efficient cars which can go farther down the road on a gallon of gas."

The state's gasoline consumption statistics are tabulated from the Department of Motor Vehicle's monthly gasoline sales records.

Drive Defensively

During the July Fourth weekend, "defensive driving" by all Virginians could help make for the safest holiday on record, according to the Virginia Department of Transportation Safety (VDTS).

"Never before has defensive driving been a more essential remedy for avoiding motor vehicle accidents when you consider the tremendous number and variety of vehicles on our highways," said VDTS Director John T. Hanna.

Last year the three-day July Fourth weekend claimed 15 motorists' lives, the second highest 1980 holiday driver fatality count. That's seven more deaths on state highways than during the same 1979 period. Statistics show that the three month summer period accounts for at least 40 percent of all highway mishaps.

"More than 80 percent of all highway crashes involve human error. Therefore, most of last year's accidents could have been prevented by improved driver knowledge and skill," Hanna added.

VDTS recommends following these expressway driving hints:

*Keep a full gas tank and check tires. Before starting study a map and locate the correct exits.

*Properly securing all passengers in appropriate safety belts and child restraints is a major step in effective protection against possible injury or death. Safety belts can help drivers better control their vehicle during a crash by keeping them secured behind the steering wheel.

*When entering an expressway accelerate quickly to blend into existing traffic speed.

*Never slow down quickly on the highway. Keep up with the traffic flow and be sure to stay within the 55 mph speed limit.

*Never stop or back up if an exit is missed. Go on to the next. In emergencies drive as far onto the right highway shoulder as possible.

*Allow plenty of space between your car and vehicles in other lanes. Stay at least 10 feet behind the vehicle ahead for every 10 mph you travel. This helps guard against chain reaction crashes

*Read all road signs They are important and there is little chance for second guessing.

*When leaving the expressway be sure to slow down in the deceleration lane to the posted ramp speed. Belive your speedometer, not your senses

"Nationally last year, highway accidents accounted for more than 53,000 deaths, nearly two million disabling injuries and $40 billion in property damage That's not mentioning the individual medical and psychological costs," Hanna said.

For information on a defensive driving course (DDC), write the Virginia Department of Transportation Safety, 300 Turner Road, Richmond, Virginia 23225.

"DDC graduates experience 32 percent fewer accidents than other drivers," Hanna added "So remember this July Fourth, follow a simple highway safety golden rule drive defensively."

ABC Profits Distributed

Profits generated by the Virginia Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control for the third quarter (January through March 1981) have resulted in a distribution of $651,429.12 to Virginia's cities, counties and towns. This is a reduction of $1,695,000 from the amount distributed in the third quarter a year ago, due primarily to an increase of more than $2,000,000 in funds transferred directly from ABC profits to the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

The $651,000 figure represents two-thirds of the Department's profits for the period following mandated disbursements specified by the General Assembly and a one-third distribution to the General Fund of the Commonwealth.

Counties and cities will also share on a per capita basis $733,599.31 that was generated from the sale of wine. Under the liter tax, 22 percent of the total tax collected from the sale of wine is earmarked for distribution to counties and cities, and 66 percent of the tax goes to the State General Fund. The remainder is retained by the ABC Department as operating revenue.

Individual locality distribution for both profits and liter tax are as follows: The profits are Pennington Gap, $209.09; Jonesville $106.49; St. Charles, 29.37; Lee County, 2,817.72. The liter tax revenue is $3,561.60 for Lee County

CVC Public Service Award Recipients

In 1979 Clinch Valley College established Public Service Awards to be given annually to a student or student group, faculty individual or faculty group whose activities provide good will for the College. This year a third category was added for a community person or group.

The first recipients of the new community award are members of the Cohen Family, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Cohen of Washington, D.C. Mr. and Mrs. William Cohen of Louisville, Kentucky, and their late sisters Miss Lilyan and Dr. Jeannette Cohen. Members of the family established a fund to support cultural activities at Clinch Valley College, provide a scholarship program for students who plan to study medicine, contribute a yearly award at Commencement for a student who excels in art or creative writing. They and their friends also have contributed most of the funds for the All Faiths Chapel now under construction on the Clinch Valley campus and they have pledged funds to help purchase a carillon for the Chapel. Wallace Cohen served eight years on the CVC Advisory Committee and William Cohen is a current member of the Advisory Committee.

Co-winners for the Faculty/Staff award are Richard H. Peake, Chairman of the College's cafeteria. Peake was selected for his leadership in supporting or establishing major cultural activities such as the annual Appalachian Tale-Telling Days, the international Arts Festival, the "Dock" Boggs Memorial Music Festival, and the newly-established Communications Days. Mrs. Bass, who works with a relatively small staff and limited facilities, was honored for serving not only good daily meals but excellent special occasion buffets, including serving a large number of unexpected guests. She graciously accommodates the needs of college personnel on short notice or on regular college vacations, and shows outstanding consideration for students and College guests.

amount of $2,238,000. This new money will enable the teachers to receive a seven percent increase in pay for 1981 - 1982, plus a pay step that will increase their salaries more than the seven percent. The total budgeted amount for the school board is now set at $2,378,500, the board said.

The Lee County Library will remain in the Lonesome Pine Regional Library. Mrs. Gail Buck was present and made the statement that "We just want to do our part." The board agreed to keep the library open with the $50,000 budget and a look see of, according to need, supplemental appropriations.

Jesse Buck reminded the board that representatives of the library must attend all meetings in order to represent our library to the best interest. Mrs. Buck stated "Wise is the central location ... records are kept there ... the answer is not to move the meeting place, but get people who can and will attend the meetings, understand the needs of the Lee County Library and attend every meeting."

Action was taken by the board to ammend the delinquent tax penalty rate, charging a two dollar ($2.00) minimum per delinquent tax or 10 percent, whichever is the greater

Birg Sergent was retained to collect delinquent real estate taxes, dating back twenty years, by complete agreement of the board

Woodway Water Authority appointments were made, rescinding previous decisions by the board. The appointments today are for two, three and four year terms, to enable better service to the authority, as a complete new board will not be a necessity in the future. The two year appointments went to Herschel Woodard and R.H. Pennington, with Mark Edens, a three year member and Raymond Baird the fourth member serving for four years as we are against children losing an eye, or finger, or injured in any way."

Investigator M. O. Radcliff of the Lee County Sheriff's Department reported the arrest of three people for DWI and the issuance of 25 citations to other drivers for various violations of the Motor Vehicle Code following a four hour road block last Sunday. Complaints by local citizens and other motorists about citizens of Tennessee and Kentucky, who cross the state line to buy alcoholic beverages on Sundays, led to the roadblock by Virginia State Police and the Lee County Sheriff's Department.

James Gail Johnson, 40, of the Ward Hill community was arrested and charged with the alleged forcible rape of a female during the early morning hours of June 27th. The suspect allegedly threatened to use a gun. Johnson was also served with two additional warrants for larceny by check. Sheriff Chadwell and Inspector Radcliff made the arrest. Bond was set at $10,000 property, $5,000 cash.

Joe Childers, 37, of the Ocoonita community was arrested for the alleged rape of a twelve-year-old female. The alleged crime occurred about 2 a.m. on June 10th. Bond was set at $5000. Arresting officers were Sheriff R.V. Chadwell and Inspector M.O. Radcliff.

Three separate burglaries occurred during the late hours of Friday night/early hours of Saturday morning. At Gibson Station, antique furniture was stolen. At St. Charles, an undetermined number of items were stolen. Near Bailey's exxon, a cookstove was reported stolen. All three thefts are under investigation.

State Trooper Dennis Brown investigated a two-car collision which sent four people to the hospital. Apparently Mrs. Mae Davis, 77, of Route 2, Jonesville entered Highway 58 from Willis Cash Store near the Flatwoods Turnoff in front of a vehicle driven by Jerry W. Gates of Bloomington, Indiana. The resulting collision injured Joyce Hewitt, 35, who was a passenger in the Gates' car, Ora L. Grabeel, 76, Catherine Carter, 80, and Mrs. Davis.

burley crops marketed in '75 and '76, the checks will reach growers in every tobacco county in Tennessee, Western North Carolina, and Southwest Virginia - the areas in which price supports are handled by Burley Stabilization Corporation.

When the disbursement process is completed the total returns to growers served by Burley Stabilization Corporation will be in excess of $10½ million since 1953 when the Association began operation

Last year the Association issued a small return to growers on the 1974 crop, which was a relatively short crop. In 1976 about $2 million was distributed as earnings on the '69, '70, '72 and '73 crops.

Distribution payments on tobacco under loan are made after an entire year's holdings are sold by the Association

Net gains depend upon price received, expenses for storage, insurance, processing, transportation and other factors, plus interest paid for advance payments to farmers at the time the tobacco is placed under loan.

Contrary to the opinion of some, Burley Tobacco is not subsidized by the government. In fact, all principal loans have been repaid by the Association in addition to interest payments in excess of $12 million. Wilham O. L. Myers, Managing Director of Burley Stabilization Corporation said the '75 and '76 crops, on which net gains are now being distributed, earned almost $4½ million dollars in interest for Commodity Credit Corporation.

All of the loan stocks of tobacco held by the Association, have been sold, however, 3 million pounds remain on hand under deferred sales contracts. Settlement on these await final closeouts, after payment of interest, storage and other costs, and final approval by C.C.C.

Donald R. Watson, Publisher

Dear Sir·

I would like to take this opportunity to sincerely thank you for the outstanding article that you published in your June 3, 1981 edition of your fine newspaper in reference to our Second Annual Reunion, which was held in Jonesville on May 23 and 24, 1981. We realize the time and effort you and your Staff devoted to setting up and printing such an involved article, and we are grateful and thankful to you for such a fine job.

Having experienced the effort of trying to get over a hundred newspapers throughout Virginia to help us in notifying former members of the reunion, I have to state that your newspaper has been the most cooperative in this endeavor. Only through the generous help and co-operation of your newspaper were we capable of having such a wonderful and successful reunion. The Public Service that you rendered us through your newspaper is a shining example to all Publishers of newspapers, large and small. I am sure that you are proud to be the Publisher of the Powell Valley News, and well you should be; not just because of the great articles you published for us, but for all the fine articles that you write about and print in your paper.

Its not my intent to embarrass you in anyway Mr Watson, by requesting that you print this letter in your "Letters to the Editor" column. My only interest in having you do this is to give you credit for an outstanding Public Service, and to let all the subscribers and readers of the Powell Valley News know how the membership of CCC Co. 2380 Reunion Association feels about what you have done for us. I can personally assure all the readers of your paper that this letter to you was neither suggested or solicited by you or any of your Staff Its just a letter of deep appreciation from all of us to you, who we feel richly deserves all the credit we can bestow.

Thanks again, for everything and may you experience continued success in publishing such a great newspaper.

Sincerely yours,
Herb Green

Sunday School Lesson

TEN COMMANDMENTS

For God's chosen people who were preparing to enter the Promised Land, Moses reviewed or restated the Ten Commandments which were recorded originally in Exodus 20, and which are as applicable today as they were when they were delivered.

Duties Toward God – Deuteronomy 5: 6-15

God requires all of His people to give Him the preeminence in their trust, thoughts, affections, worship, actions, and service. He refuses to tolerate the worship of any other. Our putting Him first will result in honor to Him, inspiration and encouragement to others, and blessing to ourselves.

All worship of representations of God made by men are strictly forbidden. To worship an image is absurd and sinful.

God requires reverence for His name, forbidding all to use it flippantly, irreverently, insincerely, deceitfully, or profanely. God forbids people to take His name in vain by speaking irreverently of it, using it in idle discourse, hypocritically honoring Him with their lips while their hearts are far from Him, and using His name in swearing. Profanity is a grevious sin, and an unmistakable evidence of a lack of intelligence and of Christianity. God will not hold guiltless any person who takes His name in vain.

God instituted the Sabbath and set aside that day for His own glory and for the benefit of man's physical, mental, and spiritual natures Our Lord wants us to sanctify His day by studying the scripture, meditation, prayer, and public worship. Anybody who does not observe the Lord's Day by resting from labor and worshipping God is a loser, even though he profits financially by so doing.

Duties Toward Others -- Deuteronomy 5: 16-21

God said, "Honor thy father and thy mother." "Honor" includes respect, reverence, submission, love, and obedience. Because we owe our existence to our parents, we should honor them. Our relationship to them prompts it, gratitude requires it, God commands it, Christ's example inspires it, and numerous blessings will result from it. God blesses in a special way those who faithfully honor their parents.

Since life is divine in its origin, mysterious in its nature, and magnificent in its possibilities, God prohibits personal hatred or revenge which ensues in murder Murder, or the taking of a human life from malice, revenge, or some other evil motive, is a sin against one's fellowman and an affront to God.

Any violation of the divine plan for the marriage of one man and one woman is contrary to the will and Word of God and is destructive to the home. The prohibition of adultery, which is an evil that is growing with frightful rapidity in these days, still stands Whoever violates God's law in this regard is certain to reap distress and misery sooner or later.

To steal is to take that which rightfully belongs to another. It involves man's conduct with reference to God and to his fellowmen. Every type of theft is forbidden.

False witnessing is an abomination in the sight of God Anybody who utters a false or malicious report, tending to injure the reputation of another, is a slanderer. There is no way of measuring the pains, heartaches and tears that false witnessing has caused It always injures its victim. It never fails to injure its hearer. In every case it hurts the false witness

Covetousness is an inordinate desire for the things that belong to others The fact that God has forbidden covetousness makes us know that it is a sin and the prolific parent of the various other sins against which the commandments speak We are forbidden to covet anything, anywhere, or anytime. Christ said· "Take heed, and beware of covetousness."

If people are to live happily, successfully, and usefully, they must be faithful in their obedience to the Ten Commandments.

Acreage Reports Must Be Filed

Federal Crop Insurance Acreage Reports.

All persons who have Federal Crop Insurance must visit the County office and file an acreage report on their tobacco as soon as it is planted. Unless this report is filed, no insurance protection will attach to the tobacco crop. Policyholders will be asked to provide the following information when they file their report: (1) total acreage planted in Lee County to nearest one-hundredth of an acre; (2) Policyholder's percent of interest in crop; (3) Date planting was completed; (4) Names of persons sharing in crop; (5) Number of pounds of tobacco policyholder is trying to produce

Corn Acreage Reports

All farmers who are growing corn and or sorghum should visit the county office and file an acreage report. By simply filing this report producers will receive the following benefits: (1) Free Insurance Protection against all natural causes of loss to the crops (2) Target price guarantee; (3) History credit.

Producers must file reports in person, and no later than June 30. There are no set-aside and planting limitation requirements.

Banned Chemicals On Tobacco

Tobacco treated with Toxaphene, endrin, DDT, or TDE after being transplanted will not be eligible for price support. Prior to the issuance of a marketing card, producers will be asked to certify whether or not any of these chemicals were used on the tobacco.

Several countries that are large buyers of U.S. Tobacco have set very narrow pesticide tolerances on tobacco

The County Extension service Office can furnish information about acceptable pesticides which are effective in controlling plant pests

Emergency Feed Programs

Farmers may receive financial assistance when their on farm livestock feed supplies are diminished due to a natural disaster. Participants may receive up to 50% of the cost of feed purchased above what is normally purchased above what is normally purchased due to loss by the disaster. "On Golden Pond" Next At Barter

The wonderfully humorous and charming play, ON GOLDEN POND will open at Abingdon's Barter Theatre on Wednesday, June 24 for a three-week engagement.

On Golden Pond, a first play for author Ernest Thompson, was originally produced in 1978 for a limited Off Broadway run, then went on to Broadway in 1979 gaining great praise from the critics and public. It was named Best Play of the Season by the Broadway Drama Guild and was selected for publication in "Best Plays of 1978 1979."

On Golden Pond is a story of understanding and caring on many levels; love between parents and grown children, the elderly and the young

Norman Thayer, Jr. (about to celebrate his eightieth birthday) and his wife, Ethel, return for a 48th season to their summer home on Golden Pond in Maine Here they are visited by their daughter and her fiance who are traveling to Europe, leaving the fiance's teenage son in the Thayer's care

What ensues is a funny and warmly perceptive story about the joy and satisfaction of living as the generations learn from each other.

On Golden Pond will run from Wednesday, June 24 through Sunday, July 12 with eight performances weekly including three matinees.

Evening performances are Tuesday and Thursday at 8:00 P.M., Friday and Saturday at 8:30 P.M., and Sunday at 7:00 P.M. with matinees on Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday at 2:00 P M.

Why We Give You S & H Green Stamps

It's perfectly simple. We want you for our customer. We want you happy. And we want you back . . . week after week.

So that little extra of S&H Green Stamps is our way of giving you a little more for you money; something on top of the low prices, quality foods and good service that brought you here in the first place.

S&H Green Stamps are not, in fact, "free." We pay for them; just as we pay for our rent, payroll and advertising expenses. Giving away Green Stamps is our little extra way of attracting new customers, and in doing so you reap the benefits of S&H gifts.

There's an easy way to check that. It's called "shop and compare" if you've already done that, you know; Give or take a special here and there, nobody beats our kind of prices for our kind of quality. That's what is known as value.

So our S&H Green Stamps are truly a bonus for you. Truly, the little extra that adds up to a lot. S&H Green Stamps are good for both of us. They bring us your business and loyalty. They bring you beautiful and valuable gifts.

Allen's Celebrate

Celebrating Mother's day and Father's day at one time was no easy task for the Allen's considering the family was spread out all over the East Coast from Florida to Rhode Island. Planning this occasion was no easy task considering Ray and Flora Allen, the parents, were in Florida. In order to have all the family together at one time; since probably the return of David and Larry Allen from Vietnam was the last time this was accomplished. It took three in the planning but it was pulled off with ease thanks to Larry and Pam Allen, Danny and Jeannie Allen of Jonesville, Va., and David and Phyllis Allen of Pennington Gap, Va. Since they live in the middle speaking geographically.

The hardest part of the plan was to get Mr. and Mrs. Ray Allen to Virginia from Florida on time as to schedule everything just perfect. Ray and Flora were coming to Virginia on the 5th of June, along with the youngest son Paul Dean and his new wife, Holly. Fortunately they arrived right on schedule Now phase two of the plan was to get the oldest brother Roger and his wife Carolyn and four children from Rhode Island on schedule

Now, keep in mind the part was scheduled for 12 o'clock on the 13th of June Well, by now the suspense was building because here it was one hour before the big surprise for Ray and Flora Allen and still Roger and his family had not arrived from Rhode Island Believe it or not at exactly 10 minutes of 12, the Roger Allen family arrived at Larry and Pam's home, where Larry's two children by a former marriage were already waiting. Quickly the car was unloaded and all preceded to David and Phyllis for the party. By now Ray and Flora knew all the children and grand children from Pennington and Jonesville were to be coming to the party, but the surprise was Roger, Carolyn and four children. Everyone was excited over Rogers arriving because none of the family had seen the new eight week old daughter, Ashley Gracie, and only Ray, Flora and Paul Dean had seen their two year old son, Christian Allen. Upon arrival at David's home everyone was welcomed into the front door except Roger and family who was told to go through the downstairs and go up the stairs and enter the family room. As everyone was anxiously awaiting the surprise, except Ray, Flora, Paul Dean and Holly, the family of Roger's entered and a surprise it was, Flora cried with happiness in having all her family together after such a long time.

Those in attendance for this occasion was Ray and Flora Allen, Paul Dean and Holly all of St Cloud, Fla Roger, Carolyn, Melissia, Lorne Scott, Christian Tuckerman and Ashley Gracie Allen all of Newport, R.I.; Larry, Pam, Christa and Eric Shawn Allen of Jonesville, Va and Danny and Jeannie Allen of Jonesville, Va., and most important our host for the festive occasion David, Phyllis, Rebecca and Kathy Allen

A delicious meal was enjoyed by all consisting of fresh fish caught and prepared by David. The blessing was given for the special occasion by David's daughter, Rebecca. The party lasted two days and four hundred pictures later

After the excitement calmed, every one enjoyed a visit to their grand mother's and great grand mother's; Mr and Mrs C T (Ellen) Hart and Mrs Cordie Holman of Kingsport, Tn

A gold watch was given to Flora Allen to commerate the occasion and a Gold cigarette lighter to Ray Allen

The festive occasion ended with a sigh as all exclaiming it was good to be back together again and to be in Lee County

Cattle Tested For Brucellosis

State Veterinarian Dr. George B. Estes has announced that beginning July 5, 1981 all adult breeding cattle which are presented for sale or transfer of ownership in Virginia must be tested and found negative for brucellosis within 30 days prior to the sale or ownership transfer. The only exception to this Limited General Quarantine order will be those animals specifically designated for slaughter.

Dr. Estes noted, "Brucellosis has become a real threat to our cattle industry and the eradication of this disease in the Commonwealth will require the concentrated effort of everyone involved in the cattle industry."

The order, which will remain in effect until rescinded, says:

1. The livestock market shall furnish the necessary facilities and personnel to bleed all adult breeding cattle presented at the market, exclusive of those which are designated for slaughter.

2. The Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services will furnish an employee and the equipment to perform the actual Brucellosis Card Test for each market.

3. The market will provide an acceptable room or area in which the Brucellosis Card Test can be performed

4. The market shall provide a separate pen in which to confine any cattle which are found positive to the Brucellosis Card Test.

5. The Department recommends that the market charge the cattle seller a fee of three dollars ($3.00) per head for the testing of adult breeding animals, and that the market retain one dollar ($1.00) of this fee for overhead expenses connected with bleeding the cattle. The veterinarian's fee is two dollars ($2.00) per head.

6. If the bleeding of the cattle is performed by a Department employee, two dollars ($2.00) per head tested is to be paid to the Department by the tenth of each month following the month in which the fee is collected.

The recommendation for the Limited Quarantine came as the result of a recommendation of the Brucellosis Advisory Committee, which is comprised of representatives from livestock markets, the cattle industry, the State Veterinarian's Office and other interested groups.

Questions concerning the order should be directed to the State Veterinarian's Office, P.O. Box 1163, Richmond, VA 23209.
